LEGAL MEETING NECESSARY

Marin City Acts To Control Plans

A plan to put development of Marin City under local control was approved last night by directors of the Marin City Community Services District, Marin City Council, and Development Corp of Marin City.

The three groups met jointly at an unannounced meeting. Attorney Hugh Lawrence told the services district board it would have to hold another meeting to ratify the proposal, its action last night being illegal under the Ralph M. Brown Act because of lack of 24 hours' public notice. Directors indicated they will meet again Thursday or Friday to conform to the legal requirement.

The other two groups are not public bodies under the Brown Act.

The meeting brought to light the existence of the development corporation, which was incorporated in September but not publicly announced.

The proposal is that the Marin City Council be officially named the planning body for future Marin City plans and development, with the development corporation officially named the developing group.

In effect, the corporation would succeed California Development Corp., which has held options on redevelopment land in Marin City for several years.

All programs would be reviewed and approved by the council, the corporation and the community services district, who are to coordinate actions with other community organizations.

The proposal, by Ulysses J. Montgomery, urban planning consultant of San Francisco, will be placed also before the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the Marin County Redevelopment Agency. It would require their approval to be put into effect.

Montgomery said the new corporation should get an option on seven acres now committed to the California Development Corp. and a commercial center on approximately one acre should be started immediately.

A federal small business loan or private financing would be sought. The corporation was set up specifically to seek such financing, Lawrence said.

The council, services district and corporation must present a united front to the outside to regain control of the community, Montgomery declared.

"You're saying to outside groups the decision will be made in Marin City," he told the meeting.

Montgomery's consulting firm has a tentative agreement with the development corporation for planning a commercial center in Marin City.

Daniel N. Hayden, a director of the corporation, said it has no capital yet. He said the articles of incorporation call for 75 per cent of shares to be sold to residents of Marin City, with limits on shares held to prevent control of the corporation by a few individuals. Low-cost shares will be offered "when the time is right," Hayden said.

Saigon Stay-Aways Cause Delay In Tomorrow's Peace Discussion

PARIS (AP) — The first scheduled peace talks since the bombing halt in Vietnam, due tomorrow, were postponed today beacuse of the absence of a delegation from the Saigon government.

A U.S. delegation spokesman, William J. Jordan, in announcing that the session "will not be held," added that the United States hopes the South Vietnamese government will send a negotiating team "in the near future."

Also, he said, certain procedural matters involving the proposed expanded phase of the Paris parley have not yet been agreed on, and U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys have been meeting on these "procedural questions."

The postponement followed the refusal of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to join the proposed four-party sessions which would also include the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"We will not talk with the NLF in Paris and no one can force us to do such a thing," Thieu said in Saigon.

The Saigon boycott embarrassed the U.S. delegation, headed by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, in view of President Johnson's Oct. 31 announcement of a bombing halt aimed at propelling the Paris talks into a new, more productive phase.

There was no immediate indication just when an expanded conference might get under way.

The postponement announcement put on the record for the first time what diplomatic sources had been reporting privately — that U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys had been holding unannounced meetings.

Secret talks were under way between U.S. diplomats and North Vietnamese in Paris, and between the U.S. government and Saigon as the Americans sought to avoid launching the new phase of the Paris meetings with a prestige boost for the Viet Cong.

Thieu's government organized a demonstration in Saigon today in support of its stand, while a militant Catholic faction held another. But the two rallies brought out a total of only 5,000 people, many of them were generally apathetic, and there was no anti-American violence.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh and the other five members of the NLF team put up at a plush residence on the opposite side of Paris from the North Vietnamese delegation's quarters. The gold-starred red and blue Viet Cong flag was hoisted over the building.

Despite the uncertainty of the outlook for the Paris talks, the lull in major ground fighting continued across South Vietnam. However, military sources in Saigon reported the halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam had been followed by an expected increase of American air attacks on North Vietnam troops and supplies moving down the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos to South Vietnam.

The sources in Saigon said an estimated 300 Air Force and Navy bombers are attacking the traffic through the Laotian jungles each day.

Johnson Ballots In Hometown

There wasn't much doubt that he balloted for Hubert H. Humphrey, although Johnson wasn't answering any questions about the personal electoral process.

This was one of the few national elections since 1937 when Johnson himself wasn't running for Congress, the Senate, the vice presidency or the White House.

Truman Walks To Cast Ballot

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Former President Harry S Truman walked two blocks from his home to cast his ballot in Memorial Building where he has voted for many years.

On the walk he chatted with newsmen and said this was "good Democrat weather" and that it would have been a better Democratic day if it had been raining. The sky was overcast and temperatures were near 40.

Asked if he had talked with President Johnson or Hubert Humphrey, Truman replied:

"If they have not done enough to win the election now, it is too late for me to do anything for them today."

Voters Crowding Polls To Settle Cliff-Hanger

California Key Area Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans poured from their homes in massive numbers today to settle the cliff-hanging race for the presidency between Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey—or to throw the battle into the House.

Election oratory a fading echo, they rose from their beds early and stood in line for blocks in towns and cities across the land, undeterred in some areas by rain-swollen clouds overhead.

Morning voting was heavy in California's metropolitan centers today, except in populous Los Angeles County where the state's elections often are decided.

BEHIND 1964

Fair weather encouraged a good early turnout in most regions, but the vote in Los Angeles County, with 36 per cent of the state's registered voters, was only 15.3 per cent during the first three hours compared to 27 per cent in the record year 1964.

San Francisco reported a 31 per cent turnout well before noon, 5 per cent more than the record 1964 tally at that time.

The turnout appeared heavy—more than 20 per cent—in Orange and San Diego counties, considered Nixon strongholds.

From North Carolina came reports of the "heaviest turnout in memory." From Columbus, Ga.: "There are crowds like we have never seen."

In Mobile County, Ala., early voting appeared the heaviest in history. In the Kansas City area it was considerably heavier than usual. In Detroit, long lineups were the rule, although the actual vote was somewhat below 1964.

Eighty people were in line when the polls opened at 6:30 a.m. in a Columbus, Ohio, suburb. Cars were backed up for two miles at a Charlotte, N.C., precinct.

These early-bird voters were casting their ballots in climax to one of the most topsy-turvy, dramatic presidential election campaigns in history.

POLLSTERS WARY

The pollsters had retreated from late summer and early autumn forecasts of a smashing victory for Nixon, the Republican candidate, to a virtual refusal to choose between him and Democrat Humphrey.

George C. Wallace's third-party drive appeared to be slipping a gear or two toward the wire, but it carried still the dynamite of upset as well as the potential of denying either a majority of the lectoral votes—the 270 needed to win.

In that event, the House, for the third time in history, would pick the president.

The Justice Department said there were no reports by midday of illegal activity at the polls. "It's quieter today than in

LAST SHOTS MARK TWIN TELETHONS

Humphrey Home To Vote, Wait

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The last parade was over, the last television broadcast had ended, the last hands had been shaken. And Hubert H. Humphrey went home to Waverly, Minn., today to vote — then wait to learn how the rest of America had voted.

Abandoning the hectic pace of his jet-age presidential campaign, he sought the quiet of a rustic, white-frame town hall at nearby Marysville, Minn., to pencil his ballot among the friends and neighbors who still call him Hubert.

The candidate ended the telethon with as much bounce and self-confidence as when he began.

Humphrey and his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine—surrounded by show business stars in a casual format—made much of the fact that Nixon was appearing without his running mate, Spiro T. Agnew.

"Maybe Mr. Nixon feels he doesn't have a vice presidential candidate," Muskie quipped.

Although Nixon was in a studio several miles away, Humphrey addressed his comments

Nixon Draws Fire On Viet Buildup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon triggered an unusual election eve campaign joust with Hubert H. Humphrey by reporting Hanoi may be taking advantage of the Veitnam bombing halt.

Appearing on a $400,000 network telethon last night, the Republican presidential candidate said:

"I read a very disturbing report this afternoon in which an Air Force general pointed out that the North Vietnamese are moving thousands of tons of supplies down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and that our bombers are not able to stop it."

Humphrey accused Nixon of trying to "frighten the American people" and said "it is a totally irresponsible charge."

The vice president said he checked with U.S. government officials who said the Nixon statement was not true.

"It's a totally unsubstantiated charge," he went on. "Now. Mr. Nixon, I think you know very well that the President's orders to stop the bombing of the North did not include the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The Ho Chi Minh is subject to intensive American air power as it has been in the past and is even more so now, and that all the lines of communication south of the demilitarized zone are all subject to intensive air interception or interdiction."

"If they don't know what's going on," Nixon replied. "How can they deal with it? At least I

GENETIC VIOLENCE?

Judge Goldstein Sets Chromosome Testing

Controversial chromosome tests for genetic defects which allegedly make a man a born criminal have been ordered by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein of Marin Municipal Court for two men convicted of misdemeanor crimes.

The other is Harold J. Von Feldt, 34, of San Rafael, who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of battery for beating up a San Rafael man who was recovering from chest surgery.

The tests are to determine if either man has an extra Y chromosome, said by some researchers to make a man a "born killer."

In Australia recently, a 21-year-old laborer was found innocent of murder by reason of insanity after doctors reported that he had an extra Y chromosome.

Judge Goldstein said today that, if the cost of the genetic testing is not too great, he will order such tests in the future "for people with a history of violence or charged with unusually violent crimes."

The magistrate said he would discover the cost of the testing today and vacate his orders for chromosome tests if the cost is prohibitive.

The results of such tests could serve as a guide for judges who must impose sentence and order treatment for violent criminals, Goldstein said.

Marin's Turnout Is Heavy

A heavy turnout of voters throughout Marin was reported by precinct workers today, despite overcast skies and the threat of rain, as balloting opened in today's general election.

Polls close at 8 p.m.

County elections officials predict 90 per cent of Marin's 96,695 registered voters will ballot. About half of Marin voters generally get to the polls after the workday.

LENGTHY BALLOT

At stake are races for president, vice president, U.S. Senate, House of Representatives, California Assembly, Marin County Board of Supervisors, the boards of directors of the Marin Hospital, Bolinas Harbor and Strawberry Recreation districts, 10 state propositions and three local measures — a county gun registration ordinance, a $10.9 million bond measure in the Tamalpais High School District and a $3 million street bond measure in the City of Novato.

Counting of some 5,000 absentee ballots will begin at 8 p.m., with results expected to be reported by 8:30 p.m. Reporting of returns from the 221 precincts should begin by 9:30 p.m., elections officials said.

COMPUTER COUNT

Election coverage will begin at 9 p.m. on radio station KTIM-FM, 100.9 megacycles.

Balloting reportedly went smoothly throughout Marin, although several voters told the Independent-Journal they were confused by a blank space on the presidential section of their ballots.

The blank had been reserved for the Peace and Freedom Party's nominee for president, Eldridge Cleaver, but he did not qualify, because he is three years too young to be president.

There also were complaints that some voting booths had curtains on only three sides. Elections officials said the state election code has no provision at all for curtains on booths.

Some voters were confused to find holes already punched in

Black Students List Demands, Plan Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Black Student Union has presented San Francisco State College officials with 10 demands, asking the college to spend more money on minority group programs.

A few minutes after the BSU disclosed the demands yesterday in a news conference closed to all whites except newsmen, the college president held his own news conference and said the college is $750,000 over its budget.

More than 8,000 must be turned away for the spring term, said Dr. Robert R. Smith, and 60 instructors may have to be released.

The BSU, and two Negro administrators called for a "Black-Brown student strike" tomorrow of Negroes, Mexican-Americans and Oriental students to protest the suspension of Black Panther George Murray as a student and part-time English teacher.

He was suspended on an order by Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of the state college system, for inflammatory remarks, including a suggestion that students bring guns to school.

"This college is facing a crisis much worse than a student strike," said Smith.

"We are finding more and more groups demanding increased services, but there is little hope of coping with them with our present budget restrictions.

"They have the notion it can be done out of my hip pocket, and it can't."

Knife-Carrying Students Imprison College Officials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials of San Fernando Valley State College were held prisoner by knife-carrying students for up to four hours yesterday.

No serious injuries or vandalism was reported.

Alleging unfair treatment of Negro athletes, about 200 students seized the top floor of the administration building and held 34 persons in the president's conference room.

The fifth floor was sealed off by members of the Black Student Union. Downstairs, on the first floor, leaders of the Negro group met with acting president Paul Blomgren and other administraters.

A leaflet distributed by the Black Student Union called for an investigation into "the racist attitude" of a coach who allegedly struck a Negro student, for giving more power to students and refusing a cutback of funds from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

Athletic director Glenn Arnott was among those held prisoner. The door to the room was guarded by students armed with fire extinguishers. Table knives, and at least one butcher knife, were seen in student hands.

"There were implied threats of violence," said Donald W. Krimel, executive assistant to the president.

Hijacker Took Money, Cubans Gave It Back

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Airline passengers back from Cuba today said the man who hijacked their plane seized their money as "contraband of war." They got it back from Cuban officials when the plane landed at Jose Marti airport outside Havana.

Morris Bedlin, a Miami Beach, Fla. , taxi driver, said the Negro hijacker announced "You've got a new captain" when he took over the Boeing 727 jet with 57 other passengers and seven crew members aboard.

Bedlin said the hijacker announced over the public address system that the jet seizure was part of a black nationalist movement.

"He said: 'we're going to take over a new ship every day for 100 days,'" Bedlin told newsmen.

M. R. Garrison, a Vernon, Tex., oilman now living in Rome, Italy, said the hijacker said the black nationalists were taking the action for "a new Africa."

"He said they would take one a day for 100 days and that this was the first one, He was a kook!" Garrison said.

Bedlin said the man asserted black nationalists intend to hijack commercial lines 'to show the white people that we're keeping them down, or something like that."

Pilot Antone Hunter said the hijacker—waving a revolver with a six-inch barrel—ordered stewardess Sandy O'Brien to collect money from the passengers.

"He made her count the money on the floor," after Miss O'Brien returned to the cockpit, the captain said. It totaled $405.

A National Air Lines spokesman said the passenger listed on the manifest as "Mr. H. Jackson" of Baton Rouge, La., was not on the list of returning passengers. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents questioned the crew and passengers, but declined to discuss Jackson or any other aspect of the case.

Hunter said the hijacker held a gun at Miss O'Brien's head and forced her to unlock the cockpit door about 10 minutes out of New Orleans on National Flight 186 from Houston to Miami via New Orleans.

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Armored cars and steel-helmeted troops today patrolled the streets of the Jordanian capital, still gripped by tension following widespread street fighting yesterday in which 16 persons were reported killed and 40 wounded.

King Hussein clamped a heavy guard on his restive, divided country in an attempt to prevent further clashes between troops loyal to him and the palestine guerrilla groups who have made his kingdom a base for terrorist operations against Israel.

All demonstrations were banned until further notice. An 18-hour curfew, between 4 p.m. and 10 a.m., was imposed.

The government announced the arrest of an undisclosed number of guerrilla leaders charged with responsibility for Monday's violence, the bloodiest confrontation so far between the army and the guerrilla groups demanding a free hand again Israel.

Pleads Guilty In Assault Case

James Melvin White, 18, of Marin City, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. His case was continued until Dec. 2 for sentencing.

His pleas acknowledged that he was the youth who shot Diller Ryan, 18, of Ross, during a robbery attempt Sept. 2 in Marin City, and who burgled a Marinwood home a week later.

The district attorney dismissed additional charges that White tried to rob Ryan and his companion Sept. 2 in Marin City.

Gold was found in Australia in 1851.

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — George C. Wallace cast his vote today in his hometown of Clayton, Ala., the rural community where he began his remarkable political career.

Wallace will await the election returns in Montgomery. He has rented Garrett Coliseum, a sports arena, for his election night party.

On arriving in Montgomery yesterday after a rally in Atlanta, the last of the campaign, Wallace said his run for the presidency had been "enjoyable."

AGNEW

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Republican vice-presidential candidate Spiro T. Agnew voted early today and said he was "looking forward to a victory but we'll be prepared to lose in case it doesn't come."

Agnew, his wife Judy, son Randy and daughter Susan went to the firehouse on Duke of Gloucester Street that serves as their polling place at 8 a.m.

Then the governor left for a round of golf with his personal physician, Dr. Emmett Queen, who has accompanied him on his campaign.

MUSKIE

The Democratic vice presidential candidate joined a 15-car motorcade for the one-and-one-half-hour drive to his home town, a paper and textile city of 18,000 residents.

Muskie had flown to Los Angles yesterday for a whirlwind final 12 hours of campaigning.

LeMAY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Curtis E. LeMay canceled an election-eve rally and news conference and spent the hours in his suburban Bel Air home before today's election. After voting, he said he would fly to join his running mate, George C. Wallace, at Montgomery, Ala.

SENATE

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Democrat Alan Cranston and Republican Max Rafferty ended one of the most bitterly contested political campaigns in recent history today in their fight for the U.S. Senate and left the decision up to the voters.

Both predicted victory. Cranston was unwilling to set a definite margin but said his victory would be "smashing" and Rafferty said he hoped for a 250,000-vote win.

Cranston, the former state controller, pointed to public opinion polls which show him comfortably in front and talked about a million-vote victory.

Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, predicted he would win easily enough to destroy the credibility of the polls.

"The blow will be a decisive one," Rafferty said. "I don't think the polls will be able to survive the election."

Rock Barricade Removed Just In Time For Train

Officers Larry Bain and Joseph Baty said they spotted a car parked near a railroad siding and, as they approached it, the driver fled.

While Baty pursued the man, Bain noticed the barricade and removed it. As he finished, the train passed by at an estimated 45 miles an hour. Police said there were enough rocks and concrete to derail it.

Booked on suspicion of intent to derail a train was Larry Stratis, 23, of San Fernando.

Hippie Accused Of Explosives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young hippie, wearing spurs and carrying a curved sword, was arrested yesterday by state and local agents who said he was selling high explosives on a corner at $500 a block.

The suspect was identified as Charles Michael Kirby, 18. Officers said he was carrying a satchel containing 17 blocks of military C-2 explosive — each block equal to six and a half pounds of TNT.

Agents said Kirby also had "an old-fashioned, round, anarchist - type bomb" wrapped in tinfoil, with a fuse and containing more C-2.

The explosive, now obsolete, was used during World War II for destroying bridges and concrete pillboxes. However, ordnance specialists said Kirby's C-2 was "still alive."

Bishop Roofing Inc. of San Rafael was given a $45,446 contract to reroof certain houses in the Capehart housing area; Knoles Inc. of San Rafael a $7,137 contract to replace the evaporative condenser to two 25-ton refrigeration compressors, and Hawkins Painting Co. of Vallejo a $4,782 contract to sandblast, seal and paint Building 522.

Two Arrested As CHP Finds Drugs In Car

The California Highway Patrol said they stopped a car bearing two different license plates on Highway 101 today and found dangerous drugs and a loaded .32 caliber revolver in the vehicle.

Arrested were the driver, Algis Michael Budry, 39, who identified himself as a writer and seaman but refused to give an address, and Lewis Powell, 35, of 206½ Webster Street, Petaluma, an unemployed laborer.

Officer Merlyn L. Baarts said Budry struck his partner, Officer David R. Welty, in the face while being questioned. Budry then ran, Baarts said, but was caught and subdued by the two officers after a struggle on the ground.

The officers, alerted by radio to watch for the car with two plates, stopped it about 1:45 a.m. on St. Vincent's Hill near Novato as it traveled northbound.

Found in the car was the revolver a syringe and possible methedrine and other dangerous drugs, officers said.

Budry and Powell were booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs, carrying a concealed weapon, possession of narcotics paraphenalia and possession of a loaded weapon in a motor vehicle. Budry also was booked on suspicion of felony assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.

No bail was set and the two were to appear in Marin Municipal Court later today.

Propelled Cable Cars Set For Fair

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Self-propelled versions of San Francisco cable cars have been selected as principal means of transportation at the world fair scheduled to open in Osaka, Japan in 1970.

The announcement was made yesterday as a huge scale model of Expo 70 was unveiled at the Japanese Cultural and Trade Center here.

Osaka and San Francisco are sister cities.

The cars will have self-contained motors in contrast to the underground moving cable propelling the San Francisco tourist attractions.

Council Deadlocks, Planners Get Enchanted Knolls Issue

By ANNE BARDWELL

After nearly three hours of debate and several fruitless attempts to settle the question, the Mill Valley City Council last night once again referred the issue of density for the Enchanted Knolls Ridge back to the city's planning commission.

The council's move came after three attempts to resolve a request for a density increase from five to eight units per acre for 76 acres of undeveloped ridgelands failed to garner more than two supporting votes.

The final motion by councilman Rodric L. Robinson, which passed by a 4-1 vote, asked the planning commission to consider a series of three densities for various sections of the property while maintaining an overall density of 6.5 units per acre. It also specified that the council "would look unfavorably" on any request to place townhouses or apartments on the crest of the ridge.

The densities specified were 4.5 units per acre for 19 acres on the west side of the ridge, 6.5 units per acre for 52 acres on the east side and 17 units per acre for five acres adjacent to the Shelter Bay apartments along Highway 101.

The council, rather reluctantly, also agreed to sit down with the planning commission and developers in a workshop session to study the project's economic feasibility. A workshop session was tentatively scheduled for 9 a.m. Nov. 16 in City Hall.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke was the dissenter, saying: "Any motion that takes three minutes to read, I'll vote no on."

Patiently sitting through the lengthy discussion were more than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents, nearly all of whom were opposed to the density increase.

Developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal told the council that the density increase is necessary to make a "quality development" on the large parcel economically feasible.

"We've owned this property for 10 years and have either studied and scrapped or presented numerous development plans which either weren't feasible or weren't acceptable to the city or to the residents of Enchanted Knolls," Odenthal said. "This time we have a good plan but we need the higher density to make it work."

The density increase request was first brought to the city in June and was denied by the planning commission in July. In August, the council expressed interest in Odenthal's plans and instructed the planning commission to restudy the request.

This the planners did and in September approved the higher density.

By September, the plan had also been approved by directors of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association who had opposed all previous development plans.

However, grass roots opposition developed among Enchanted Knolls residents and by last night the ad hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls had collected 181 signatures on petitions opposing any density increase.

(In a side repercussion, homeowners association directors who supported the Odenthal plan face a recall election Thursday night.)

Last night, attorney Richard Burns, acting as spokesman for Enchanted Knolls residents, told the council the density increase would be "grossly contrary" to the East Mill Valley master plan, would be "contrary to assurances" given residents in the past that the area would be maintained as a single family development and that the development would "scar the entrance to Mill Valley."

Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon said that he believed the property could "physically support" the higher density and that the city's 1965 traffic study indicated it could also support the increased traffic, to which Burns had also objected.

Bragdon also noted that of the 274 residences in Enchanted Knolls, 94 are apartments and 180 single family homes.

He also assured the council that quality of development and location of types of housing could be adequately controlled by the city's ordinances.

Odenthal, in answer to residents' objections, said that only single family development is planned for the west side of the ridge adjacent to existing homes and that the apartments would be located on the east side of the ridge overlooking Highway 101.

Mixed development would bring the city and county an annual tax surplus of $107,000, he said, as compared to a $282,000 annual deficit if the area is developed with only single family homes.

After a half hour of debate and the failure of several motions, came Robinson's motion which was adopted.

In a related matter, the council refused to grant a quarry permit to the Mill Valley School District to remove 58,000 cubic yards of dirt from the ridge area to fill the middle school site on Project 17.

City Eng. Stanley M. Bala said granting of the permit would save the school district $20,000 in hauling costs but would be contrary to the city's existing policy of not allowing quarrying in an area without an approved master plan.

Bala said the soil would be taken from the ridge area in which a main road is planned.

Appointments Controversy Flares Anew

The long simmering disagreement on the Mill Valley City Council as to a mayor's prerogative to make appointments erupted again last night as Mayor Dean N. Meyer attempted to name a Mill Valley miniboard for the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

After Meyer had named his five candidates for the committee, Councilman Robert H. Andresen offered the name of another candidate, W. E. Williams. Andresen's suggestion was imfediately backed by Councilman George Wickham who has long fought to limit the mayor's power of appointment power.

SHARP DIALOGUE

Meyer declined the suggestion, saying he wanted to stick with his nominees: Roger J. Fleischmann, Charles P. Guichard, William J. Walker, Mrs. Richard Jessup and Dr. Larry Beck.

"You frequently ask us for names, yet it appears you take little weight of our suggestions," Andresen countered.

"To submit your suggestions at a council meeting after I have announced my selections is a difficult way to accomplish your aim," snapped Meyer, noting, "I have not received a name from any councilman for any of these positions prior to just now."

He suggested the councilmen submit suggestions by letter when vacancies are first announced.

Andresen then moved to table the appointments but was only supported by Wickham. However, after tempers cooled, a move by Councilman Rodric L. Robinson to delay a vote until Nov. 18 was approved.

BIDS ACCEPTED

The council also accepted a low bid of $8,780 by Stanton Bates of Fresno for construction of a retaining wall at 416 Ethel Avenue; a low bid of $6,769 by Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael for construction of a retaining wall at 397 Rose Avenue and a low bid of $5,098 by A. J. Bresnan Co. of San Rafael for drainage improvements on Miller Avenue adjacent to the Tamalpais High School football field.

All other items on the agenda were postponed to 8 p.m. Nov. 18 in city hall because of the late hour.

Corte Madera To Ask Road Widening Fund

A request for $48,000 in state urban thoroughfare funds will be made toward a $101,700 project to widen a section of Tamalpais Drive to four lanes, the Corte Madera Town Council agreed last night.

The widening and beautification project, expected to start next summer, would be from Highway 101 to Pixley Avenue. Besides widening, islands will be constructed where only painted islands now exist. Meadowsweet Drive would also be made one-way angling east off Tamalpais Drive.

Besides the $48,000, town gas tax funds totaling $51,360 and $2,340 from the town's general fund would cover the cost of the work.

In other business last night the council changed its employee medical and hospital coverage policy of paying all of the employee's insurance premium or half of the total for the employee and his dependents.

Instead, the town will pay up to $14 a month toward either of two insurance plans — The Kaiser Plan or the Blue Cross — that the employee chooses. The employee would then pay any additional cost.

The change in policy followed a decision by the town employees association to get health coverage under the state employees retirement system plan rather than from a local insurance program. It will cost the town about $800 more this year, Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said, but the old rates had also been increased.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

CITATION — Formally accepted from the American Automobile Association a citation for an excellent traffic safety record the past two years.

MINIBOARD — Named itself as a "miniboard" committee to advise the Marin County Human Rights Commission on local matters.

SANITARY — Unanimously agreed to offer the Corte Madera Sanitary District the temporary free use of a maintenance employee to fill a district vacancy. The offer is based on the likelihood that the district and the town will merge in the near future and the work would be good on-the-job training for the employee.

HOUSING — Agreed that Floyd D. Allensby and C. D. Parmelee, owners of a two-acre parcel in an unincorporated area on Tamal Vista Boulevard, should present to the planning commission their plans for a 56-unit senior citizen resident housing development when the plans are completed. Zoning and plans would have to worked out through the county, and the owners have agreed to annex to Corte Madera when the parcel's use is established, Usher said.

ACCESS — Declined to review its access policy for the proposed connection road between Paradise and Tamalpais drives. James Smith had requested an exception to the policy — which states that all or none of the adjacent landowners can develop access — to permit him access from his S and L subdivision parcel.

GRADING — Accepted completion of a fill and grading contract with Blasi-Engelke Construction Co. of Healdsburg for first phase of the connection road between Tamalpais and Paradise drives. Contract for building the road (San Clement Drive) will be awarded next spring.

Bolinas Firemen Plan Yule Decor

Fire Chief Jose A. Silva appointed Capt. Edward Letter chairman of the Christmas decorations committee last night at a meeting of the Bolinas Volunteer Firemen, according to Mrs. Alice Silva.

The purchase of two walkie talkies for the department was dicussed but no action taken.

It was decided during winter months, fighting films will be shown at the training meetings.

The members presented a letter of recommendation to Sherman Smith, who recently resigned as secretary of the department but continues to act as assistant chief.

UNIFICATION ASKED

Corte Madera Attempts To Regain Fire Rating

The Corte Madera Town Council last night adopted several recommendations of its own fire committee to attempt to regain a fire rating it lost in September.

It also listened politely to the urging of a special committee of the Corte Madera Volunteer Fire Department that the town hire seven more paid firemen— the council committee recommended hiring only one— and that a student "sleeper" program at the two fire stations be dropped. But the council postponed decisions until 1969-70 budget time.

The lengthy discussion on fire matters also heard Mayor Edward W. Colthurst suggest that the benefits of unifying all fire districts "south from Kentfield" into one large Southern Marin fire district should be investigated.

Adopted on the proposal of the council's fire committee, which comprised Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, were measures to hire one fireman in addition to the two firemen now employed, and to purchase $1,000 in equipment, including several fire hose nossles.

An ordinance also was introduced to make major commercial areas Fire Zone 1 with higher fire prevention requirements for new buildings than the present Fire Zone 2. In addition, the council plan would add three student sleepers to the three already on night duty.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher, said the measures should bring the town back to the Class 6 rating it lost in September after a ruling by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau in San Francisco and estimated they will cost $5,925 from Jan. 1 to the end of this fiscal year.

He originally estimated a cost of $8,000, but the council agreed to not pay the sleepers $3 each for nights which they guarantee they will be on duty.

The decline by Corte Madera from Class 6 to 7 increased commericial fire insurance premiums by about 16 per cent, Usher has pointed out. San Anselmo has a Class 3 rating and Larkspur, Class 5.

The volunteer fire department's committee, headed by Jack W. Forster, department secretary, recommended last night that the town hire one additional fireman now and six more the next fiscal year. The committee estimated the additional expense at $70,000 annually.

Forster said the change would be a departure from the volunteer department concept, but that his committee and Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson felt the town's safety was the important concern.

Forster said the sleeper program was undependable because the students were "quite transient" and it took a minimum of two years for proper fireman training. The department has 19 volunteers.

Colthurst said he would get in touch with Southern Marin Fire districts to discuss the unification possibility.

The combined fire districts have annual budgets totaling $1,264,000, he said after the meeting, and could provide excellent service by utilizing existing fire stations and equipment. He said the district probably would not include Stinson Beach or Bolinas areas.

Teener Let Out Of Jail On Charge

An 18-year-old Terra Linda youth, held in jail since Saturday, was arraigned on a misdemeanor charge of having an open liquor container in his car and released without bail in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Ralph Peder Sewell of 858 Las Pavadas was told to return to court Tuesday to plead to the charge.

Sewell and three 16-year-old boys were stopped after sheriff's deputies saw them smoking what may may have been marijuana cigarettes as they drove through Terra Linda Saturday afternoon, deputies reported.

No evidence of marijuana was found in the car, however, deputies said.

Two of the juveniles were cited on suspicion of having an open liquor container and pssession of liquor by a minor and released to their parents. The third was booked into juvenile hall on the same charges.

Sewell did not make bail of $746.

The incident was one of three which resulted in juvenile citations during the weekend.

Two 15-year-old boys were cited for possession of marijuana after deputies found them with eight cigarettes suspected of being marijuana at 9:25 p.m. Saturday on the grounds of the Lucas Valley Community Center.

Another 15-year-old boy was booked into juvenile hall as a runaway Saturday after deputies found him living at Muir Beach in a shelter he built for himself.

The boy told deputies he had run away from home two weeks before.

City Council Approves New Fire Station

Proposals to build a new fire station in East Petaluma, enlarge the present central fire station and abandon that at East D and Payran streets were approved last night by the Petaluma City Council.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton recommended a new station be built as soon as possible and set 1970 or 71 as the latest possible date. "We have a very dire situation with all the population growth being on the east side and all the fire fighting equipment on the west side," he said.

BUILDING FUND

Benton recommended land be acquired on McDowell Boulevard North. He said a site could be purchased from $45,000 in the fire department building fund. Any money remaining should be used to enlarge facilities at the central station on D Street, he told the council.

The chief said one or two more bays are needed to house equipment at the central station. He told council this would be even more necessary when the east side station is built, because he would then recommend the station at East D and Payran streets be abandoned with the men and equipment transferring to central.

FLOOR PLANS

In general approval of his recommendations, council retained architect Richard Lieb for $1,200 to develop floor plans, sketches and cost estimates for the central addition. Lieb said the fee would later apply to his fee of eight per cent of the building cost.

Benton estimated cost of the proposed east side station at $90,000. He said the project could probably not be supported from the general tax fund and recommended a bond issue be considered. He also reminded the council that a new station would mean adding seven new firemen at an annual cost of $62,869 and a new fire engine at $35,000.

Rohnert Park Asks Water Lines Funds

Rohnert Park City Council last night approved a request for federal assistance for improvements to the city water system.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan will file a preliminary request with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for $35,000 in matching funds. The project would provide a new, 300,000-gallon tank and a new well.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Found a procedural error had been made in holding a public hearing on the updated building code before its presentation to the council. A new hearing was scheduled for Dec. 2.

MARKET — Approved building plans of Paul Golis for a convenience market on Southwest Boulevard. He told the council he had dropped plans for an adjacent pharmacy.

REDUCTION — Heard that Storer Cable Television, Inc. agreed to a reduction of the city rate from $4.75 to $4.56 per month.

LIBRARY — Gave Callinan authority to begin negotiations to merge the city library with the Sonoma County library system.

STOP SIGNS — Denied a request from the John Reed School Parent-Teacher Association that stop signs be placed in front of the school. Police and fire chief Brian Koch recommended the denial, saying the signs weren't necessary at this time and would cause problems rather than solve them.

TREES — Authorized Callinan to cooperate with the chamber of commerce in the annual tree-planting project. An estimated 300 trees will be added to the city.

Wife Appeals For Blood

Patrick Holman, 34, of 10 La Brea Way, Santa Venetia, needs blood, his wife announced yesterday in a public appeal for help.

Mrs. Holman said her husband has received 36 transfusions of plasma since being admitted to Marin General Hospital last week, and now needs 12 transfusions a day while doctors try to stem internal bleeding in his leg. The bleeding is apparently from recurrence of a hip injury suffered last year in a fall, she said.

Blood type does not matter, she said, because Holman is receiving plasma, not whole blood.

Donations may be made in Holman's name at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael. Blood bank hours are from noon to 6 p.m. Mondays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

$8,500 Blaze Blamed On Fireplace Ashes

Carelessly discarded hot ashes from a fireplace were blamed for a fire that did damage estimated at $8,500 to the home of Fred B. Harrington, 112 Twelve Oaks Hill Drive, San Rafael, yesterday, firemen reported.

The ashes were put in a container and placed in the garage, firemen said. The ashes set the garage on fire and caused extensive smoke damage to the house, firemen said. The fire was reported at 10:50 a.m.

'BLACKMAIL' ABOLISHED

Petaluma Councilmen Cut Permit Strings

By BONNIE BARD

Complaints of "blackmail" and "confiscation" highlighted a heated Petaluma City Council meeting last night at which councilmen voted 4-3 to abandon past policy of using the power of granting use permits to force dedication of land without compensation.

The change in policy came on approval of an appeal by Union Oil Co. of a city planning commission decision which would have granted a permit for a station at D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South only if the company would dedicate 2,805 square feet for future widening of the boulevard.

The occasionally strindgent debate over the station was followed by an equally argumentative discussion of the status of the city's Core Area Plan by Councilman John W. Cavanagh Jr. and Vice Mayor Kenneth J. Colin, who had no trouble voting together to change the dedication policy.

Norman Miller, Union Oil real estate representative, said the amount of the dedication requested was too large and called it "confiscation without compensation." He said his company would conform to setback requests, but felt giving up more than 10 per cent of the corner property was excessive.

Future city plans call for the widening of Petaluma Boulevard South from 70 to 86 feet, taking eight feet from the station site. D Street plans call for widening from 66 to 86 feet, taking 10 feet from the site.

At the Oct. 22 meeting of the planning commission, members withheld the use permit pending dedication of the land.

"This seems like it's blackmail," Councilman Albert L. Battaglia Jr., said. Agreeing with him was Councilman Phillip L. Joerger, who said council policy in taking residential land is to compensate the property owners. "Just because it's a big oil company doesn't change the situation," he said.

City Atty. Edouard E. Robert assured council the dedication request was legal and said it happens all the time. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said someone would have to pay for the property, "if not the individual owner, the whole city."

On the suggestion of Mayor Helen Putnam, the council was about to shelve the matter and take it up in a study session next week when Robert Acorn, a manager of the proposed station, demanded an immediate answer.

"We've been kicked around long enough," he charged, adding if plans aren't known this week, purchase of the land would be impossible.

On a motion by Joerger and seconded by Battaglia, the council voted to allow the building and not to demand dedication. Joining them were Colin and Cavanagh. Casting negative votes were Mayor Putnam and Councilmen David W. Brainerd and Robert S. Lipman.

After the hot debate and close balloting, Cavanagh demanded a status report on the Core Area plan by members serving on the council's downtown committee.

"If we want to have the confidence of the people, we should let them know what the status of the plan is," he said.

"There is no report," said Colin, speaking as committee chairman. "We're still working and the report will be presented when it's finished."

Cavanagh pressed on: "This is the reason for the great lack of confidence in the Core Area plan — I demand an answer."

Colin again refused, saying it was the position of the mayor to call for a committee report and not a councilman.

"It's my prerogative to want to know what's going on," Cavanagh said. "My constituents stop me on the street and ask me what's going on and I have to tell them I don't know."

Mayor Putnam called his accusations untrue and said some segments of the community did, indeed, have confidence in the committee. "They're making an honest effort and are acting in good faith and will present a full report which we will all hear when the findings are complete," she said.

Joerger agreed with Cavanagh and said the committee should at least give some indication of when the report will be completed. "This put us in a bad position," he said. "I'm tired of not having any answers."

"Every day there are no answers, the plan dies a little bit more," Cavanagh said.

Committee member Lipman said the group is now meeting individually with property owners since the results of the questionnaires showed they did not fully understand the plan.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

LIBRARY — Deferred action on merging the city library with the county library system so that the chamber of commerce and other interested groups can study the plan further.

BIDS — Approved plans and specifications and called for bids on paving work for the new Mary Street parking lot adjacent to the new Bank of America building. In doing so, Mary Street will be one-way east from Kentucky Street to Petaluma Boulevard North.

RAILROAD — Approved an agreement with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to share costs of installing drop gates on the D Street and Washington Streets crossings. The city's share will be $26,450, half of which will be reimbursed by the State Public Utilities Commission when the job in completed.

REZONED — Rezoned a 17-acre parcel on the northeast corner of East Washington Street and McDowell Boulevard North from residential to community commercial.

DRAINAGE — Received letter from Otto R. Nation complaining of inadequate drainage at H and Second streets. Engineer David Young said the area has been a trouble spot for many years and recommended enlargement of storm drains and estimated costs at $21,000. He urged the council to consider this in preeparing next year's capital outlay budget.

AIRLINE — Gave support to Let's Fly, Inc. of Santa Rosa in requesting the Public Utilities Commission to reopen hearings on the proposed commuter flight service from Santa Rosa Airport and the Petaluma Sky Ranch to San Francisco and Oakland International Airports.

WEEDS — Approved a resolution declaring that weeds rubbish refuse and dirt on streets, sidewalks and private property will be considered a public nuisance.

GAS PIPES — Authorized the mayor to sign an agreement with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for the installation of pipes at the city's non-solid fill project south of the city. Cost was estimated at $625.

Car Crashes Injure Two

Two persons were treated yesterday at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for minor injuries sustained in separate accidents.

James T. Lee, 19, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James W. Lee of 242 Randolph Drive on the bas, received a sprained left knee when a car driven by retired M/Sgt. Maurice E. Lafferty of 611 Manor Drive, Novato, backed into him in the service station on the base about 2 p.m., according to base officials.

S/Sgt. Warren Richard De Laurie, 36, of 1175 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, was treated at the hospital for a cut lip and mouth injury suffered, Novato police said, when his car, westbound on Ignacio Boulevard, hit an auto belonging to Sgt. Hayward Cormier of 650 Ignacio Boulevard and parked in front of his house at 6:05 p.m.

Council Deadlocks, Planners Get Enchanted Knolls Issue

By ANNE BARDWELL

After nearly three hours of debate and several fruitless attempts to settle the question, the Mill Valley City Council last night once again referred the issue of density for the Enchanted Knolls Ridge back to the city's planning commission.

The council's move came after three attempts to resolve a request for a density increase from five to eight units per acre for 76 acres of undeveloped ridgelands failed to garner more than two supporting votes.

The final motion by councilman Rodric L. Robinson, which passed by a 4-1 vote, asked the planning commission to consider a series of three densities for various sections of the property while maintaining an overall density of 6.5 units per acre. It also specified that the council "would look unfavorably" on any request to place townhouses or apartments on the crest of the ridge.

The densities specified were 4.5 units per acre for 19 acres on the west side of the ridge, 6.5 units per acre for 52 acres on the east side and 17 units per acre for five acres adjacent to the Shelter Bay apartments along Highway 101.

The council, rather reluctantly, also agreed to sit down with the planning commission and developers in a workshop session to study the project's economic feasibility. A workshop session was tentatively scheduled for 9 a.m. Nov. 16 in City Hall.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke was the dissenter, saying: "Any motion that takes three minutes to read, I'll vote no on."

Patiently sitting through the lengthy discussion were more than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents, nearly all of whom were opposed to the density increase.

Developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal told the council that the density increase is necessary to make a "quality development" on the large parcel economically feasible.

"We've owned this property for 10 years and have either studied and scrapped or presented numerous development plans which either weren't feasible or weren't acceptable to the city or to the residents of Enchanted Knolls," Odenthal said. "This time we have a good plan but we need the higher density to make it work."

The density increase request was first brought to the city in June and was denied by the planning commission in July. In August, the council expressed interest in Odenthal's plans and instructed the planning commission to restudy the request.

This the planners did and in September approved the higher density.

By September, the plan had also been approved by directors of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association who had opposed all previous development plans.

However, grass roots opposition developed among Enchanted Knolls residents and by last night the ad hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls had collected 181 signatures on petitions opposing any density increase.

(In a side repercussion, homeowners association directors who supported the Odenthal plan face a recall election Thursday night.)

Last night, attorney Richard Burns, acting as spokesman for Enchanted Knolls residents, told the council the density increase would be "grossly contrary" to the East Mill Valley master plan, would be "contrary to assurances" given residents in the past that the area would be maintained as a single family development and that the development would "scar the entrance to Mill Valley."

Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon said that he believed the property could "physically support" the higher density and that the city's 1965 traffic study indicated it could also support the increased traffic, to which Burns had also objected.

Bragdon also noted that of the 274 residences in Enchanted Knolls, 94 are apartments and 180 single family homes.

He also assured the council that quality of development and location of types of housing could be adequately controlled by the city's ordinances.

Odenthal, in answer to residents' objections, said that only single family development is planned for the west side of the ridge adjacent to existing homes and that the apartments would be located on the east side of the ridge overlooking Highway 101.

Mixed development would bring the city and county an annual tax surplus of $107,000, he said, as compared to a $282,000 annual deficit if the area is developed with only single family homes.

After a half hour of debate and the failure of several motions, came Robinson's motion which was adopted.

In a related matter, the council refused to grant a quarry permit to the Mill Valley School District to remove 58,000 cubic yards of dirt from the ridge area to fill the middle school site on Project 17.

City Eng. Stanley M. Bala said granting of the permit would save the school district $20,000 in hauling costs but would be contrary to the city's existing policy of not allowing quarrying in an area without an approved master plan.

Bala said the soil would be taken from the ridge area in which a main road is planned.

Appointments Controversy Flares Anew

The long simmering disagreement on the Mill Valley City Council as to a mayor's prerogative to make appointments erupted again last night as Mayor Dean N. Meyer attempted to name a Mill Valley miniboard for the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

After Meyer had named his five candidates for the committee, Councilman Robert H. Andresen offered the name of another candidate, W. E. Williams. Andresen's suggestion was immediately backed by Councilman George Wickham who has long fought to limit the mayor's power of appointment power.

SHARP DIALOGUE

Meyer declined the suggestion, saying he wanted to stick with his nominees: Roger J. Fleischmann, Charles P. Guichard, William J. Walker, Mrs. Richard Jessup and Dr. Larry Beck.

"You frequently ask us for names, yet it appears you take little weight of our suggestions," Andresen countered.

"To submit your suggestions at a council meeting after I have announced my selections is a difficult way to accomplish your aim," snapped Meyer, noting, "I have not received a name from any councilman for any of these positions prior to just now."

He suggested the councilmen submit suggestions by letter when vacancies are first announced.

Andresen then moved to table the appointments but was only supported by Wickham. However, after tempers cooled, a move by Councilman Rodric L. Robinson to delay a vote until Nov. 18 was approved.

BIDS ACCEPTED

The council also accepted a low bid of $8,780 by Stanton Bates of Fresno for construction of a retaining wall at 416 Ethel Avenue; a low bid of $6,769 by Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael for construction of a retaining wall at 397 Rose Avenue and a low bid of $5,098 by A. J. Bresnan Co. of San Rafael for drainage improvements on Miller Avenue adjacent to the Tamalpais High School football field.

All other items on the agenda were postponed to 8 p.m. Nov. 18 in city hall because of the late hour.

Corte Madera To Ask Road Widening Fund

A request for $48,000 in state urban thoroughfare funds will be made toward a $101,700 project to widen a section of Tamalpais Drive to four lanes, the Corte Madera Town Council agreed last night.

The widening and beautification project, expected to start next summer, would be from Highway 101 to Pixley Avenue. Besides widening, islands will be constructed where only painted islands now exist. Meadowsweet Drive would also be made one-way angling east off Tamalpais Drive.

Besides the $48,000, town gas tax funds totaling $51,360 and $2,340 from the town's general fund would cover the cost of the work.

In other business last night the council changed its employee medical and hospital coverage policy of paying all of the employee's insurance premium or half of the total for the employee and his dependents.

Instead, the town will pay up to $14 a month toward either of two insurance plans — The Kaiser Plan or the Blue Cross — that the employee chooses. The employee would then pay any additional cost.

The change in policy followed a decision by the town employees association to get health coverage under the state employees retirement system plan rather than from a local insurance program. It will cost the town about $800 more this year, Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said, but the old rates had also been increased.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

CITATION — Formally accepted from the American Automobile Association a citation for an excellent traffic safety record the past two years.

MINIBOARD — Named itself as a "miniboard" committee to advise the Marin County Human Rights Commission on local matters.

SANITARY — Unanimously agreed to offer the Corte Madera Sanitary District the temporary free use of a maintenance employee to fill a district vacancy. The offer is based on the likelihood that the district and the town will merge in the near future and the work would be good on-the-job training for the employee.

HOUSING — Agreed that Floyd D. Allensby and C. D. Parmelee, owners of a two-acre parcel in an unincorporated area on Tamal Vista Boulevard, should present to the planning commission their plans for a 56-unit senior citizen resident housing development when the plans are completed. Zoning and plans would have to worked out through the county, and the owners have agreed to annex to Corte Madera when the parcel's use is established, Usher said.

ACCESS — Declined to review its access policy for the proposed connection road between Paradise and Tamalpais drives. James Smith had requested an exception to the policy — which states that all or none of the adjacent landowners can develop access — to permit him access from his S and L subdivision parcel.

GRADING — Accepted completion of a fill and grading contract with Blasi-Engelke Construction Co. of Healdsburg for first phase of the connection road between Tamalpais and Paradise drives. Contract for building the road (San Clement Drive) will be awarded next spring.

Bolinas Firemen Plan Yule Decor

Fire Chief Jose A. Silva appointed Capt. Edward Letter chairman of the Christmas decorations committee last night at a meeting of the Bolinas Volunteer Firemen, according to Mrs. Alice Silva.

The purchase of two walkie talkies for the department was dicussed but no action taken.

It was decided during winter months, fighting films will be shown at the training meetings.

The members presented a letter of recommendation to Sherman Smith, who recently resigned as secretary of the department but continues to act as assistant chief.

UNIFICATION ASKED

Corte Madera Attempts To Regain Fire Rating

The Corte Madera Town Council last night adopted several recommendations of its own fire committee to attempt to regain a fire rating it lost in September.

It also listened politely to the urging of a special committee of the Corte Madera Volunteer Fire Department that the town hire seven more paid firemen— the council committee recommended hiring only one— and that a student "sleeper" program at the two fire stations be dropped. But the council postponed decisions until 1969-70 budget time.

The lengthy discussion on fire matters also heard Mayor Edward W. Colthurst suggest that the benefits of unifying all fire districts "south from Kentfield" into one large Southern Marin fire district should be investigated.

Adopted on the proposal of the council's fire committee, which comprised Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, were measures to hire one fireman in addition to the two firemen now employed, and to purchase $1,000 in equipment, including several fire hose nossles.

An ordinance also was introduced to make major commercial areas Fire Zone 1 with higher fire prevention requirements for new buildings than the present Fire Zone 2. In addition, the council plan would add three student sleepers to the three already on night duty.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher, said the measures should bring the town back to the Class 6 rating it lost in September after a ruling by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau in San Francisco and estimated they will cost $5,925 from Jan. 1 to the end of this fiscal year.

He originally estimated a cost of $8,000, but the council agreed to not pay the sleepers $3 each for nights which they guarantee they will be on duty.

The decline by Corte Madera from Class 6 to 7 increased commericial fire insurance premiums by about 16 per cent, Usher has pointed out. San Anselmo has a Class 3 rating and Larkspur, Class 5.

The volunteer fire department's committee, headed by Jack W. Forster, department secretary, recommended last night that the town hire one additional fireman now and six more the next fiscal year. The committee estimated the additional expense at $70,000 annually.

Forster said the change would be a departure from the volunteer department concept, but that his committee and Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson felt the town's safety was the important concern.

Forster said the sleeper program was undependable because the students were "quite transient" and it took a minimum of two years for proper fireman training. The department has 19 volunteers.

Colthurst said he would get in touch with Southern Marin Fire districts to discuss the unification possibility.

The combined fire districts have annual budgets totaling $1,264,000, he said after the meeting, and could provide excellent service by utilizing existing fire stations and equipment. He said the district probably would not include Stinson Beach or Bolinas areas.

Teener Let Out Of Jail On Charge

An 18-year-old Terra Linda youth, held in jail since Saturday, was arraigned on a misdemeanor charge of having an open liquor container in his car and released without bail in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Ralph Peder Sewell of 858 Las Pavadas was told to return to court Tuesday to plead to the charge.

Sewell and three 16-year-old boys were stopped after sheriff's deputies saw them smoking what may may have been marijuana cigarettes as they drove through Terra Linda Saturday afternoon, deputies reported.

No evidence of marijuana was found in the car, however, deputies said.

Two of the juveniles were cited on suspicion of having an open liquor container and pssession of liquor by a minor and released to their parents. The third was booked into juvenile hall on the same charges.

Sewell did not make bail of $746.

The incident was one of three which resulted in juvenile citations during the weekend.

Two 15-year-old boys were cited for possession of marijuana after deputies found them with eight cigarettes suspected of being marijuana at 9:25 p.m. Saturday on the grounds of the Lucas Valley Community Center.

Another 15-year-old boy was booked into juvenile hall as a runaway Saturday after deputies found him living at Muir Beach in a shelter he built for himself.

The boy told deputies he had run away from home two weeks before.

Marinwood Rec Board Requests Sidewalk Plans

Sidewalks should be installed along Miller Creek Road in front of the new housing development, Casa Marinwood, Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission members decided last night.

The commissioners, headed by Chairman Ralph E. Tischbern, Community Services District directors to urge county action on the sidewalks along the road west of Marinwood Avenue.

Recreation Director William A. Gordon announced that the Funsters, senior citizens group, will hold its third annual Thanksgiving baked ham buffet and party at noon Nov. 20.

The tiny tots' second fall session will begin next Tuesday. Registration for resident tiny tots will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow, and for nonresidents at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

East Bay Man Killed By Hit-Run Driver

OAKLAND (UPI) — Russell Earhart, 80, Oakland, was struck and killed early today by a woman hit-run driver who carried the body on the hood of her car for 90 feet before swerving to throw it loose and speed away.

The accident occurred at Telegraph Avenue and 40th Street.

Wife Appeals For Blood

Patrick Holman, 34, of 10 La Brea Way, Santa Venetia, needs blood, his wife announced yesterday in a public appeal for help.

Mrs. Holman said her husband has received 36 transfusions of plasma since being admitted to Marin General Hospital last week, and now needs 12 transfusions a day while doctors try to stem internal bleeding in his leg. The bleeding is apparently from recurrence of a hip injury suffered last year in a fall, she said.

Blood type does not matter, she said, because Holman is receiving plasma, not whole blood.

Donations may be made in Holman's name at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael. Blood bank hours are from noon to 6 p.m. Mondays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

$8,500 Blaze Blamed On Fireplace Ashes

Carelessly discarded hot ashes from a fireplace were blamed for a fire that did damage estimated at $8,500 to the home of Fred B. Harrington, 112 Twelve Oaks Hill Drive, San Rafael, yesterday, firemen reported.

The ashes were put in a container and placed in the garage, firemen said. The ashes set the garage on fire and caused extensive smoke damage to the house, firemen said. The fire was reported at 10:50 a.m.

City Council Approves New Fire Station

Proposals to build a new fire station in East Petaluma, enlarge the present central fire station and abandon that at East D and Payran streets were approved last night by the Petaluma City Council.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton recommended a new station be built as soon as possible and set 1970 or 71 as the latest possible date. "We have a very dire situation with all the population growth being on the east side and all the fire fighting equipment on the west side," he said.

BUILDING FUND

Benton recommended land be acquired on McDowell Boulevard North. He said a site could be purchased from $45,000 in the fire department building fund. Any money remaining should be used to enlarge facilities at the central station on D Street, he told the council.

The chief said one or two more bays are needed to house equipment at the central station. He told council this would be even more necessary when the east side station is built, because he would then recommend the station at East D and Payran streets be abandoned with the men and equipment transferring to central.

FLOOR PLANS

In general approval of his recommendations, council retained architect Richard Lieb for $1,200 to develop floor plans, sketches and cost estimates for the central addition. Lieb said the fee would later apply to his fee of eight per cent of the building cost.

Benton estimated cost of the proposed east side station at $90,000. He said the project could probably not be supported from the general tax fund and recommended a bond issue be considered. He also reminded the council that a new station would mean adding seven new firemen at an annual cost of $62,869 and a new fire engine at $35,000.

Rohnert Park Asks Water Lines Funds

Rohnert Park City Council last night approved a request for federal assistance for improvements to the city water system.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan will file a preliminary request with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for $35,000 in matching funds. The project would provide a new, 300,000-gallon tank and a new well.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Found a procedural error had been made in holding a public hearing on the updated building code before its presentation to the council. A new hearing was scheduled for Dec. 2.

MARKET — Approved building plans of Paul Golis for a convenience market on Southwest Boulevard. He told the council he had dropped plans for an adjacent pharmacy.

REDUCTION — Heard that Storer Cable Television, Inc. agreed to a reduction of the city rate from $4.75 to $4.56 per month.

LIBRARY — Gave Callinan authority to begin negotiations to merge the city library with the Sonoma County library system.

STOP SIGNS — Denied a request from the John Reed School Parent-Teacher Association that stop signs be placed in front of the school. Police and fire chief Brian Koch recommended the denial, saying the signs weren't necessary at this time and would cause problems rather than solve them.

TREES — Authorized Callinan to cooperate with the chamber of commerce in the annual tree-planting project. An estimated 300 trees will be added to the city.

Coffee Stolen From Cooperative Nursery

The Larkspur-Corte Madera Parents Cooperative Nursery at 56 Mohawk Avenue is minus three pounds of coffee in a burglary last night, Corte Madera police reported today.

Officers said entry to the children nursery's office was via an open window. The coffee was removed from a locker, they said.

'BLACKMAIL' ABOLISHED

Petaluma Councilmen Cut Permit Strings

By BONNIE BARD

Complaints of "blackmail" and "confiscation" highlighted a heated Petaluma City Council meeting last night at which councilmen voted 4-3 to abandon past policy of using the power of granting use permits to force dedication of land without compensation.

The change in policy came on approval of an appeal by Union Oil Co. of a city planning commission decision which would have granted a permit for a station at D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South only if the company would dedicate 2,805 square feet for future widening of the boulevard.

The occasionally strindgent debate over the station was followed by an equally argumentative discussion of the status of the city's Core Area Plan by Councilman John W. Cavanagh Jr. and Vice Mayor Kenneth J. Colin, who had no trouble voting together to change the dedication policy.

Norman Miller, Union Oil real estate representative, said the amount of the dedication requested was too large and called it "confiscation without compensation." He said his company would conform to setback requests, but felt giving up more than 10 per cent of the corner property was excessive.

Future city plans call for the widening of Petaluma Boulevard South from 70 to 86 feet, taking eight feet from the station site. D Street plans call for widening from 66 to 86 feet, taking 10 feet from the site.

At the Oct. 22 meeting of the planning commission, members withheld the use permit pending dedication of the land.

"This seems like it's blackmail," Councilman Albert L. Battaglia Jr., said. Agreeing with him was Councilman Phillip L. Joerger, who said council policy in taking residential land is to compensate the property owners. "Just because it's a big oil company doesn't change the situation," he said.

City Atty. Edouard E. Robert assured council the dedication request was legal and said it happens all the time. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said someone would have to pay for the property, "if not the individual owner, the whole city."

On the suggestion of Mayor Helen Putnam, the council was about to shelve the matter and take it up in a study session next week when Robert Acorn, a manager of the proposed station, demanded an immediate answer.

"We've been kicked around long enough," he charged, adding if plans aren't known this week, purchase of the land would be impossible.

On a motion by Joerger and seconded by Battaglia, the council voted to allow the building and not to demand dedication. Joining them were Colin and Cavanagh. Casting negative votes were Mayor Putnam and Councilmen David W. Brainerd and Robert S. Lipman.

After the hot debate and close balloting, Cavanagh demanded a status report on the Core Area plan by members serving on the council's downtown committee.

"If we want to have the confidence of the people, we should let them know what the status of the plan is," he said.

"There is no report," said Colin, speaking as committee chairman. "We're still working and the report will be presented when it's finished."

Cavanagh pressed on: "This is the reason for the great lack of confidence in the Core Area plan — I demand an answer."

Colin again refused, saying it was the position of the mayor to call for a committee report and not a councilman.

"It's my prerogative to want to know what's going on," Cavanagh said. "My constituents stop me on the street and ask me what's going on and I have to tell them I don't know."

Mayor Putnam called his accusations untrue and said some segments of the community did, indeed, have confidence in the committee. "They're making an honest effort and are acting in good faith and will present a full report which we will all hear when the findings are complete," she said.

Joerger agreed with Cavanagh and said the committee should at least give some indication of when the report will be completed. "This put us in a bad position," he said. "I'm tired of not having any answers."

"Every day there are no answers, the plan dies a little bit more," Cavanagh said.

Committee member Lipman said the group is now meeting individually with property owners since the results of the questionnaires showed they did not fully understand the plan.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

LIBRARY — Deferred action on merging the city library with the county library system so that the chamber of commerce and other interested groups can study the plan further.

BIDS — Approved plans and specifications and called for bids on paving work for the new Mary Street parking lot adjacent to the new Bank of America building. In doing so, Mary Street will be one-way east from Kentucky Street to Petaluma Boulevard North.

RAILROAD — Approved an agreement with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to share costs of installing drop gates on the D Street and Washington Streets crossings. The city's share will be $26,450, half of which will be reimbursed by the State Public Utilities Commission when the job in completed.

REZONED — Rezoned a 17-acre parcel on the northeast corner of East Washington Street and McDowell Boulevard North from residential to community commercial.

DRAINAGE — Received letter from Otto R. Nation complaining of inadequate drainage at H and Second streets. Engineer David Young said the area has been a trouble spot for many years and recommended enlargement of storm drains and estimated costs at $21,000. He urged the council to consider this in preeparing next year's capital outlay budget.

AIRLINE — Gave support to Let's Fly, Inc. of Santa Rosa in requesting the Public Utilities Commission to reopen hearings on the proposed commuter flight service from Santa Rosa Airport and the Petaluma Sky Ranch to San Francisco and Oakland International Airports.

WEEDS — Approved a resolution declaring that weeds rubbish refuse and dirt on streets, sidewalks and private property will be considered a public nuisance.

GAS PIPES — Authorized the mayor to sign an agreement with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for the installation of pipes at the city's non-solid fill project south of the city. Cost was estimated at $625.

'City That Knows How' Uses Bay For Cess Pool

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week took what may be viewed as a great step forward — for San Francisco.

The board unanimously approved a resolution calling for the "city that knows how" to quit dumping raw sewage into the Bay — within 12 years.

Even that was hedged carefully. The resolution avoids any commitment for the city to pay for the necessary sewage treatment facilities, estimated to cost as much as $355 million. It says the money "must be derived from revenue sources not presently available" to the city. Just what that means, you guess with us.

THIS ACTION — if it can be called that — by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors points up the unequal treatment accorded communities surrounding the Bay by the state government.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor, the Bay Region Water Pollution Control Board, have been trying for years to get San Francisco to do something about its lack of sewage treatment facilities. But the board's persuasion has mostly brought no response at all. This time, it has brought a response that would be laughable were it not such a serious matter: a resolution calling for doing within 12 years what should have been done at least 50 years ago — if somebody else puts up the money.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor have not taken brush-offs from jurisdictions other than the City and County of San Francisco. The board has been extremely insistent, even threatening when it appeared necessary, for correction of sewage facilities in all the counties surrounding the Bay — except San Francisco.

Largely as result of its efforts, numerous sanitary districts in Marin and other counties have spent millions of dollars, put up by the taxpayers, to lay sewer lines and build sewage treatment facilities.

IT IS IRONIC that the various conservation groups which have worked themselves into a dither over the possibility of someone's filling a few acres of smelly swamp anywhere along the Bay's shores have seemed unperturbed over the fact that San Francisco, a city of three quarters of a million people, continues to use the Bay as its cesspool.

The City of San Francisco has never had an adequate sewage disposal system. It started polluting the Bay before James Marshall discovered gold at Coloma. It has been at it ever since.

San Francisco has floated bond issues to rebuild a temporary 1915 fair building, to build a baseball park for a New York-capitalized ball club at probably the most miserable location that could be found anywhere in the Bay Area, and for many other similarly superfluous purposes.

The governing boards of "the city that knows how" have never felt, however, that its citizens should be taxed to keep their neighborhood sanitary. And the resolution adopted by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week makes it evident this attitude has not changed.

Missile Base On Wolfback Ridge Could Be Boon To Marin City

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

An antimissile base will locate on Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito or on Angel Island in Tiburon, despite mush heated local opposition, if the Army decides this is where it must go.

Some like to think that the local citizenry should decide the matter, but this simply is not the way it will be done.

But opponents of the base, unimpressed by the $2 million to $3 million annual payroll its personnel would bring, might at least consider the social advantage offered by the need to house some 300 to 700 families that would be attached to the base.

The base would not be large enough to house dependents, so the question is, where would they go?

HOW ABOUT Marin City? An influx into that community of white residents long has been sought, but only a handful have come.

The mere details of how this could be done are for someone else to figure out. One approach could be for the federal government to lease housing in Marin City for families from the base.

This modest proposal could be hard on some of the opponents of the base, since they tend to be the same persons who like to be identified as progressive and liberal in racial matters.

AN ELECTION postscript is the discovery that former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign biography was written by a former San Rafael and Novato resident, John J. Synon.

Synon once served as executive secretary to Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, then was appointed a member of the state Industrial Accident Commission.

In the early 1950s, he was elected to the Marin County Republican Central Committee, and in 1958 tried unsuccessfully for the First Congressional District seat on the GOP ticket.

The same year, Synon listed Walter Reuther among labor leaders who "should be put in San Quentin or Sing Sing for their evil influence on American life."

Synon then moved to Richmond, Va., and has worked as a lobbyist in Washington for a group funded by the White Citizens Councils of Mississippi.

STATE SEN. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and other powerful senators who traditionally have run the Senate may find themselves out in the cold when their power is tested in January by a new Legislature.

It's not that McCarthy has done anything, but rather that the leader of the old guard, Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, has angered the growing group of liberals in the Senate by endorsing Max Rafferty. Without support from some liberal senators relatively new to the Senate, Burns could be pushed out — and McCarthy with him.

Public opinion's always in advance of the law. — John Galsworthy.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

Nov. 5, 1958

Sausalito City Council raised the possibility that the old lumber schooner Lassen and seven or eight condemned arks on the Sausalito waterfront would have to be razed because they were unsafe for occupancy.

The Mariner, student newspaper at College of Marin, disclosed the existence of a group on campus called "Young Nazis of Marin," but three students said story was "just a gag."

20 YEARS AGO

Nov. 5, 1948

College of Marin and Santa Rosa Junior College signed a pact to quell inter-school warfare which annually accompanied their "Big Game."

County Supervisor Robert H. Trumbull of Novato announced that the new $232,000 road from Point Reyes to Hicks Valley in northern Marin was completed.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hippies In Hospitals —Who Would Pay?

I read with consternation a news item in the Independent-Journal of Oct. 25 about hippies. Sen. John McCarthy, with the endorsement of Mr. "Bud" Baar, wishes to pass a law to force admission of hippies into hospitals for treatment.

At Marin General Hospital, for instance, this would cost $55 per day per hippie so they could have plush care for bathing and delousing — they would love it.

If they had in mind hospitalization for communicable diseases, we already have this on the law books and enforced by our health officer.

Whom do you think would pay the bill? If you don't know, look in the mirror.

On election day vote for level headed candidates.

Campus Opinion Of 'Nigger' Essay

I was more than a little appalled by the perspective of your editorial, Oct. 18, concerning the recent distribution of Farber's essay "The Student as Nigger" on various college campuses. First let me clarify my position as a student with regard to this matter. Having read "The Student as Nigger," I judge it an essay cleverly but poorly written and not worthy of serious study as literature. Its free use of obscenities appeals to the younger mind, but to the more perceptive, it detracts from the validity of the issues raised by assuming an immature level of dissertation.

But equally as sensationalistic was your reaction to and evaluation of the implications of its appearance on campuses. Since you devoted the bulk of your article to the crisis at the University of Minnesota, I propose to offer a more enlightened analysis of both what happened and what was the true tenor of feeling on that campus. In the first place, please understand that Dr. Clark did not "forbid" his associates to use the Farber essay, he merely stated he felt its use would be imprudent, "especially in an election year" (Minnesota Daily). Its subsequent use in the classroom was not a violation of authority, and in a later departmental meeting, Dr. Clark clarified himself by stating that he would not censure its use by any of the faculty. As for the 200-student protest rally, I happened to be coming out of Vincent Hall after it began below the steps, and not only was the actual number of protesters well under 200— which is a small enough number on a campus of over 40,000 — but those who spoke the loudest were also the youngest. . . .

Yes, people were angry about "academic freedom," but most of the students found the essay childish and certainly did not feel that "the jargon of the gutter has become the language of higher education," to quote your own analysis. One associate who offered the essay to his freshman class found in their reactions both disgust and boredom. . . .

Dr. Hage, by upholding the publication of Farber's essay, was merely affirming the fact that it cannot be as dangerous to trust young people to have a reasonable amount of discernment as it is to shelter them from ideas and words.

Bible Not Banned; Cleaver Shouldn't Be

Mr. Jack A. Binns Jr. of Mill Valley's letter to you (Oct. 29) is the latest to volunteer to research and recommend which of the several thousand different readings of the Old Testament and the hundreds of thousands of the New shall be in our schools.

Secondly, are we not yet able to see through that canard which claims prayer and the Bible have been barred from our public schools?

Prayer to the truth—as God is called in the Gospels — for a better understanding of truth happens daily in our schools, evident to all who stop to analyze. No pupil nor teacher can be prevented from using it and it is demonstrably effective.

No law or rule prevents study of the Bible in schools. It would be very enlightening, but as long as so much controversy exists as to how the pupils and their teacher may interpret what it says, schools are wise to avoid its use.

As for letting Mr. Cleaver speak to students — isn't it for the schools to decide, largely? . . .

Insofar as I can see, Mr. Cleaver falls far short of a teacher's ability to bestow academic credits upon students, but he is obviously an apt subject for students' study and inquiry into the social problems facing us today to the purpose of correcting the conditions that cause them. . . .

Good taste would have us reject and boycott his obscenities and insults, but wisdom bades us return and to try in spite of these to glean from him a message which might help us to uplift mankind.

'Breakthrough' Fine, Constructive Work

Thank you for the fine coverage of "Project Breakthrough" on the front page of Saturday's (Oct. 26) paper and for the action picture of its dedication ceremony on Monday.

Congratulations to 10-year-old prize-winner John Times and to project director Lanny Berry. Though I do not know these people personally and have no direct connection with the organization, I do have an active appreciation of their constructive work in facing and trying to solve the problems of our day and I am glad to see their efforts highlighted by your paper.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE FOURTH TIME this year that Mrs. Kadison cracked up the family station wagon, she at least came up with a novel alibi: "I was carefully following the white line in the road on Route 22 — and the white line turned out to be a skunk!"

Asked to use the word "paradox" in a sentence, little Pulsifier Boles, of South Bend, came up with "On our farm we've got 200 chickens, six geese, and a paradox."

Hard Road To Peace; Korea Provides Proof

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

The fact that President Johnson could announce a bombing halt over North Vietnam is a victory for patient diplomacy, but peace in Vietnam still could be far away.

Korea provides the example. Armistice talks in Korea began July 10, 1951, and were not concluded until July 27, 1953, after 575 meetings.

No South Korean representative was present at the armistice signing.

THE KOREAN armistice provided that within three months a political conference should be held to negotiate the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea and a "peaceful settlement of the Korean question . . ."

That conference never was held.

A subsequent Geneva conference in 1954, which, ironically also took up the question of French withdrawal from Indo-China and marked the beginning of U.S. involvement there, settled nothing.

It called for a unified Korea through general elections to be held under United Nations supervision. The elections never were held.

The Korean War cost more than 33,000 American lives and it was scarcely a week ago, 15 years after signing of the armistice, that another American was killed there while on guard duty along the truce line.

The United States continues to maintain 50,000 troops there.

IN SOUTH VIETNAM, as in Korea, the South Vietnamese leaders will be but reluctant partners in the peace talks.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky, believe they have a military victory within their grasp and fear an American sellout.

The could disrupt the talks at any time, either through demonstrations, by an unauthorized attack against the North or by a walkout.

The hope is that they are sensible men who realize they cannot go it alone.

Nor is there evidence that despite some 400,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed since 1962, the Communists have changed their position.

NORTH VIETNAMESE President Ho Chi Minh felt he was cheated by the French after World War II and cheated again at the Geneva conference which also called for unification of Vietnam after free elections. Those elections also never were held.

There is no indication he has retreated from the four points he has declared can be the only conditions for peace talks. These are:

—Withdrawal of U.S. forces and recognition of Vietnam's territorial integrity.

—Respect for the military provisions of the Geneva treaty barring foreign forces.

—South Vietnam's internal problems to be settled under the guidance of the Hanoi-supported and controlled National Liberation Front.

—Reunification of North and South Vietnam without outside interference.

The bombing pause and a lull in the ground fighting are said to have been achieved as result of secret talks in Paris during a coffee break. Many more cups will be consumed before there can be a peace in Vietnam.

Lesson Of Cuba Crisis Brought Home By Book

(Reprinted from
St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Reading again the frightening story of the 1962 Cuba missiles crisis, this time as seen through Robert Kennedy's eyes, we are astonished at how little attention was paid by the policy-makers to the key question: did Khrushchev's installation of offensive missiles 90 miles from our shores actually change the world military balance so greatly as to warrant going to the brink of nuclear holocaust?

Only a trifling minority of the strategic planners appears even to have raised the question, which evidently never got serious consideration. Yet if it was true, as we suspect, that the Cuba missiles made no essential difference in the military equation, according to which with or without Cuba Russia had the capacity to destroy us and we to destroy them, then it follows that our two nations came within a whisker of nuclear war for psychological and political, rather than security, reasons.

THIS UNDOUBTEDLY is what President Kennedy had in mind when he told his brother he would have been impeached if he had failed to act. He would have been impeached not because missiles in Cuba placed the United States in any more jeopardy than it was already in, but because in the political context of the time the American people simply would not tolerate rockets aimed at their cities from a point so close at hand. We insisted on the right to aim missiles at Soviet cities from adjacent Turkey, and from submarines in all the seas, but were righteously outraged to be placed in the same situation ourselves.

A special irony surrounded the question of our Turkey-based missiles. They had become obsolete, and President Kennedy several months before the Cuba crisis had directed the State Department to arrange for their removal. The State Department did nothing. During the Cuba crisis Adlai Stevenson suggested that we might offer to remove our missiles from Turkey in exchange for removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba. He was excoriated as a softy; any such deal was rejected as a sign of weakness.

Yet, as Robert Kennedy reveals in the book now published by McCall's magazine, he himself privately assured the Soviet ambassador that the Turkish bases would be dismantled if the Russians got out of Cuba. In other words, our government feared losing face by openly making a trade which it secretly acknowledged to be reasonable. And it feared losing face because of the irrational climate of American opinion, the product of years of cold war.

IT IS THIS climate of opinion, with its admixture of self-righteousness, doctrinaire anti-communism and national arrogance, its tendency to set up one standard for ourselves and another for somebody else, that must concern Americans if we would avoid future nuclear brinks as hair-raising as the Cuba crisis. The country can be eternally grateful to President Kennedy and his brother for their cool and prudent choice of responses then. They had to resist pressure from the Joint Chiefs of Staff who wanted the response to be a surprise blitzkrieg on Cuba.

Some military leaders even proposed the use of nuclear weapons; nearly all of them, judging by Robert Kennedy's account, were ready and eager for the big war with Russia, which would have killed millions of civilians on both sides. In stemming this madness, and insisting on a blockade which gave the Russians scope for retreat, the two Kennedys earned highest marks for diplomatic skill and wrote a message that should be engraved in granite: never turn over policy-making to the Pentagon.

But we need to beware not only of the Pentagon but of the jingoistic excesses of cold war psychology. The Cuba crisis had its earliest beginnings in an American political climate which tolerated the pursuit of national ends by the use of military power, and encouraged intervention in other people's national lives. Castro asked for Soviet military aid in the first place because the United States had attempted to invade Cuba, in order to dictate to the Cuban people what kind of government they should have. When Americans give up the idea of policing the world, and cease to regard ourselves as the arbiter of other nations' political development, and abandon armed power as an instrument of diplomacy, we shall have learned the real lesson of the Cuba missiles crisis.

Dead Letter Office, Airplane Mixup, And Celebration Fete

The following came to us from an inside source:

Guess who forgot to change the address of his incoming mail! Right! Postmaster Harry Overly. He is still getting his magazines and other mail addressed at the First Street number.

WHEN GNOSS FIELD was dedicated, approximately 100 people waited in the heat for a plane bearing Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and County Supervisor William A. Gnoss to come to the airport to cut a ribbon suspended between two ballons.

Gnoss had flown to Santa Rosa, where he was to meet Clausen, so the two could fly back together to cut the ribbon.

The time for the ribbon cutting came and went. Clausen had not arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, it was reported.

Clausen it turned out, had been at another meeting and was late starting for the Santa Rosa Airport. The person driving him there missed the road and made the congressman even later. So when he arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, he took his plane and headed for Gnoss Field, leaving Supervisor Gnoss waiting there.

Clausen, in his plane, sat at the end of the runway at Gnoss Field while an other plane with Supervisor Gnoss flew down from Santa Rosa and cut the ribbon.

At the south end of the runway, Clausen got out of his plane and into that Gnoss was in. The congressman, a pilot, then taxied the plane up to the speakers' platform.

Learning of the mixup, chairman Ernest N. Kettenhoffen of the board of supervisors told the crowd that Clausen was the only person he knew who could fly two planes from Santa Rosa at the same time.

IN A FEW DAYS, the board of Western Weekend Inc. will meet to decide the fate of that celebration. The fiesta has had its ups and downs — and lately more downs than ups.

It was an outgrowth of a parade by the Novato Horsemen's Association. The Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce handled it for years and it grew. When it was too large for the Jaycees to handle, the celebration was incorporated, with representatives of the civic service organizations on its board.

A year ago it lost money and the community held several money-raising events to pay the indebtedness. This summer, it made money, but interest has been declining.

If the board of directors votes to abandon it, the chamber of commerce will make a study to see what type of celebration, if any, the community should have in its place.

The Novato Horsemen's Association, whose annual parade and rodeo started the celebration, will still hold a rodeo, according to its officers.

Crews To Sniff Out Illegal Sewers With Smoke Bombs

San Rafael City Council last night approved the throwing of smoke bombs into sewer manholes to smoke out illegal connections into the lines.

Dominic J. Selmi, an engineer with Dan Coleman Associates of Greenbrae, who is conducting a survey of the sewer system for the city, sought permission for the smoke bombs.

Selmi explained the procedure would be to throw a smoke grenade in a manhole and "blow the smoke up the sewer."

If everything is normal the smoke will come out in vents, but if smoke comes out in homes, "we'll find illegal connections."

There might be roof drains, backyard drains or sump drains hooked up to the system, he said.

The intent is to reduce infiltration into the lines, Selmi said.

Old lines in the Bayview Street-Ross Street-Clark Street-Clorinda Avenue sector were checked by running a television camera in the lines, he said.

"We found they looked almost as good as the day they went in," Selmi said. This dispels the old theory that "water was coming in the joints, he contended.

In past rainy seasons San Rafael has been plagued by sewage popping out of manholes and catch basins onto streets, and it was attributed to storm waters getting into the lines.

Councilmen approved the use of smoke bombs on the condition that it is safe and residents in the area are given ample notice.

"It could scare a lot of people if they weren't notified," said Councilman Louis H. Barr.

Selmi said he planned to use the smoke bombs to check along Bayview Street from Marin to Clark streets, along Clark to Clorinda Avenue and "up Clorinda."

Mental Health Chief To Present Report

A report on the new Community Mental Health Center will be given by the director, Dr. Donald P. Wilson, to the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board at 8 p.m tomorrow at Marin General Hospital.

Also on the board's agenda is discussion of the county's 1969-70 mental health plan. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., president of the board of directors, and Daniel A. Meyerson, director of the Marin Institute will discuss the institute's relation to the county's drug abuse program.

ART BUCHWALD

Election Campaign Could Have Selected Husband For Jackie

WASHINGTON — Of all the events of 1968, none has had more of an effect on the American people than the marriage of Jackie Kennedy to Greek zillionaire Aristotle Onassis. People who had no opinion on the Vietnamese war, the crisis of the cities or the youth revolution all had something to say about Mrs. Kennedy's nuptials.

It seems to me that what Jackie Kennedy didn't realize was that she was the property of the American people and, therefore, that she had no right to choose a husband on her own. If Mrs. Kennedy wanted to get married again, she should have informed the American public of this, either on the Johnny Carson show or the Bell Telephone Hour, and let the American people choose a husband for her.

ONCE SHE MADE her intentions known, a special Republican and Democratic convention would have been called and candidates would have been nomiated for her to marry.

After the nominations, each candidate would have campaigned for Jackie's hand. They would have explained what they would do for Jackie as a husband, where they would live and how they would raise Jackie's children.

The candidates would have bought television time to let the public know where they stood, not only on the marriage, but also on the public issues of the day.

They also would have traveled across the nation so that Americans could see them in the flesh and decide for themselves which candidate would be the best mate for the former First Lady.

Not only would the public have listened to the platform of the men it thought were suitable for Jackie's hand, but people would also have decided the complicated questions of religion, age, and nationality of the husband-to-be.

SINCE THEY HAD so much a stake, the public would have taken far more interest in this campaign than they have in the presidential election.

The climax of the race for Jackie's husband would have been a nationally televised debate between the candidates, so the electorate could see for itself how each man would behave under pressure.

Finally, on election day, Americans from all walks of life would have gone to the polls and voted for the person they wanted to stand at Jackie's side.

In case neither candidate got a majority of the electoral votes, then the House of Representatives would have chosen the man privileged to be Jackie Kennedy's husband.

ONCE THE MAJORITY of the American people had made their decision, we all would have abided by it, with no one complaining that he didn't have a vote in Mrs. Kennedy's marital affairs.

This would have been the American way of doing things Perhaps Mr. Onassis might have won the election; perhaps he might not. But at least the election would have prevented the confusion and despair now rampant in the United States over the Kennedy-Onassis wedding.

Even those who are on Jackie's side admit that it wasn't whom she married, but the way she did it, that has caused so much concern in this country.

No woman of Mrs. Kennedy's stature has a right to decide affairs of the heart by herself. Her marriage was everybody's business, and the least she could have done was poll the American public before she made a decision that affects the lives and pocketbooks of us all.

Veterans Asked To Return Forms On Annual Income

Veterans or their dependents who are drawing Veterans Administration benefits will lose their pensions unless they fill out and return the annual income questionnaires mailed out this month, veterans service officer James V. Burdick announced today.

The questionnaires were mailed last Friday with this month's checks and should be in the hands of all veterans pension recipients, said Burdick.

"Due to recent changes in the law, it is vital that the report be accurate, because the amount of benefit paid will be computed in $100 increments," Burdick point out. "The questionnaires must be returned to the Veterans Administration by Jan. 15, 1969, or the payments will stop."

He urged all beneficiaries to come to his office for assistance prior to the Jan. 15 deadline. The Veterans Service Office is located in Room 422 of the Civic Center.

World production of woven cloth in 1963 amounted to around 90 billion square yards or 30 square yards per person.

San Rafael To Purchase Fire Snorkel

San Rafael City Council last night appropriated $25,000 toward the purchase of a fire engine with an 85-foot snorkel estimated to cost $75,000.

Fire Chief Vance Trivett said that because of increasing commercial and industrial development in the Terra Linda area, such as Northgate Industrial park, the department needs an additional truck.

Running a ladder truck out of headquarters in downtown San Rafael to the Emporium store takes from 10 to 12 minutes, "and we can't reach some of the roofs," the chief contended.

Not only is the Northgate Industrial Park "rapidly filling up," but there are a number of apartments in the Terra Linda area, he noted.

Councilmen authorized the chief to prepare plans and specifications for the new snorkel truck, and agreed that $25,000 be taken from reserve funds for it and that payments should be $25,000 a year for a three-year period.

Councilmen also agreed that a dispute over a building design between the Northgate Industrial Park Architectural Review Committee and the builder, Ronald F. Antonioli, was beyond their jurisdiction.

The council sustained the planning commission's decision to grant Antonioli architectural approval of the planned office building at 25-35 Mitchell Boulevard, the entrance to Northgate Industrial Park.

The San Rafael City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Adopted the 1967 edition of the building code and amended the municipal code to provide a stronger definition of dangerous buildings.

OFFICE MOVING — Gave William Watson, owner of two medical buildings at 600 Mission Avenue, permission to move them to 16 Marion Court.

PROPERTY SALE — Agreed to sell a 15-foot strip of city property along the north side of Fourth Street from Mary to Union streets, but retain easements.

Reagan Praises Employee's Act

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has praised a state employee who gave the shirt off his back to a jobless youth who was looking for work.

Reagan said yesterday a staff member of the Youth Opportunity Center in Sacramento exchanged his own shirt and necktie for the youth's T-shirt so the youngster could make a more favorable impression during a job interview with a prospective employer.

In a letter to State Employment Director Peter Weinberger, Reagan said the employee, whom he did not identify, served "above and beyond the call of duty."

The gentle nudger

I AM LOVED

Even the best of maidenly schemes can fall a little behind schedule.

If he's not chasing quite as fast as you're running, it could be he's a bit insecure. Perhaps all he needs is a gentle reminder that you are there...and care.

To get your romance back on the proper time table, give him an "I AM LOVED" button. It's a very proper gift. Not too expensive (free, as a matter of fact). And it packs quite a wallop!

When you come in to pick it up, have a look at the Wells "I AM LOVED" jewelry for men...all very personal gifts of real silver and gold ($5. to $25.) They say all that you need to say...and more. Top the gift wrap with the button, then hand it to him with a wink and your prettiest smile.

If you mention where you got it, he might just retort in kind with a companion "I AM LOVED" selection of Wells jewelry for girls. After that, the rest of the romance is up to you.

'City That Knows How' Uses Bay For Cess Pool

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week took what may be viewed as a great step forward — for San Francisco.

The board unanimously approved a resolution calling for the "city that knows how" to quit dumping raw sewage into the Bay — within 12 years.

Even that was hedged carefully. The resolution avoids any commitment for the city to pay for the necessary sewage treatment facilities, estimated to cost as much as $355 million. It says the money "must be derived from revenue sources not presently available" to the city. Just what that means, you guess with us.

THIS ACTION — if it can be called that — by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors points up the unequal treatment accorded communities surrounding the Bay by the state government.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor, the Bay Region Water Pollution Control Board, have been trying for years to get San Francisco to do something about its lack of sewage treatment facilities. But the board's persuasion has mostly brought no response at all. This time, it has brought a response that would be laughable were it not such a serious matter: a resolution calling for doing within 12 years what should have been done at least 50 years ago — if somebody else puts up the money.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor have not taken brush-offs from jurisdictions other than the City and County of San Francisco. The board has been extremely insistent, even threatening when it appeared necessary, for correction of sewage facilities in all the counties surrounding the Bay — except San Francisco.

Largely as result of its efforts, numerous sanitary districts in Marin and other counties have spent millions of dollars, put up by the taxpayers, to lay sewer lines and build sewage treatment facilities.

IT IS IRONIC that the various conservation groups which have worked themselves into a dither over the possibility of someone's filling a few acres of smelly swamp anywhere along the Bay's shores have seemed unperturbed over the fact that San Francisco, a city of three quarters of a million people, continues to use the Bay as its cesspool.

The City of San Francisco has never had an adequate sewage disposal system. It started polluting the Bay before James Marshall discovered gold at Coloma. It has been at it ever since.

San Francisco has floated bond issues to rebuild a temporary 1915 fair building, to build a baseball park for a New York-capitalized ball club at probably the most miserable location that could be found anywhere in the Bay Area, and for many other similarly superfluous purposes.

The governing boards of "the city that knows how" have never felt, however, that its citizens should be taxed to keep their neighborhood sanitary. And the resolution adopted by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week makes it evident this attitude has not changed.

Missile Base On Wolfback Ridge Could Be Boon To Marin City

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

An antimissile base will locate on Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito or on Angel Island in Tiburon, despite mush heated local opposition, if the Army decides this is where it must go.

Some like to think that the local citizenry should decide the matter, but this simply is not the way it will be done.

But opponents of the base, unimpressed by the $2 million to $3 million annual payroll its personnel would bring, might at least consider the social advantage offered by the need to house some 300 to 700 families that would be attached to the base.

The base would not be large enough to house dependents, so the question is, where would they go?

HOW ABOUT Marin City? An influx into that community of white residents long has been sought, but only a handful have come.

The mere details of how this could be done are for someone else to figure out. One approach could be for the federal government to lease housing in Marin City for families from the base.

This modest proposal could be hard on some of the opponents of the base, since they tend to be the same persons who like to be identified as progressive and liberal in racial matters.

AN ELECTION postscript is the discovery that former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign biography was written by a former San Rafael and Novato resident, John J. Synon.

Synon once served as executive secretary to Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, then was appointed a member of the state Industrial Accident Commission.

In the early 1950s, he was elected to the Marin County Republican Central Committee, and in 1958 tried unsuccessfully for the First Congressional District seat on the GOP ticket.

The same year, Synon listed Walter Reuther among labor leaders who "should be put in San Quentin or Sing Sing for their evil influence on American life."

Synon then moved to Richmond, Va., and has worked as a lobbyist in Washington for a group funded by the White Citizens Councils of Mississippi.

STATE SEN. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and other powerful senators who traditionally have run the Senate may find themselves out in the cold when their power is tested in January by a new Legislature.

It's not that McCarthy has done anything, but rather that the leader of the old guard, Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, has angered the growing group of liberals in the Senate by endorsing Max Rafferty. Without support from some liberal senators relatively new to the Senate, Burns could be pushed out — and McCarthy with him.

Hippies In Hospitals —Who Would Pay?

I read with consternation a news item in the Independent-Journal of Oct. 25 about hippies. Sen. John McCarthy, with the endorsement of Mr. "Bud" Baar, wishes to pass a law to force admission of hippies into hospitals for treatment.

At Marin General Hospital, for instance, this would cost $55 per day per hippie so they could have plush care for bathing and delousing — they would love it.

If they had in mind hospitalization for communicable diseases, we already have this on the law books and enforced by our health officer.

Whom do you think would pay the bill? If you don't know, look in the mirror.

On election day vote for level headed candidates.

Campus Opinion Of 'Nigger' Essay

I was more than a little appalled by the perspective of your editorial, Oct. 18, concerning the recent distribution of Farber's essay "The Student as Nigger" on various college campuses. First let me clarify my position as a student with regard to this matter. Having read "The Student as Nigger," I judge it an essay cleverly but poorly written and not worthy of serious study as literature. Its free use of obscenities appeals to the younger mind, but to the more perceptive, it detracts from the validity of the issues raised by assuming an immature level of dissertation.

But equally as sensationalistic was your reaction to and evaluation of the implications of its appearance on campuses. Since you devoted the bulk of your article to the crisis at the University of Minnesota, I propose to offer a more enlightened analysis of both what happened and what was the true tenor of feeling on that campus. In the first place, please understand that Dr. Clark did not "forbid" his associates to use the Farber essay, he merely stated he felt its use would be imprudent, "especially in an election year" (Minnesota Daily). Its subsequent use in the classroom was not a violation of authority, and in a later departmental meeting, Dr. Clark clarified himself by stating that he would not censure its use by any of the faculty. As for the 200-student protest rally, I happened to be coming out of Vincent Hall after it began below the steps, and not only was the actual number of protesters well under 200— which is a small enough number on a campus of over 40,000 — but those who spoke the loudest were also the youngest. . . .

Yes, people were angry about "academic freedom," but most of the students found the essay childish and certainly did not feel that "the jargon of the gutter has become the language of higher education," to quote your own analysis. One associate who offered the essay to his freshman class found in their reactions both disgust and boredom. . . .

Dr. Hage, by upholding the publication of Farber's essay, was merely affirming the fact that it cannot be as dangerous to trust young people to have a reasonable amount of discernment as it is to shelter them from ideas and words.

Bible Not Banned; Cleaver Shouldn't Be

Mr. Jack A. Binns Jr. of Mill Valley's letter to you (Oct. 29) is the latest to volunteer to research and recommend which of the several thousand different readings of the Old Testament and the hundreds of thousands of the New shall be in our schools.

Secondly, are we not yet able to see through that canard which claims prayer and the Bible have been barred from our public schools?

Prayer to the truth—as God is called in the Gospels — for a better understanding of truth happens daily in our schools, evident to all who stop to analyze. No pupil nor teacher can be prevented from using it and it is demonstrably effective.

No law or rule prevents study of the Bible in schools. It would be very enlightening, but as long as so much controversy exists as to how the pupils and their teacher may interpret what it says, schools are wise to avoid its use.

As for letting Mr. Cleaver speak to students — isn't it for the schools to decide, largely? . . .

Insofar as I can see, Mr. Cleaver falls far short of a teacher's ability to bestow academic credits upon students, but he is obviously an apt subject for students' study and inquiry into the social problems facing us today to the purpose of correcting the conditions that cause them. . . .

Good taste would have us reject and boycott his obscenities and insults, but wisdom bades us return and to try in spite of these to glean from him a message which might help us to uplift mankind.

Hard Road To Peace; Korea Provides Proof

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

The fact that President Johnson could announce a bombing halt over North Vietnam is a victory for patient diplomacy, but peace in Vietnam still could be far away.

Korea provides the example. Armistice talks in Korea began July 10, 1951, and were not concluded until July 27, 1953, after 575 meetings.

No South Korean representative was present at the armistice signing.

THE KOREAN armistice provided that within three months a political conference should be held to negotiate the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea and a "peaceful settlement of the Korean question . . . "

That conference never was held.

A subsequent Geneva conference in 1954, which, ironically also took up the question of French withdrawal from Indo-China and marked the beginning of U.S. involvement there, settled nothing.

It called for a unified Korea through general elections to be held under United Nations supervision. The elections never were held.

The Korean War cost more than 33,000 American lives and it was scarcely a week ago, 15 years after signing of the armistice, that another American was killed there while on guard duty along the truce line.

The United States continues to maintain 50,000 troops there.

IN SOUTH VIETNAM, as in Korea, the South Vietnamese leaders will be but reluctant partners in the peace talks.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky, believe they have a military victory within their grasp and fear an American sellout.

The could disrupt the talks at any time, either through demonstrations, by an unauthorized attack against the North or by a walkout.

The hope is that they are sensible men who realize they cannot go it alone.

Nor is there evidence that despite some 400,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed since 1962, the Communists have changed their position.

NORTH VIETNAMESE President Ho Chi Minh felt he was cheated by the French after World War II and cheated again at the Geneva conference which also called for unification of Vietnam after free elections. Those elections also never were held.

There is no indication he has retreated from the four points he has declared can be the only conditions for peace talks. These are:

—Withdrawal of U.S. forces and recognition of Vietnam's territorial integrity.

—Respect for the military provisions of the Geneva treaty barring foreign forces.

—Reunification of North and South Vietnam without outside interference.

The bombing pause and a lull in the ground fighting are said to have been achieved as result of secret talks in Paris during a coffee break. Many more cups will be consumed before there can be a peace in Vietnam.

Lesson Of Cuba Crisis Brought Home By Book

(Reprinted from
St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Reading again the frightening story of the 1962 Cuba missiles crisis, this time as seen through Robert Kennedy's eyes, we are astonished at how little attention was paid by the policy-makers to the key question: did Khrushchev's installation of offensive missiles 90 miles from our shores actually change the world military balance so greatly as to warrant going to the brink of nuclear holocaust?

Only a trifling minority of the strategic planners appears even to have raised the question, which evidently never got serious consideration. Yet if it was true, as we suspect, that the Cuba missiles made no essential difference in the military equation, according to which with or without Cuba Russia had the capacity to destroy us and we to destroy them, then it follows that our two nations came within a whisker of nuclear war for psychological and political, rather than security, reasons.

THIS UNDOUBTEDLY is what President Kennedy had in mind when he told his brother he would have been impeached if he had failed to act. He would have been impeached not because missiles in Cuba placed the United States in any more jeopardy than it was already in, but because in the political context of the time the American people simply would not tolerate rockets aimed at their cities from a point so close at hand. We insisted on the right to aim missiles at Soviet cities from adjacent Turkey, and from submarines in all the seas, but were righteously outraged to be placed in the same situation ourselves.

A special irony surrounded the question of our Turkey-based missiles. They had become obsolete, and President Kennedy several months before the Cuba crisis had directed the State Department to arrange for their removal. The State Department did nothing. During the Cuba crisis Adlai Stevenson suggested that we might offer to remove our missiles from Turkey in exchange for removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba. He was excoriated as a softy; any such deal was rejected as a sign of weakness.

Yet, as Robert Kennedy reveals in the book now published by McCall's magazine, he himself privately assured the Soviet ambassador that the Turkish bases would be dismantled if the Russians got out of Cuba. In other words our government feared losing face by openly making a trade which it secretly acknowledged to be reasonable. And it feared losing face because of the irrational climate of American opinion, the product of years of cold war.

IT IS THIS climate of opinion, with its admixture of self-righteousness, doctrinaire anti-communism and national arrogance, its tendency to set up one standard for ourselves and another for somebody else, that must concern Americans if we would avoid future nuclear brinks as hair-raising as the Cuba crisis. The country can be eternally grateful to President Kennedy and his brother for their cool and prudent choice of responses then. They had to resist pressure from the Joint Chiefs of Staff who wanted the response to be a surprise blitzkrieg on Cuba.

Some military leaders even proposed the use of nuclear weapons; nearly all of them, judging by Robert Kennedy's account, were ready and eager for the big war with Russia, which would have killed millions of civilians on both sides. In stemming this madness, and insisting on a blockade which gave the Russians scope for retreat, the two Kennedys earned highest marks for diplomatic skill and wrote a message that should be engraved in granite: never turn over policy-making to the Pentagon.

But we need to beware not only of the Pentagon but of the jingoistic excesses of cold war psychology. The Cuba crisis had its earliest beginnings in an American political climate which tolerated the pursuit of national ends by the use of military power, and encouraged intervention in other people's national lives. Castro asked for Soviet military aid in the first place because the United States had attempted to invade Cuba, in order to dictate to the Cuban people what kind of government they should have. When Americans give up the idea of policing the world, and cease to regard ourselves as the arbiter of other nations' political development, and abandon armed power as an instrument of diplomacy, we shall have learned the real lesson of the Cuba missiles crisis.

Santa Venetia Hospital Gets Informal Nod

A 180-bed convalescent hospital in Santa Venetia got the informal blessing of Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill yesterday, but formal approval must await a land division request by the owners.

The hospital will be located on North San Pedro Road just east of Rafael Convalescent Hospital.

Mrs. Rose Paul of San Rafael, one of three owners, said the LBM Investment Co. of Orinda is no longer connected with the proposed development. LBM had originally planned a regular hospital in addition to a convalescent home, but the hospital idea was dropped because of opposition from Marin County Health Facilities Planning Committee.

Mrs. Paul said the owners want to divide their 18-acre property, using just three acres for the convalescent hospital.

"As far as the convalescent hospital is concerned. I see no objection." said Cordill. He pointed out that the next step would be for the owners to apply for a land division to split the three acres from the 18-acre holding.

Owners of the property are Mrs. Paul, David Rosenberg, and attorney Sidney Rudy, all of San Rafael.

The zoning administrator also:

VARIANCE — Granted building contractor Robert Hune permission to continue using two homes on a one-acre parcel at 2019 Mill Road, Novato, for two years. Within two years, Hune said he would subdivide and develop his property. The property is zoned limited agricultural, which permits only one home per building site.

MOBILE HOME — Granted George R. Cherry of 76 Ranch Road, San Rafael, a one-year permit to maintain a mobile home as living quarters for the manager of the 101 Drive-In Theater. The property is located on the south side of Smith Ranch Road, about 1,200 feet east of Highway 101.

PET SUPPLIES — Granted P. R. Henerlau of 899 Eucalyptus Avenue, Novato, a use permit to continue an existing storage area for pet supplies.

Horse Stables Use Permit Is Expected

Horse stables and a riding ring operated by Mrs. Roy Yates at 420 Bayview Drive, Homestead Valley, will be allowed to continue, but with conditions to keep dust and debris to a minimum, County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill decided yesterday.

Before granting a use permit, Cordill said he will confer with health officials and the Marin County Humane Society. Unless there is an adverse report from these agencies, Cordill said he will grant a permit on an annual renewal basis.

The zoning administrator said he is concerned with dust, erosion, and whether or not a permit should be issued for the 30 horses requested by Mrs. Yates.

The stables are on 19 acres of land on both sides of Bayview Drive near the intersection with Sequoia Valley Road. A permit allowing 16 horses was issued in 1955, but the permit has expired, and the stable ownership has changed hands four times, said Mrs. Yates.

Mrs. Yates said she now has 27 horses on the property and wants a use permit for a maximum of 30.

The zoning administrator announced he would issue a written decision sometime next week.

Another request for a use permit to keep horses was continued until the next zoning administrator hearing on Nov. 25 at the request of the applicant. Welton C. Rotz wants to keep two horses at 469 Corona Avenue, Lagnitas. The property has 8,500 square feet and is zoned for single family residential.

Milwaukee is the largest city in Wisconsin.

Protesting Solano Students Arrested

VALLEJO (AP) — Twenty-one Solano College students arrested yesterday for staging a classroom sit-in were free on $350 bail each today.

Eleven girls were among the 21 arrested by 13 Vallejo policemen after the president of the 2,100-student junior college, Dr. N. Dallas Evans, signed complaints charging loitering and disrupting the college.

The sit-in was staged by 50 students to back up a demand for electric typewriters to type club material for the Black Student Union, which has been demanding more Negro courses, teachers and counselors.

The arrests were made after three requests that the protesters leave voluntarily.

Sausalitan Due In Canadian Court Tomorrow

VICTORIA (AP) — Dr. James Sutherland Watt, of Sausalito, was remanded until tomorrow when he appeared in court here yesterday charged with a customs act infraction.

Dr. Watt was represented before Magistrate J. A. Byers by lawyer Lloyd McKenzie. No plea has been entered and the appearance tomorrow is to elect a form of trial.

The charge read that on Oct. 24 he had unlawful possession of LSD and mescaline, imported illegally into Canada.

Police said Dr. Watt had given his home address as 431 Bridgeway Blvd., Sausalito, Calif.

The charge followed seizure of the 65-foot U.S. ketch Navita, which was reported en route from Vancouver Island to Mexico when it was disabled during a gale and forced to put into Victoria last month.

Belvedere To Share Costs Of Undergrounding Work

The Belvedere City Council last night agreed to underground utilities in an area that is scheduled for redevelopment near the southern entrance to the city.

Total cost of undergrounding the heavy concentration of wires on Beach Road from Bellevue Avenue to Cove Road, on Cove Road and on Cove Place was estimated by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. at $26,000, City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported.

He said the utilities firm would pay $7,000 and the city $6,500, and the Belvedere Land Co. the rest.

The firm, which has built several apartments in Belvedere, owns the land at the corner of Beach and Cove roads where several old arks have been converted into houses, Cavalli said.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. also estimated it would cost each resident from $100 to $300 to convert to underground utilities.

Residents would be responsible for digging a trench across their property from the street box to the meter and any electrical connection changes at their homes.

A PG&E spokesman said homeowners may dig their own trenches to save money.

No one opposed establishing the underground utilities district at a public hearing last night and the council was unanimous in its a pproval.

The Belvedere City Council also:

SEWAGE STUDY — Agreed to pay half the cost of a $1,250 study to divert sewage from the Belvedere Lagoon with property owners in the area to pay the other half.

APPOINTMENT — Named Michael C. Lasky of 338 San Rafael Avenue to the parks and recreation commission to replace Rev. Llewellyn A. White who resigned when he moved from the city recently.

TREE — Relaxed its insistence on planting a large tree in front of the San Francisco Yacht Club after Cavalli said the roots could break up on the street pavement.

CATV — Head a progress report on the installation of cable antenna television which said Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. planned to have poles ready by the end of the year. The cable firm would then take two to three months to string lines.

MINIBOARD — Appointed itself as a miniboard on human rights instead of naming a separate group after Mayor Thomas S. Price commented "a commission like that would really have no duty at this point."

FIRE MAINS — Learned that legal technicalities in the $55,627 fire main project are being worked out and it is expected installation will begin soon.

COMPENSATION — Referred a request from Cavalli to establish a deferred compensation plan and severance pay for the city manager post to the finance committee.

DUMP TRUCK — Accepted a bid of $4,039 from Campbell Bishop Chevrolet for a new dump truck.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS— Received a five-year capital improvement plan prepared by Cavalli and referred it to the parks and recreation and planning commissions for study. It calls for completing current projects, plus $185,000 worth of new streets, and $73,400 in other projects including a new fire truck, sewer work and an underground sprinkler system for the park, with the total plan taking an 11-cent increase in the tax rate for the five years.

LANE ABANDONMENT—Deferred until the Dec. 2 meeting a request from Donald Bekins to abandon a lane on Corinthian Island.

Attempts At Escape Mar Hospital Trip

A 26-year-old San Francisco man was taken to Napa State Hospital Saturday in a trip interrupted by two attempts at escape, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Bill Michael Orr, also known as Will Michael Rein, was booked into Marin County Jail at 3:20 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of being under the influence of a drug and refusing to identify himself.

Deputies saw Orr get into a car on Bridgeway in Sausalito early Saturday. Shortly after that, the owner of the car appeared and told him to get out. When deputies asked Orr for identification, he produced a white comb, they said.

He was taken to jail but at 7:45 a.m. Saturday, because of his unusual behavior, arrangements were made to take him to Napa.

At 9:23 a.m. Orr was reported to have escaped from the ambulance driver near the Villa Rafael Motel, 1606 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Deputies spotted him at 10 a.m. on North San Pedro Road near the Civic Center and attempted to pick him up. Deputies reported he tried to get away and they restrained him, bringing him back to the sheriff's office where he again tried to break and run.

He again was sent to the state hospital, deputies said.

Teens Raise $70 For Coffee House

Youth Power has raised $70 toward its share of funding a coffee house for Marin teens, members reported.

The teen organization must raise $375 to match a similar amount promised recently by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Christopher Arend, president of Youth Power, said $15 was made at a bake sale Saturday and $10 was donated after he spoke on Youth Power at a humanities seminar in Orinda. The rest is from individual donations.

Youth Power will discuss ways to raise the rest of its share at a meeting Saturday.

Dead Letter Office, Airplane Mixup, And Celebration Fete

Guess who forgot to change the address of his incoming mail! Right! Postmaster Harry Overly. He is still getting his magazines and other mail addressed at the First Street number.

WHEN GNOSS FIELD was dedicated, approximately 100 people waited in the heat for a plane bearing Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and County Supervisor William A. Gnoss to come to the airport to cut a ribbon suspended between two ballons.

Gnoss had flown to Santa Rosa, where he was to meet Clausen, so the two could fly back together to cut the ribbon.

The time for the ribbon cutting came and went. Clausen had not arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, it was reported.

Clausen it turned out, had been at another meeting and was late starting for the Santa Rosa Airport. The person driving him there missed the road and made the congressman even later. So when he arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, he took his plane and headed for Gnoss Field, leaving Supervisor Gnoss waiting there.

Clausen, in his plane, sat at the end of the runway at Gnoss Field while an other plane with Supervisor Gnoss flew down from Santa Rosa and cut the ribbon.

At the south end of the runway, Clausen got out of his plane and into that Gnoss was in. The congressman, a pilot, then taxied the plane up to the speakers' platform.

Learning of the mixup, chairman Ernest N. Kettenhoffen of the board of supervisors told the crowd that Clausen was the only person he knew who could fly two planes from Santa Rosa at the same time.

IN A FEW DAYS, the board of Western Weekend Inc. will meet to decide the fate of that celebration. The fiesta has had its ups and downs — and lately more downs than ups.

It was an outgrowth of a parade by the Novato Horsemen's Association. The Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce handled it for years and it grew. When it was too large for the Jaycees to handle, the celebration was incorporated, with representatives of the civic service organizations on its board.

A year ago it lost money and the community held several money-raising events to pay the indebtedness. This summer, it made money, but interest has been declining.

If the board of directors votes to abandon it, the chamber of commerce will make a study to see what type of celebration, if any, the community should have in its place.

The Novato Horsemen's Association, whose annual parade and rodeo started the celebration, will still hold a rodeo, according to its officers.

Crews To Sniff Out Illegal Sewers With Smoke Bombs

San Rafael City Council last night approved the throwing of smoke bombs into sewer manholes to smoke out illegal connections into the lines.

Dominic J. Selmi, an engineer with Dan Coleman Associates of Greenbrae, who is conducting a survey of the sewer system for the city, sought permission for the smoke bombs.

Selmi explained the procedure would be to throw a smoke grenade in a manhole and "blow the smoke up the sewer."

If everything is normal the smoke will come out in vents, but if smoke comes out in homes, "we'll find illegal connections."

There might be roof drains, backyard drains or sump drains hooked up to the system, he said.

The intent is to reduce infiltration into the lines, Selmi said.

Old lines in the Bayview Street-Ross Street-Clark Street-Clorinda Avenue sector were checked by running a television camera in the lines, he said.

"We found they looked almost as good as the day they went in," Selmi said. This dispels the old theory that "water was coming in the joints, he contended.

In past rainy seasons San Rafael has been plagued by sewage popping out of manholes and catch basins onto streets, and it was attributed to storm waters getting into the lines.

Councilmen approved the use of smoke bombs on the condition that it is safe and residents in the area are given ample notice.

"It could scare a lot of people if they weren't notified," said Councilman Louis H. Barr.

Selmi said he planned to use the smoke bombs to check along Bayview Street from Marin to Clark streets, along Clark to Clorinda Avenue and "up Clorinda."

Mental Health Chief To Present Report

A report on the new Community Mental Health Center will be given by the director, Dr. Donald P. Wilson, to the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board at 8 p.m tomorrow at Marin General Hospital.

Also on the board's agenda is discussion of the county's 1969-70 mental health plan. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., president of the board of directors, and Daniel A. Meyerson, director of the Marin Institute will discuss the institute's relation to the county's drug abuse program.

Election Campaign Could Have Selected Husband For Jackie

WASHINGTON — Of all the events of 1968, none has had more of an effect on the American people than the marriage of Jackie Kennedy to Greek zillionaire Aristotle Onassis. People who had no opinion on the Vietnamese war, the crisis of the cities or the youth revolution all had something to say about Mrs. Kennedy's nuptials.

It seems to me that what Jackie Kennedy didn't realize was that she was the property of the American people and, therefore, that she had no right to choose a husband on her own. If Mrs. Kennedy wanted to get married again, she should have informed the American public of this, either on the Johnny Carson show or the Bell Telephone Hour, and let the American people choose a husband for her.

ONCE SHE MADE her intentions known, a special Republican and Democratic convention would have been called and candidates would have been nomiated for her to marry.

After the nominations, each candidate would have campaigned for Jackie's hand. They would have explained what they would do for Jackie as a husband, where they would live and how they would raise Jackie's children.

The candidates would have bought television time to let the public know where they stood, not only on the marriage, but also on the public issues of the day.

They also would have traveled across the nation so that Americans could see them in the flesh and decide for themselves which candidate would be the best mate for the former First Lady.

Not only would the public have listened to the platform of the men it thought were suitable for Jackie's hand, but people would also have decided the complicated questions of religion, age, and nationality of the husband-to-be.

SINCE THEY HAD so much a stake, the public would have taken far more interest in this campaign than they have in the presidential election.

The climax of the race for Jackie's husband would have been a nationally televised debate between the candidates, so the electorate could see for itself how each man would behave under pressure.

Finally, on election day, Americans from all walks of life would have gone to the polls and voted for the person they wanted to stand at Jackie's side.

In case neither candidate got a majority of the electoral votes, then the House of Representatives would have chosen the man privileged to be Jackie Kennedy's husband.

ONCE THE MAJORITY of the American people had made their decision, we all would have abided by it, with no one complaining that he didn't have a vote in Mrs. Kennedy's marital affairs.

This would have been the American way of doing things Perhaps Mr. Onassis might have won the election; perhaps he might not. But at least the election would have prevented the confusion and despair now rampant in the United States over the Kennedy-Onassis wedding.

Even those who are on Jackie's side admit that it wasn't whom she married, but the way she did it, that has caused so much concern in this country.

No woman of Mrs. Kennedy's stature has a right to decide affairs of the heart by herself. Her marriage was everybody's business, and the least she could have done was poll the American public before she made a decision that affects the lives and pocketbooks of us all.

Veterans Asked To Return Forms On Annual Income

Veterans or their dependents who are drawing Veterans Administration benefits will lose their pensions unless they fill out and return the annual income questionnaires mailed out this month, veterans service officer James V. Burdick announced today.

The questionnaires were mailed last Friday with this month's checks and should be in the hands of all veterans pension recipients, said Burdick.

"Due to recent changes in the law, it is vital that the report be accurate, because the amount of benefit paid will be computed in $100 increments," Burdick point out. "The questionnaires must be returned to the Veterans Administration by Jan. 15, 1969, or the payments will stop."

He urged all beneficiaries to come to his office for assistance prior to the Jan. 15 deadline. The Veterans Service Office is located in Room 422 of the Civic Center.

World production of woven cloth in 1963 amounted to around 90 billion square yards or 30 square yards per person.

San Rafael To Purchase Fire Snorkel

San Rafael City Council last night appropriated $25,000 toward the purchase of a fire engine with an 85-foot snorkel estimated to cost $75,000.

Fire Chief Vance Trivett said that because of increasing commercial and industrial development in the Terra Linda area, such as Northgate Industrial park, the department needs an additional truck.

Running a ladder truck out of headquarters in downtown San Rafael to the Emporium store takes from 10 to 12 minutes, "and we can't reach some of the roofs," the chief contended.

Not only is the Northgate Industrial Park "rapidly filling up," but there are a number of apartments in the Terra Linda area, he noted.

Councilmen authorized the chief to prepare plans and specifications for the new snorkel truck, and agreed that $25,000 be taken from reserve funds for it and that payments should be $25,000 a year for a three-year period.

Councilmen also agreed that a dispute over a building design between the Northgate Industrial Park Architectural Review Committee and the builder, Ronald F. Antonioli, was beyond their jurisdiction.

The council sustained the planning commission's decision to grant Antonioli architectural approval of the planned office building at 25-35 Mitchell Boulevard, the entrance to Northgate Industrial Park.

The San Rafael City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Adopted the 1967 edition of the building code and amended the municipal code to provide a stronger definition of dangerous buildings.

ABATEMENTS — Postponed three abatements: an unoccupied house at 33 Maywood Way, abandoned because of earth slippage, until Dec. 2 after reports that the house might be sold and lot stabilized; an unoccupied house at 544 D Street until No. 18, after a report that it is scheduled to be removed to make way for construction of a nursing home; and a carriage house to the rear of the main dwelling at 1623 Fifth Avenue until Nov. 18.

OFFICE MOVING — Gave William Watson, owner of two medical buildings at 600 Mission Avenue, permission to move them to 16 Marion Court.

PROPERTY SALE — Agreed to sell a 15-foot strip of city property along the north side of Fourth Street from Mary to Union streets, but retain easements.

PERSONNEL — Appointed John Riordan as acting police sergeant at a salary of $856 a month, on a temporary basis, effective Nov. 1, appointed William Herman Bertram and William Scott Boyle as police officers at $670 a month, and granted Frederick Bishop, maintenance man II, leave from Oct. 24 to Jan. 24, to recuperate from surgery.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied and referred to the city's insurance carrier a $41.74 claim from Mrs. Kathleen Donnelly of 211 Laurel Place for damage to the front door of her home allegedly caused by city firemen Aug. 9 while checking a report of smoke.

EXTENSION — Granted contractors Vukasin and Rigisich of Lafayette, Contra Costa County, a one-month extension, until Dec. 4, to complete relocation of sewers in the vicinity of Clyde Avenue, Clinton Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

NAME CHANGE — Approved changing the name of Meyer Service Road to Gary Place, effective 90 days from last night.

BICYCLE TRAILS —Referred to the parks and recreation commission a letter from the Lucas Valley Home and School Club requesting a bicycle pathway to Marin Civic Center.

JOINT SESSION — Announced that the council and the library board will have a joint meeting to review library building plans at 11 a.m. Nov. 16 at the library. The next regular council session will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 at City Hall.

Councilman John Miskimen, on a business trip, was absent.

Reagan Praises Employee's Act

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has praised a state employee who gave the shirt off his back to a jobless youth who was looking for work.

Reagan said yesterday a staff member of the Youth Opportunity Center in Sacramento exchanged his own shirt and necktie for the youth's T-shirt so the youngster could make a more favorable impression during a job interview with a prospective employer.

In a letter to State Employment Director Peter Weinberger, Reagan said the employee, whom he did not identify, served "above and beyond the call of duty."

You Can Read By Them!

When we stocked our new store we had two major requisites for lamps—the designs must be handsome rather than gimcracky and they just had to give a good light. The results are in for you to see. Some have built-in dimmers, all bases are specially weighted, new shades will not yellow or discolor and prices are surprisingly modest.

The gentle nudger

If he's not chasing quite as fast as you're running, it could be he's a bit insecure. Perhaps all he needs is a gentle reminder that you are there…and care.

To get your romance back on the proper time table, give him an "I AM LOVED" button. It's a very proper gift. Not too expensive (free, as a matter of fact). And it packs quite a wallop!

When you come in to pick it up, have a look at the Wells "I AM LOVED" jewelry for men…all very personal gifts of real silver and gold ($5. to $25.) They say all that you need to say…and more. Top the gift wrap with the button, then hand it to him with a wink and your prettiest smile.

If you mention where you got it, he might just retort in kind with a companion "I AM LOVED" selection of Wells jewelry for girls. After that, the rest of the romance is up to you.

to Nixon in the second person, mocking the fact that Nixon had refused to join him in a televised debate.

"We have to be willing to take some risks for peace, Mr. Nixon, just as we're willing to take risks on the battlefield. . . what you and I should be doing is asking the government of South Vietnam to attend that conference in Paris and backing our President, and not in any way spreading misinformation that would upset the American people," he said.

Tens of thousands jammed the streets of downtown Los Angeles to greet Humphrey and Muskie in an old-fashioned ticker-tape parade. It was one of their best receptions.

As the motorcade formed, the latest Harris poll showed Humphrey ahead of Nixon for the first time since the Democratic National Convention. The poll gave Humphrey 43 per cent, Nixon 40 and George C. Wallace 13, with 4 per cent undecided.

On the TV program, Humphrey praised President Johnson for what he called a courageous act in stopping the bombing of the North. One caller asked Humphrey "Why you were not against war earlier in your campaign?"

"I've never been for war," he replied, but as vice president he said he thought he should be 'helpful to our administration." He said he favored a negotiated rather than a military settlement.

NATION

A forecast of fair weather for most of the nation held the promise of a voter turnout exceeding the record 71 million of four years ago.

The poll gave Humphrey a 43 to 40 endge over Nixon. This was the first time he has led during the campaign in which he once trailed by eight points in the Harris poll and 15 in the Gallup poll. Gallup's final poll over the weekend had it 42 to 40 for Nixon.

Wallace, the phenomenon that threw pollsters and political experts far off their stride, was given between 12 and 13 per cent of the vote in the final polls.

Despite their last minute predictions, the major pollsters, mindful of Harry S Truman's 1948 upset of Thomas Dewey, said the election was too close to call.

As if to bear out the belief that this election defies prediction, the nation's first voters failed to follow the usual script.

In the little town of Dixville Notch, N. H., the 12 voters who cast their ballots after midnight split 8 votes for Humphrey, 4 for Nixon. Nixon got all the town's eight registered voters in the 1960 presidential election he lost to John F. Kennedy in a defeat that was supposed to bury him politically.

In Ellsworth, N. H., however, the 11 voters did follow tradition, casting straight Republican ballots.

Besides the three presidential candidates, voters across the country will elect 21 governors, 34 senators and all 435 representatives as well as hundreds of lesser statewide and local candidates.

Republicans were given a good chance of increasing their current margin of 26 governorships, a slight chance of capturing the House, but little chance of gaining more than two to four seats in the Senate, far short of control.

If no candidate gets the needed electoral votes in today's balloting, the Electoral College meeting would be the subject of intense trading efforts to deliver this final figure.

But if the electors fail to reach a verdict the choice would go to the new House in January, with each state delegation having one vote.

Window Damaged

Robert Herman Golyn of Marin County Furniture, 2158 Fourth Street, San Rafael, reported yesterday that a hole had been shot in a display window during the weekend, police said. Value of the window was about $300, Golyn told police.

Session Canceled

The Marin City Target Area board did not meet last night as scheduled. No one in the Marin City office or the Marin Economic Opportunity Council office in San Rafael today knew why the meeting was called off.

Teachers Back Mission Rebels

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Teacher's Union voted last night to approve the use of Mission Rebel street gang members as high school counselors.

The executive board of the union preciously protested a contract between the Rebels and the school superintendent's office which provided that gang members be called in to help quiet disturbances.

The Rebels "blatantly violated" the spirit of the program by encouraging rather than discouraging uneasiness at some schools, the executive board of the union said.

in which the test has been ordered is that of William Duncan Lindley.

He had pleaded guilty to two charges of attempted child molesting and was already on two years' probation as a juvenile for child molesting when he entered Atascadero State Hospital May 17, 1967, as a mentally disordered sex offender.

On Sept. 17 this year, the hospital staff returned Lindley to Marin Superior Court, saying he has received maximum hospital benefit, without showing any signs of improvement.

The staff reported Lindley has been having "increasingly very disturbing fantasies of torture and sex. . . . Because of his fantasies, staff regard him as a potential murderer."

Lindley has now been returned to Municipal Court, where Goldstein suspended criminal proceedings in 1967 and started Lindley on his way to Atascadero.

Those procedings have begun again and Judge Goldstein must either sentence Lindley on two misdemeanor charges or suspend proceedings again and send him to state prison as a mentally disordered sex offender.

When two local psychiatrists reported Lindley as sane, Judge Goldstein ordered the chromosome test. A hearing on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 14 in Judge Goldstein's court.

Von Feldt, who pleaded guilty yesterday to the battery charge, was told to return to court Dec. 6 for sentencing.

Man's Leg Cut In Fight Challenge

David Leroy Glasscock of 303 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was treated for a severe cut on his left leg last night at Marin General Hospital following an incident at the Bermuda Palms, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police said.

Police said Glasscock and four companions said they were approached by three men and challenged to a fight. All but Glasscock left and later it was discovered that he was cut, reported police, who did not say whether Glasscock had fought.

The San Rafael Fire Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at city hall to discuss the new piece of equipment for which the city council appropriated $25,000 last night.

The new equipment, a fire truck with an 85-foot snorkel, is estimated to cost a total of $75,000, with payments to be spread over a three-year period.

know what was going on. That's why I can deal with it."

From Los Angeles, Nixon goes to New York City today for what his aides said would be a "victory celebration" at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He voted by absentee ballot last wek.

Just as Humphrey got a question about what Nixon said on the GOP telethon, the Republican nominee got one about a Humphrey telethon remark. The Democrat contended that a Nixon economic adviser had talked about a possible 1969 increase in unemployment because of the need to combat inflation.

When asked about this, Nixon contended that a Humphrey economist had made such a statement and added, referring to his Democratic rival, "Boy, he really is getting confused."

Questions asked of Nixon during his four-hour telethon over the NBC network were phoned from all parts of the nation to 100 telephone operators in the TV studio. After being screened, they were read to Nixon by former Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson.

Vietnam figured repeatedly in questions relayed to Nixon.

Contending that prospective peace talks "came apart at the seams" a few days ago, Nixon said the bomb halt did not stop Communist shelling of cities in the South nor the flow of military supplies from the North. Asserting that President Johnson had relied, in preparing for the halt, on "a team of men who are tired," Nixon said:

"This pause would have been better prepared had we had a fresh team in there."

He said that if there's no peace before Inauguration Day, "I'll bring in a new diplomatic team and we will end this war."

their ballots when they received them, but found that the prepunched holes simply designated the number of their precinct.

At San Rafael's Sun Valley School, 120 of the 240 registered voters at that precinct had voted by late morning. Other San Rafael figures were 157 of 475 at City Hall and 132 of 500 at Terra Linda High School.

At Ross School, 185 of 575 registered voters had balloted by late morning.

The number of registered voters at each precinct includes voters who already have voted by absentee ballot, so the percentage voting is even higher than it appears.

In Fairfax, 176 of 650 had voted at the fire house, 145 of 600 at Deer Park School, and 124 of 526 at Fairfax Central School.

In Sausalito, the figures were 177 of 450 at Campbell Hall, 141 of 600 at City Hall, 136 of 450 at Sausalito Nursery School, 172 of 600 at Star of the Sea Catholic Church, and 160 of 550 at the I.D.E.S.S.T. Hall.

In Marin City, 140 of 700 registered at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church had voted, and 138 of 600 at the Village Baptist Church.

On the Belvedere-Tiburon peninsula, approximately one half the registered voters had voted by 11:30 a.m. Belvedere school reported 150 voters out of 300 registered; Whittaker Hall at St. Steven's Church in Belvedere, 202 out of 438; and at the Belvedere Community Hall, 135 voters out of 419.

In Tiburon, of Reed School 200 out of 438 registered voters had cast their ballots; at Tiburon city Hall, 127 out of the 500 registered.

In the Mill Valley area voting was generally lighter, with 147 out of 503 voters turning out at Tamalpais Valley School; 140 out of 454 voters at Old Mill School; 150 out of 507 voters at Homestead School; and 177 out of 480 voters at the Tamalpais Valley Fire Station No. 1.

Judge Dismisses Marijuana Count

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Superior Court yesterday dismissed a felony charge of possessing marijuana lodged against Alfred Conrad Ulmer, 21, of San Anselmo.

The judge ruled that, at Ulmer's preliminary hearing, there was improper identification of he alleged contraband and of Ulmer as the man arrested Sept. 1 after his car overturned in Fairfax.

Teachers Agree To End Walkout

DALY CITY (AP) — Some Some 100 striking Daly City high school teachers returned to their classrooms today after agreeing to suspend temporarily their two-day walkout.

Six schools in the Jefferson Union High School District remained open during the strike, manned by some 300 of the 400 district teachers, primarily members of the rival Classroom Teachers Association.

MARY L. L. WILLIAMS
Mill Valley's 'Molo'

OBITUARIES

'Molo' Williams Dies At 73

Mary Lathrop Lowell Williams of Mill Valley, better known as "Molo" to Marin and San Francisco children over the past 30 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital following a brief illness. She was 73.

A talented artist and sculptor, Mrs. Williams, who was also known as "Molly," directed a children's arts and crafts school in San Francisco for 25 years and for the past five years in Mill Valley.

In her Mill Valley shop, located at 10 Locust Avenue, she maintained what she said was the "second best collection" of antique toys in the United States.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Mrs. Williams attended the Chicago Art Institute, where she became a student of Charles Mulligan and Gutzon Borglum, designer and sculptor of Mount Rushmore. For Borglum she worked on wax models for the national monument in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Shortly afterwards, she married Arthur Carter Lowell, a member of the famed James Russell Lowell family. She and her husband lived for several years in Auburn, where he was one of the youngest district attorneys in the state. While in Auburn, Mrs. Williams taught art in the public schools.

In 1938, following her husband's death, she established the Molo Crafts School at Lombard and Baker streets in San Francisco, well attended by children from San Francisco and Marin after regular school hours. The only requirement of attendance was that children finish whatever project they started.

During the summers, Molo took the children on five tours of Europe and on many other trips around the United States so that they could "see the things that are history and will make history."

Highlights of the tours included stops at the world's largest toy store in London and a camel ride in Egypt.

She spent summers and weekends in Tiburon for many years prior to moving to Mill Valley in 1963. Because of poor health, she taught fewer children in recent years but this summer was able to make a final European tour. She returned to her home above the Locust Avenue shop in October.

Last year, she married Alexander E. Williams, her partner in the Molo Crafts school since it was first founded.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Elizabeth McKegney of Tiburon; a son, A. C. Lowell of Newport Beach, and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

Johnson was born in Bemidji, Minn., and spent most of his in Madison, Wis. He was a painting contractor for many years until ill health forced him to leave that profession. He then became a real estate dealer in Madison. Johnson moved to Novato in 1962.

He was a member of the painter's union in Madison, and the Grace Lutheran Church in Novato.

Besides his wife, Johnson is survived by a son, Wilkes Louis Johnson of Novato, who is chairman of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission; a daughter, Mrs. Ardis Suzanne Zimmerman of Santa Rosa, and three grandchildren.

He moved to Mill Valley in 1950 where he was employed as manager of Albert's department store (now Mayer's) until 1953 when he became a partner in Bennett's Variety Store at 19 Throckmorton Avenue. He was an active partner in the store's operations until his death.

Wagner summoned a neighbor, Robert Lebakos, and the two broke in the door. Schmidt was lying on the floor.

The fourth storm of the season, expected last night and today, turned out to be a dud.

Tamalpais Valley reported the most rain in the county — .08 of an inch by 8 a.m. San Rafael had .01 of an inch; Sausalito and Bolinas, .02; Tiburon, .04; Terra Linda, .05; Mill Valley, .06; and Novato, a trace.

Santa Venetia Hospital Gets Informal Nod

A 180-bed convalescent hospital in Santa Venetia got the informal blessing of Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill yesterday, but formal approval must await a land division request by the owners.

The hospital will be located on North San Pedro Road just east of Rafael Convalescent Hospital.

Mrs. Rose Paul of San Rafael, one of three owners, said the LBM Investment Co. of Orinda is no longer connected with the proposed development. LBM had originally planned a regular hospital in addition to a convalescent home, but the hospital idea was dropped because of opposition from Marin County Health Facilities Planning Committee.

Mrs. Paul said the owners want to divide their 18-acre property, using just three acres for the convalescent hospital.

"As far as the convalescent hospital is concerned, I see no objection," said Cordill. He pointed out that the next step would be for the owners to apply for a land division to split the three acres from the 18-acre holding.

Owners of the property are Mrs. Paul, David Rosenberg, and attorney Sidney Rudy, all of San Rafael.

The zoning administrator also:

VARIANCE — Granted building contractor Robert Hune permission to continue using two homes on a one-acre parcel at 2019 Mill Road, Novato, for two years. Within two years, Hune said he would subdivide and develop his property. The property is zoned limited agricultural, which permits only one home per building site.

MOBILE HOME — Granted George R. Cherry of 76 Ranch Road, San Rafael, a one-year permit to maintain a mobile home as living quarters for the manager of the 101 Drive-In Theater. The property is located on the south side of Smith Ranch Road, about 1,200 feet east of Highway 101.

PET SUPPLIES — Granted P. R. Henerlau of 899 Eucalyptus Avenue, Novato, a use permit to continue an existing storage area for pet supplies.

Sausalitan Due In Canadian Court Tomorrow

VICTORIA (AP) — Dr. James Sutherland Watt, of Sausalito, was remanded until tomorrow when he appeared in court here yesterday charged with a customs act infraction.

Dr. Watt was represented before Magistrate J. A. Byers by lawyer Lloyd McKenzie. No plea has been entered and the appearance tomorrow is to elect a form of trial.

The charge read that on Oct. 24 he had unlawful possession of LSD and mescaline, imported illegally into Canada.

Police said Dr. Watt had given his home address as 431 Bridgeway Blvd., Sausalito, Calif.

The charge followed seizure of the 65-foot U.S. ketch Navita, which was reported en route from Vancouver Island to Mexico when it was disabled during a gale and forced to put into Victoria last month.

Horse Stables Use Permit Is Expected

Horse stables and a riding ring operated by Mrs. Roy Yates at 420 Bayview Drive, Homestead Valley, will be allowed to continue, but with conditions to keep dust and debris to a minimum, County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill decided yesterday.

Before granting a use permit, Cordill said he will confer with health officials and the Marin County Humane Society. Unless there is an adverse report from these agencies, Cordill said he will grant a permit on an annual renewal basis.

The zoning administrator said he is concerned with dust, erosion, and whether or not a permit should be issued for the 30 horses requested by Mrs. Yates.

The stables are on 19 acres of land on both sides of Bayview Drive near the intersection with Sequoia Valley Road. A permit allowing 16 horses was issued in 1955, but the permit has expired, and the stable ownership has changed hands four times, said Mrs. Yates.

Mrs. Yates said she now has 27 horses on the property and wants a use permit for a maximum of 30.

The zoning administrator announced he would issue a written decision sometime next week.

Another request for a use permit to keep horses was continued until the next zoning administrator hearing on Nov. 25 at the request of the applicant. Welton C. Rotz wants to keep two horses at 469 Corona Avenue, Lagnitas. The property has 8,500 square feet and is zoned for single family residential.

Milwaukee is the largest city in Wisconsin.

Protesting Solano Students Arrested

VALLEJO (AP) — Twenty-one Solano College students arrested yesterday for staging a classroom sit-in were free on $350 bail each today.

Eleven girls were among the 21 arrested by 13 Vallejo policemen after the president of the 2,100-student junior college, Dr. N. Dallas Evans, signed complaints charging loitering and disrupting the college.

The sit-in was staged by 50 students to back up a demand for electric typewriters to type club material for the Black Student Union, which has been demanding more Negro courses, teachers and counselors.

The arrests were made after three requests that the protesters leave voluntarily.

Living A Long, Strong Life

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Ninety-year-old, nearly blind Helen Ward Bloomfield, who lives with a dog and four cats in her Chinese style Sausalito home, is a woman who holds strong, unconventional opinions, and she lives according to her convictions.

With an earthy sense of humor expressed in a continuous stream of poems and witty, racy stories, more appropriate for a magazine like "Playboy" than a family newspaper, she told the story of her life recently.

"Life's little ills annoyed me
When life's little ills were few.
One fly in my pot of ointment put me in an awful stew.
But experience has taught me the infrequent good to prize:
Now I'm thankful for some ointment in my little pot of flies."

Yet Helen Bromfield is not as resigned and tolerant as this might imply, for life's little and not so little frustrations still annoy her, and she says, "If I couldn't cuss in Chinese, I'd explode!"

Some of the most important facts about Mrs. Bromfield are that she was the first white stenographer and the first public stenographer in Hong Kong, she says, and a reporter for many years, traveling all over the world. She had many exciting experiences that included covering the Paris Peace Treaty after World War I.

Attesting to these facts are a faded vanity case crammed with passports used on a number of trips around the world and a pile of old newspaper clippings and magazines. Yellowing, creased pictures show that she was once a Gibson girl-type beauty.

HELEN IS NOT sure whether she was born in Detroit, Mich. or Ohio and is not particularly interested where it was. Orphaned at an early age, she was brought up on a "Godforsaken Ohio farm" by an elderly grandmother. She attended a one-room country school and had little respect for the education offered. She reminisced, "We students used to chant this little ditty:

"O Lord of love, look down from above
Upon these simple scholars.
They hired a fool to teach the school
And paid him forty dollars."

"Later I graduated from the Mountain States Business College in Parkersburg, W. Va.," she went on, "where I learned stenography and typing, and after my grandmother died, I sold the farm for $200 and bought a ticket for Hong Kong, the farthest place from the farm I could think of.

"In Hong Kong I went to the best hotel and for $65 a month got room and four meals a day including afternoon tea — in those days $20 was worth about $100. I noticed after about a week that tourists were always coming in to write letters; so I asked the manager if there was a public stenographer. He said no, and when he agreed to let me try, I bought a second hand machine and was in business. I made lots of money!"

LATER HELEN worked as a stenographer for the American Tobacco Company for eight years in Hong Kong, then deciding she would like to try reporting, she returned to the United States and took courses in shorthand and typing, specializing in speed writing, at Eastman College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

At this point Helen interrupted her reminiscences to express her contempt for young people today who get their education too easily.

"Education isn't something you get as easy as putting cream in your coffee," she said. "You have to go out and scratch for it. In Ohio I used to pick wild blackberries and sell them to a saloon keeper to pay for mine."

Equipped to do reporting, Helen first got a little experience in Shanghai. On one of her many trips she met her husband, an insurance man and was married in Manila in 1911.

"I lived in Manila for a number of years—if you can call it that because I was never home much—and worked as a reporter for the 'Philippine Review'."

It was while she was working in this job that Helen covered the Paris Peace Treaty and had some of her most interesting experiences.

After a divorce she became engaged to Sir Edgar Sengier, manager of the Bank of Belgium.

"He took me to dinner at the home of French premier Georges Clemenceau," she recalled," and I remember telling him a joke he thought was funny.

"I'm a vegetarian, you know, and I asked him if he knew why cannibals had stopped eating missionaries. No, he said—so I recited this:

I have partaken of the yellow, black and brown,
But to eat a missionary is the acme of insanity;
You can't keep a good man down."

THIS PICTURE was taken of Mrs. Helen Bromfield and an officer at Fort Mason in San Francisco on the day she retired at 77 years of age from the last job she held, that of a stenographer at the fort. She holds a goodbye message from co-workers showing her Chinese roof and some of the cats that have been her companions for years.

THIS ANECDOTE pointed up the strength of one of her convictions, for even at this dinner with the famous statesman she insisted on eating only vegetables. Being a vegetarian is related to her immense love of animals.

"Animals were around millions of years before souls were invented. I'm an atheist," she confessed. "They say God created man in his image, but the real truth is that man created his gods in his own image. What people need is not more religion but more compassion."

Religion was the cause of breaking her engagement to Sir Sengier. "He was a Catholic, and I was an atheist," she said; "So why should I marry him and ruin his life. He never did me any harm."

The Bromfields had one daughter, who, she said, was killed in an accident in 1942, and she doesn't care to talk about that.

The strong-willed old lady is an ardent believer in the cause of population control.

"I was a great friend of Margaret Sanger, a pioneer in birth control," she says. "When I was in the Orient and the Philippines I saw so much of breeding like flies and the resulting misery that I could never forget it."

Hippies are among the superfluous people in the world, she believes.

"If I had my way," she snorted, "I'd do with them the way they did in the French revolution—put them all on a huge barge full of holes and tow it out to sea."

After 1917 Helen Bromfield worked for the Food Administration under Herbert Hoover and in several other governmental departments in Washington, D. C., before settling in Sausalito. Her last job was as a stenographer at Fort Mason in San Francisco, where she worked until she was 77.

With her usual complete candor and lack of pretensions she commented, "All the other said they were secretaries, but I was just a stenographer."

A still better illustration of her complete lack of pretensions, especially cultural ones, was this remark, "I'm not like some people I know who pretend to be so musical because they go to operas. One time they played 'Little Brown Jug,' and I stood up because I thought it was the national anthem."

IN 1930 HELEN Bromfield had a Chinese architect design her present home with its Chinese architecture. The genuine jade green porcelain roof cost as much as all the rest of the house, she says. Many of the furnishings in it are Chinese.

Today she lives there with her pets, Tippie the dog, Mamie Eisenhower her 23-year-old cat and three white Persian cats and manages to get along quite well despite having been nearly blind since the removal of cataracts from both eyes in 1962.

She never gets lonely, she says. She has developed her sense of touch so that she can do some sewing, crocheting and typing of letters to friends all over the world, enclosing with the letters to friends who are cat owners, some of the catnip she grows for her own cats.

Swedes Open Battle For Women's Rights

By DAVID ROZENZWEIG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A new battle cry is being heard in the struggle for women's rights. Put simply, it's "emancipate the men!"

A Swedish government report to the United Nations on the status of women says any attempt to give women an equal place in the world without relieving their traditional burden of caring for home and children is doomed.

Thus, the Swedes reckon, husbands should be "emancipated" from their work so they can devote more time to cooking dinner, doing the wash, taking Johnny to the dentist and other housewifely chores.

Undoubtedly this would mean giving most men shorter working hours and educating and encouraging them to take a more active role in parenthood, the report says.

It even goes so far as to note a suggestion voiced in some Swedish quarters that fathers are entitled to leaves of absence from their jobs—with pay—so they can stay at home while their children are young.

"THE GOVERNMENT is well aware that this view appears revolutionary and unrealistic in the eyes of the representatives of many other countries," the Swedes admit. "A growing opinion in Sweden has, however, rallied to its support."

In a country where four out of every 10 workers are women and 70 per cent of its women hold jobs of some sort, the problem of working mothers in Sweden is a burning public issue.

This lively debate, the report says, has fostered a new approach involving a break from the traditional habit of regarding these problems strictly as "women's questions."

"The demand for 'male emancipation' in family life is supported by the results of recent psychological research which have proved that the identification of growing boys become uncertain in a one-sided, mother-dominated home environment," the report says, adding that this leads to "overcompensation expressed in exaggerated agressiveness and may be one explanation of the higher crime rate as compared to girls."

PUBLIC DEMAND has therefore spurred socialist Sweden to do more for families in which both parents work, a practice that is becoming almost normal, the report says. It lists a broad range of family services available to Sweden's population, from all-day nurseries to domestic help supplied by municipalities.

But does it follow that what's good for Sweden is good for the United States.

YES, SAYS MARGARET MEAD, eminent anthropologist, long-time observer of the role of women in American society and editor of a presidential commission report on equal rights for women in the United States.

"As long as we put women in the position of caring for two jobs, it isn't equality at all," she says.

Miss Mead endorses the Swedish approach to working mothers, but believes the probem can't be solved merely by giving husbands more time and responsibility around the house.

As she sees it, the problem is also deeply rooted in the "isolation of the contemporary American family."

Consider the plight of the average family in suburbia, she says. Getting the kids to nursery school or shopping for the family needs can easily entail driving 15 miles. When the kitchen sink springs a leak, it means waiting two weeks for the plumber to come and fearing to venture out for a few

Belvedere To Share Costs Of Undergrounding Work

The Belvedere City Council last night agreed to underground utilities in an area that is scheduled for redevelopment near the southern entrance to the city.

Total cost of undergrounding the heavy concentration of wires on Beach Road from Bellevue Avenue to Cove Road, on Cove Road and on Cove Place was estimated by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. at $26,000, City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported.

He said the utilities firm would pay $7,000 and the city $6,500, and the Belvedere Land Co. the rest.

The firm, which has built several apartments in Belvedere, owns the land at the corner of Beach and Cove roads where several old arks have been converted into houses, Cavalli said.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. also estimated it would cost each resident from $100 to $300 to convert to underground utilities.

Residents would be responsible for digging a trench across their property from the street box to the meter and any electrical connection changes at their homes.

A PG&E spokesman said homeowners may dig their own trenches to save money.

No one opposed establishing the underground utilities district at a public hearing last night and the council was unanimous in its approval.

The Belvedere City Council also:

SEWAGE STUDY — Agreed to pay half the cost of a $1,250 study to divert sewage from the Belvedere Lagoon with property owners in the area to pay the other half.

APPOINTMENT — Named Michael C. Lasky of 338 San Rafael Avenue to the parks and recreation commission to replace Rev. Llewellyn A. White who resigned when he moved from the city recently.

TREE — Relaxed its insistence on planting a large tree in front of the San Francisco Yacht Club after Cavalli said the roots could break up on the street pavement.

CATV — Head a progress report on the installation of cable antenna television which said Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. planned to have poles ready by the end of the year. The cable firm would then take two to three months to string lines.

MINIBOARD — Appointed itself as a miniboard on human rights instead of naming a separate group after Mayor Thomas S. Price commented "a commission like that would really have no duty at this point."

FIRE MAINS — Learned that legal technicalities in the $55,627 fire main project are being worked out and it is expected installation will begin soon.

COMPENSATION — Referred a request from Cavalli to establish a deferred compensation plan and severance pay for the city manager post to the finance committee.

DUMP TRUCK — Accepted a bid of $4,039 from Campbell Bishop Chevrolet for a new dump truck.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS—Received a five-year capital improvement plan prepared by Cavalli and referred it to the parks and recreation and planning commissions for study. It calls for completing current projects, plus $185,000 worth of new streets, and $73,400 in other projects including a new fire truck, sewer work and an underground sprinkler system for the park, with the total plan taking an 11-cent increase in the tax rate for the five years.

LANE ABANDONMENT—Deferred until the Dec. 2 meeting a request from Donald Bekins to abandon a lane on Corinthian Island.

Attempts At Escape Mar Hospital Trip

A 26-year-old San Francisco man was taken to Napa State Hospital Saturday in a trip interrupted by two attempts at escape, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Bill Michael Orr, also known as Will Michael Rein, was booked into Marin County Jail at 3:20 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of being under the influence of a drug and refusing to identify himself.

Deputies saw Orr get into a car on Bridgeway in Sausalito early Saturday. Shortly after that, the owner of the car appeared and told him to get out. When deputies asked Orr for identification, he produced a white comb, they said.

He was taken to jail but at 7:45 a.m. Saturday, because of his unusual behavior, arrangements were made to take him to Napa.

At 9:23 a.m. Orr was reported to have escaped from the ambulance driver near the Villa Rafael Motel, 1606 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Deputies spotted him at 10 a.m. on North San Pedro Road near the Civic Center and attempted to pick him up. Deputies reported he tried to get away and they restrained him, bringing him back to the sheriff's office where he again tried to break and run.

He again was sent to the state hospital, deputies said.

Teens Raise $70 For Coffee House

Youth Power has raised $70 toward its share of funding a coffee house for Marin teens, members reported.

The teen organization must raise $375 to match a similar amount promised recently by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Christopher Arend, president of Youth Power, said $15 was made at a bake sale Saturday and $10 was donated after he spoke on Youth Power at a humanities seminar in Orinda. The rest is from individual donations.

Youth Power will discuss ways to raise the rest of its share at a meeting Saturday.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Only Tony Can Provide Answer To Question Of Former Fiancee

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a girl of 17 with a bad past. I've tried everything from glue to pot to pills, and I didn't stop at necking.

I thought my crowd was out of sight until I met Tony about 13 months ago. We had a long talk that was the changing point of my life. I told him all about myself and he said it didn't matter. I was really happy for the first time — until last week.

We were shopping for wedding rings when we met a fellow Tony hates. I don't know why he hates him so much but when he heard I went around with him, he reacted as never before and yelled, "It's all off!"

I never dated the guy but just rode behind him sometimes on his 'cycle.

I haven't seen Tony since and he hangs up when I call. Nobody will tell me what the feud is about.

Helen, if he forgave me for all the terrible things I did, why can't he understand about the one guy I didn't do anything terrible with? — P.H.

DEAR P.:

Only Tony can answer that question. If he won't, then perhaps he is afraid to. He may hate this fellow because he knows too much — about Tony, not you. (My IGAP — "I'm Guessing Again Perception" — isn't always right, remember.)

Try getting in touch by letter. Set down all the facts on the inside pages, but start with a "hook." Like: "Dear Tony: No matter what, I want you to know I'll understand and be on your side, just as you have always been on mine!"

That should keep him reading! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My parents are divorced and I live with my mother and seven brothers and sisters. We have strict rules at home: No yelling, no criticizing, no back talk. We aren't supposed to lift our voices, me most of all, because I'm the oldest.

Three weeks ago one of my brothers was quietly aggravating me. They're good at that! I told him politely to stop, and when he didn't I got mad and raised my voice a little. He kept on, and finally I yelled at him and called him a few names. Like a flash, I had the liquid dish detergent squirted in my mouth. It burned and foamed and I sassed my mother back. Which made things a lot worse. I spent the evening in my room, smarting.

Ever since then my temper has been flaring off at everybody. I'm afraid I'll have no friends left if this keeps on, as I take it out on them because I'll really get it if I pop off at home. What has happened to me? — HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS:

Your mother's unrealistic rules built up so much pressure you exploded. You keep on boiling over because the pressure continues. And your friends get burned.

But I'll bet you are feeling better all the time! Soon you'll learn to regulate your steam valve — especially if you talk your problem over with a counselor or a few close friends. Perhaps you might even persuade your mother that rigid peace makes nervous, resentful kids. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 18, and my mother still picks out my clothes. She must get them off the matron's rack as the skirts are below my knees. I can't shorten them! They make me the college odd ball. If you don't agree I should tell her, I'll buy my own with my own money. Please don't print this. — M.H.

DEAR M:

I printed it. Start buying! — H.

BACKSTAGE AT THE OPERA

A group of Sausalito Woman's Club members were invited by Mrs. Kurt Herbert Adler to make a morning tour backstage at the San Francisco Opera and yesterday they accepted the invitation of the wife of the opera company director. Here Mrs. Adler, center, shows Mrs. Frank Kelly, left, and Mrs. E. D. Bronson Jr. some of the tremendous number of wigs used in the current season's productions. Two club groups made the tour yesterday morning, personally escorted by Mrs. Adler.

Women's Rights Seen By Margaret Mead

hours because no one might be home when he arrives. Then it means another week's wait.

"WE HAVE TURNED the modern family into a power plant that is expected to operate entirely under its own steam," she says. "Present methods of organized living in the United States are probably the most wasteful in all of history."

Every 20 or so homes in the typical American suburb should have someone paid to wait around for the plumber or take care of the children when they're sick and both parents are working, she argues.

"Really," she adds, "a chief justice has better things to do that stay up all night with his grandchild or mow the lawn."

The Swedish government report also makes a number of other somewhat controversial points on the women's rights question.

SOME EXAMPLES:

—"The character of matrimony as an institution for the support of women according to the Occidental tradition has become an indirect obstacle to her emancipation in modern industrial society."

—If women are to have full equality, they must assume a greater share of what has traditionally been considered manly obligations, such as trade union and political activity and sharing in the responsibility of providing financial support for the children.

—Women should "not be able to acquire social status and privileges automatically by virture of their husbands' contribution to public life"

Use Large Scale Florals To Raise The Roof In Home

By VIVIAN BROWN

(AP) To create illusions of space take a tip from trendsetting artist-designer Jack Denst. Use large-scale wall decorations.

"The returning vacationist who has enjoyed spacious accommodations is conscious of the limits of his own home or apartment. It is especially true of travelers in Europe who become accustomed to 10 or 12-foot ceiling heights."

Denst suggests a single large scale floral or an important vertical stripe of florals to draw the eye to that single decoration and endow the rest of the room with an expansive air. A mural, tapestry or large painting, will also achieve this effect.

He advises travelers not to overload their home with foreign acquisitions, but to limit collections to three basic colors. Denst restricts his own collection of art pieces to subjects executed in black, white or actual wood, thus enabling him to vary use of objects from time to time while maintaining a decorative balance.

Store those "extra" vacation prizes in a "clutter closet," he suggests, until you can fit them into a room gracefully.

The use of area rugs will also permit a floor level change of scene with rugs alternating to freshen the appearance.

Furniture pieces of different scale, an occasional floor plant instead of a lamp to give an outdoor look to the area are other ideas suggested by Denst for gaining the illusion of more space.

Sheelah is the sister of Mrs. George Ogden Jr. of Torrance and Kelly, Bridget and John Patrick Wolfe Jr. She is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School, attended Dominican College and is employed by Crocker-Citizens Bank in San Rafael.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Marin Catholic High School. He is the brother of Mrs. Thomas Nunas of Santa Rosa and Joseph, Carol and Christian Giacomini of Point Reyes and the grandson of Mrs. Rose Poiani of Point Reyes.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the couple will make their home in Inverness.

Pre-Treat Spots

Stains even on permanent press garments respond to a new pre-treat aerosol laundry product. Apply it to stained or heavily soiled area just before laundering—no need for soaking or rubbing. The manufacturer says the product was developed at the request of the textile industry, plagued by the problem of stain retention of permanent press fabrics. The problem exists because the resins which make the garment hold press also cause it to retain grease or other stains. The new product makes the stains water soluble.

Chewy Bars

Children may like peanut butter caramel bars. Heat 6 cups of puffed wheat in shallow baking pan in preheated 350-degree oven about 10 minutes. Pour into large greased bowl. Melt a 14-ounce package of caramels and ½ cup of water in top of double boiler over hot water; stir occasionally until smooth. Beat in ½ cup of chunk style peanut butter and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Pour over cereal; stir to coat evenly. Press into greased 11 bx 7 inch baking pan. Refrigerate until set; cut into bars. Makes 20 bars.

to Nixon in the second person, mocking the fact that Nixon had refused to join him in a televised debate.

"We have to be willing to take some risks for peace, Mr. Nixon, just as we're willing to take risks on the battlefield. . . what you and I should be doing is asking the government of South Vietnam to attend that conference in Paris and backing our President, and not in any way spreading misinformation that would upset the American people," he said.

Tens of thousands jammed the streets of downtown Los Angeles to greet Humphrey and Muskie in an old-fashioned ticker-tape parade. It was one of their best receptions.

As the motorcade formed, the latest Harris poll showed Humphrey ahead of Nixon for the first time since the Democratic National Convention. The poll gave Humphrey 43 per cent, Nixon 40 and George C. Wallace 13, with 4 per cent undecided.

On the TV program, Humphrey praised President Johnson for what he called a courageous act in stopping the bombing of the North. One caller asked Humphrey "Why you were not against war earlier in your campaign?"

"I've never been for war," he replied, but as vice president he said he thought he should be 'helpful to our administration." He said he favored a negotiated rather than a military settlement.

A forecast of fair weather for most of the nation held the promise of a voter turnout exceeding the record 71 million of four years ago.

The poll gave Humphrey a 43 to 40 endge over Nixon. This was the first time he has led during the campaign in which he once trailed by eight points in the Harris poll and 15 in the Gallup poll. Gallup's final poll over the weekend had it 42 to 40 for Nixon.

Wallace, the phenomenon that threw pollsters and political experts far off their stride, was given between 12 and 13 per cent of the vote in the final polls.

Despite their last minute predictions, the major pollsters, mindful of Harry S Truman's 1948 upset of Thomas Dewey, said the election was too close to call.

As if to bear out the belief that this election defies prediction, the nation's first voters failed to follow the usual script.

In the little town of Dixville Notch, N. H., the 12 voters who cast their ballots after midnight split 8 votes for Humphrey, 4 for Nixon. Nixon got all the town's eight registered voters in the 1960 presidential election he lost to John F. Kennedy in a defeat that was supposed to bury him politically.

In Ellsworth, N. H., however, the 11 voters did follow tradition, casting straight Republican ballots.

Besides the three presidential candidates, voters across the country will elect 21 governors, 34 senators and all 435 representatives as well as hundreds of lesser statewide and local candidates.

Republicans were given a good chance of increasing their current margin of 26 governorships, a slight chance of capturing the House, but little chance of gaining more than two to four seats in the Senate, far short of control.

If no candidate gets the needed electoral votes in today's balloting, the Electoral College meeting would be the subject of intense trading efforts to deliver this final figure.

But if the electors fail to reach a verdict the choice would go to the new House in January, with each state delegation having one vote.

Window Damaged

Robert Herman Golyn of Marin County Furniture, 2158 Fourth Street, San Rafael, reported yesterday that a hole had been shot in a display window during the weekend, police said. Value of the window was about $300, Golyn told police.

Session Canceled

The Marin City Target Area board did not meet last night as scheduled. No one in the Marin City office or the Marin Economic Opportunity Council office in San Rafael today knew why the meeting was called off.

Teachers Back Mission Rebels

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Teacher's Union voted last night to approve the use of Mission Rebel street gang members as high school counselors.

The executive board of the union preciously protested a contract between the Rebels and the school superintendent's office which provided that gang members be called in to help quiet disturbances.

The Rebels "blatantly violated" the spirit of the program by encouraging rather than discouraging uneasiness at some schools, the executive board of the union said.

in which the test has been ordered is that of William Duncan Lindley.

He had pleaded guilty to two charges of attempted child molesting and was already on two years' probation as a juvenile for child molesting when he entered Atascadero State Hospital May 17, 1967, as a mentally disordered sex offender.

On Sept. 17 this year, the hospital staff returned Lindley to Marin Superior Court, saying he has received maximum hospital benefit, without showing any signs of improvement.

The staff reported Lindley has been having "increasingly very disturbing fantasies of torture and sex. . . . Because of his fantasies, staff regard him as a potential murderer."

Lindley has now been returned to Municipal Court, where Goldstein suspended criminal proceedings in 1967 and started Lindley on his way to Atascadero.

Those procedings have begun again and Judge Goldstein must either sentence Lindley on two misdemeanor charges or suspend proceedings again and send him to state prison as a mentally disordered sex offender.

When two local psychiatrists reported Lindley as sane, Judge Goldstein ordered the chromosome test. A hearing on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 14 in Judge Goldstein's court.

Von Feldt, who pleaded guilty yesterday to the battery charge, was told to return to court Dec. 6 for sentencing.

Man's Leg Cut In Fight Challenge

David Leroy Glasscock of 303 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was treated for a severe cut on his left leg last night at Marin General Hospital following an incident at the Bermuda Palms, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police said.

Police said Glasscock and four companions said they were approached by three men and challenged to a fight. All but Glasscock left and later it was discovered that he was cut, reported police, who did not say whether Glasscock had fought.

New Fire Snorkel Due Discussion

The San Rafael Fire Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at city hall to discuss the new piece of equipment for which the city council appropriated $25,000 last night.

The new equipment, a fire truck with an 85-foot snorkel, is estimated to cost a total of $75,000, with payments to be spread over a three-year period.

Teen-Age Motorist Hurt In Petaluma

Innocent Plea

know what was going on. That's why I can deal with it."

From Los Angeles, Nixon goes to New York City today for what his aides said would be a "victory celebration" at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He voted by absentee ballot last wek.

Just as Humphrey got a question about what Nixon said on the GOP telethon, the Republican nominee got one about a Humphrey telethon remark. The Democrat contended that a Nixon economic adviser had talked about a possible 1969 increase in unemployment because of the need to combat inflation.

When asked about this, Nixon contended that a Humphrey economist had made such a statement and added, referring to his Democratic rival, "Boy, he really is getting confused."

Questions asked of Nixon during his four-hour telethon over the NBC network were phoned from all parts of the nation to 100 telephone operators in the TV studio. After being screened, they were read to Nixon by former Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson.

Vietnam figured repeatedly in questions relayed to Nixon.

Contending that prospective peace talks "came apart at the seams" a few days ago, Nixon said the bomb halt did not stop Communist shelling of cities in the South nor the flow of military supplies from the North. Asserting that President Johnson had relied, in preparing for the halt, on "a team of men who are tired," Nixon said:

"This pause would have been better prepared had we had a fresh team in there."

He said that if there's no peace before Inauguration Day, "I'll bring in a new diplomatic team and we will end this war."

their ballots when they received them, but found that the prepunched holes simply designated the number of their precinct.

At San Rafael's Sun Valley School, 120 of the 240 registered voters at that precinct had voted by late morning. Other San Rafael figures were 157 of 475 at City Hall and 132 of 500 at Terra Linda High School.

At Ross School, 185 of 575 registered voters had balloted by late morning.

The number of registered voters at each precinct includes voters who already have voted by absentee ballot, so the percentage voting is even higher than it appears.

In Fairfax, 176 of 650 had voted at the fire house, 145 of 600 at Deer Park School, and 124 of 526 at Fairfax Central School.

In Sausalito, the figures were 177 of 450 at Campbell Hall, 141 of 600 at City Hall, 136 of 450 at Sausalito Nursery School, 172 of 600 at Star of the Sea Catholic Church, and 160 of 550 at the I.D.E.S.S.T. Hall.

In Marin City, 140 of 700 registered at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church had voted, and 138 of 600 at the Village Baptist Church.

On the Belvedere-Tiburon peninsula, approximately one half the registered voters had voted by 11:30 a.m. Belvedere school reported 150 voters out of 300 registered; Whittaker Hall at St. Steven's Church in Belvedere, 202 out of 438; and at the Belvedere Community Hall, 135 voters out of 419.

In Tiburon, of Reed School 200 out of 438 registered voters had cast their ballots; at Tiburon city Hall, 127 out of the 500 registered.

In the Mill Valley area voting was generally lighter, with 147 out of 503 voters turning out at Tamalpais Valley School; 140 out of 454 voters at Old Mill School; 150 out of 507 voters at Homestead School; and 177 out of 480 voters at the Tamalpais Valley Fire Station No. 1.

In Novato, 20 to 25 per cent of the voters had balloted before 11:30 a.m.

60 Days In Jail

Ronald Leland Porter, 25, of Petaluma, was sentenced to 60 days in jail yesterday and placed on two years of probation in Marin Superior Court for felonious assault June 29 on two hitchhikers.

Judge Dismisses Marijuana Count

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Superior Court yesterday dismissed a felony charge of possessing marijuana lodged against Alfred Conrad Ulmer, 21, of San Anselmo.

The judge ruled that, at Ulmer's preliminary hearing, there was improper identification of he alleged contraband and of Ulmer as the man arrested Sept. 1 after his car overturned in Fairfax.

Teachers Agree To End Walkout

DALY CITY (AP) — Some Some 100 striking Daly City high school teachers returned to their classrooms today after agreeing to suspend temporarily their two-day walkout.

The striking teachers, members of the American Federation of Teachers, warned, however, that they would resume the strike Dec. 5 if there was not sufficient progress in talks with district Supt. Edward Morgan.

Six schools in the Jefferson Union High School District remained open during the strike, manned by some 300 of the 400 district teachers, primarily members of the rival Classroom Teachers Association.

Three Cars Hit; Driver Injured

The California Highway Patrol said cars driven by Schultz and Clarence W. Moniot, 53, of San Francisco, sideswiped and the Schultz car was then hit by one driven by Hans H. Kraemer, 32, of San Francisco.

The accident occurred shortly before 10 p.m. east of Ross Drive.

MARY L. L. WILLIAMS

OBITUARIES

'Molo' Williams Dies At 73

Mary Lathrop Lowell Williams of Mill Valley, better known as "Molo" to Marin and San Francisco children over the past 30 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital following a brief illness. She was 73.

A talented artist and sculptor, Mrs. Williams, who was also known as "Molly," directed a children's arts and crafts school in San Francisco for 25 years and for the past five years in Mill Valley.

In her Mill Valley shop, located at 10 Locust Avenue, she maintained what she said was the "second best collection" of antique toys in the United States.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Mrs. Williams attended the Chicago Art Institute, where she became a student of Charles Mulligan and Gutzon Borglum, designer and sculptor of Mount Rushmore. For Borglum she worked on wax models for the national monument in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Shortly afterwards, she married Arthur Carter Lowell, a member of the famed James Russell Lowell family. She and her husband lived for several years in Auburn, where he was one of the youngest district attorneys in the state. While in Auburn, Mrs. Williams taught art in the public schools.

In 1938, following her husband's death, she established the Molo Crafts School at Lombard and Baker streets in San Francisco, well attended by children from San Francisco and Marin after regular school hours. The only requirement of attendance was that children finish whatever project they started.

During the summers, Molo took the children on five tours of Europe and on many other trips around the United States so that they could "see the things that are history and will make history."

Highlights of the tours included stops at the world's largest toy store in London and a camel ride in Egypt.

She spent summers and weekends in Tiburon for many years prior to moving to Mill Valley in 1963. Because of poor health, she taught fewer children in recent years but this summer was able to make a final European tour. She returned to her home above the Locust Avenue shop in October.

Last year, she married Alexander E. Williams, her partner in the Molo Crafts school since it was first founded.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Elizabeth McKegney of Tiburon; a son, A. C. Lowell of Newport Beach, and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

ALBERT GRIMM

Albert Henry Grimm, 59, of 5740 Redwood Highway, Petaluma, died early this morning at a Santa Rosa hospital after a long illness.

Born in Cotati, he was educated in Petaluma schools and was employed as a truck driver with the Jamison Trucking Co. and the Petaluma Cooperative Creamery. He retired two and a half years ago due to ill health. He was a member of the Teamsters and Machinists Union, Petaluma Local No. 624.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Grimm; his mother, Mrs. Jeanne Murphy of Petaluma; a daughter, Barbara Jean Beltrametti of Petaluma; three brothers, Kenneth Grimm and Edwin Murphy of Petaluma and Harold Murphy of Santa Rosa.

Funeral will be held Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Interment will be at the Chapel of the Chimes, Santa Rosa.

WILKES JOHNSON

Wilkes Walter Johnson, 60, of 1008 Third Street, Novato, died last night, apparently of a heart attack, while working at the Liquor Mart at 1403 Grant Avenue, according to Novato police.

Johnson, who had a history of heart trouble, was all right when his wife, Minette Louise, telephoned him at 9 p.m. She went to the store at 9:25 p.m. and found his body, according to police.

Johnson was born in Bemidji, Minn., and spent most of his in Madison, Wis. He was a painting contractor for many years until ill health forced him to leave that profession. He then became a real estate dealer in Madison. Johnson moved to Novato in 1962.

He was a member of the painter's union in Madison, and the Grace Lutheran Church in Novato.

Besides his wife, Johnson is survived by a son, Wilkes Louis Johnson of Novato, who is chairman of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission; a daughter, Mrs. Ardis Suzanne Zimmerman of Santa Rosa, and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato.

MRS. NEWELL

Private funeral for Mrs. Creolia Newell of San Anselmo were held Friday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Mrs. Newell, 84, died Wednesday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness.

A native of North Carolina, she lived in California for 40 years, the past five in Marin.

She resided at 16 Saunders Avenue.

She had no known immediate survivors.

MILTON PETER RICHARDSON

Milton Peter Richardson, Mill Valley businessman, died yesterday of a heart attack at Marin General Hospital. He was 55.

A native of Wheatland, Sacramento County, Richardson moved to Marin County with his family when he was 5. He was a graduate of San Rafael High School.

He moved to Mill Valley in 1950 where he was employed as manager of Albert's department store (now Mayer's) until 1953 when he became a partner in Bennett's Variety Store at 19 Throckmorton Avenue. He was an active partner in the store's operations until his death.

He was a member of the Mill Valley Rotary Club and Court Marin 1950 of the Independent Order of Foresters. He was also an active member of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley where he served as choir director.

He is survived by his wife, Ida D. Richardson of Mill Valley; a daughter, Sandra E. Richardson of Mill Valley; a son, Dean Richardson of Hayward; two sisters, Eunice Beeley of Lake Tahoe and Bernice Oliver of Camino, Placer County; a brother, Clair Richardson of San Rafael; and one grandchild.

Funeral will be at 1 p.m. Thursday at the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley. Interment will be at the Mount Tamalpais Cemetery in San Rafael. Friends may call between 2 p.m. tomorrow and 11 a.m. Thursday at the memorial chapels of Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

Paul Schmidt, 82, was found dead yesterday in his home at 257 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, apparently of natural causes, according to the Marin County Coroner's office.

The body was found about 4 p.m. by tenants of two apartments on Schmidt's property, according to Asst. County Coroner Eugene R. Fontaine. One tenant, Arthur Wagner, had gone to Schmidt's house to pay his rent but his knock was unanswered.

Wagner summoned a neighbor, Robert Lebakos, and the two broke in the door. Schmidt was lying on the floor.

Wagner said he last saw Schmidt walking in his yard Sunday.

Dessert Dressup

Top off a backyard dinner with an easy-to-make fancy dessert—flaming strawberries. With a potato peeler, remove the skin from an orange, and cut it into small pieces. Cook the orange zest in a skillet or chafing dish blazer pan with 1 cup of orange juice and ½ cup of sugar for 5 minutes. Add 3 cups of fresh strawberries and heat about 1 minute. Remove from heat. In a small pan, heat ¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon of cognac slightly. When the alcohol fumes begin to rise, light with a long match and pour over strawberries. Spoon flaming sauce over berries with long-handled spoon or shake pan gently until flames die. As flames dwindle, pour sauce over a large mound of vanilla ice cream. If desired, peaches, pears or other fruit may replace berries.

Impulse Buying

Careful planning can reduce unnecessary trips to the food store and it can guard against impulse buying, both of which can add to the cost of your family's groceries. Shopping alone rather than with another member of the family helps keep down impulse buying, too.

CANDLE SHOP

Lots of ideas for lovely holiday table settings at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP. I especially like the fat Zarape candles in three sizes, all with subtle stripes of fall colors. And, of course, candle wreaths in autumn designs are very much in evidence. All the wreaths at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP are stunning but, my favorite includes small velvet fruit in a warm burnt orange (no pun intended) nestled on dark green velvet leaves. Pretty!

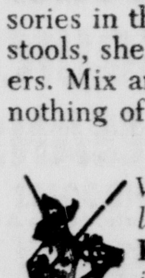
It's "that time" again, honey . . . and CAPRICORN BOOKS has stocked their usual fine collection of books of Christmas cards . . . cards that are sure to be noticed and appreciated. (Of course, they offer imprinting services but don't wait too long for this. Their cards are very popular and the waiting list tends to get crowded.) Lots of "special interest" books on sale now at CAPRICORN BOOKS . . . children's books, beautiful adult gift books, etc. Take advantage!

LUNCHEON SPECIALS EVERY WEEKDAY!

Chris Gartman, congenial owner of The HICK'RY PIT, tells me his popular Business Man's Lunch and Merchant's Lunch are now being served every week day. Both of these lunches are a darned good deal . . . a hearty meal at a remarkably low price. The Business Man's Lunch features choice of barbecued sandwich, homemade pie or cake and coffee or tea. And, offering a different hot entree every day, the Merchant's Lunch also includes a vegetable and beverage. Be sure to try The HICK'RY PIT homemade mince meat pie . . . not mince pie, but mince meat pie. There is a very tasty difference . . . ask Chris to tell you about it!

If visions of sugarplums are starting to run through your head, turn visions into striking holiday arrangements and decorations with the help of ALBERTA OF MARIN. There are free demonstrations each Tuesday that let you watch these fabulous creations being made, and classes for same each Thursday.

Great new towel by Springmaid at THE GOLDEN CHERUB. This is the "black eyed Susan" design and available in four colors. If you are color-coordinated-minded, this lovely little bath boutique is for you. Ferinstance, their collection of wicker bath accessories in three looked-for colors . . . waste baskets, stools, shelves, towel rings (see these!) and hampers. Mix and match to your heart's content (to say nothing of creating a unique decor all your own)!



Well, now, just take a peek at the new luncheon item on the menu at KUBLAI KHAN. This oh-so-attractive restaurant is offering a steak sandwich, shoestring potatoes, salad and garlic bread for $1.85. and I say "offering" advisedly! Said steak sandwich is your choice of petite filet mignon, New York cut, or Chateaubriand!

Lots of news over at INN MARIN. The popular Fashion Luncheons have reappeared each Wednesday at 12:30 (and I do mean popular! Reservations are suggested.) Besides a completely new menu, with very agreeable prices, INN MARIN offers dancing to the lilting tunes of The Eastman Trio starting at 9:30 Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. And, for a really wild scene, catch the breakfast show, with discotheque dancing, at 2:30 A.M. on Saturday and Sunday. Like I said, gang, "news" and all of it good!

A toast of The Bubbly (or a good cry in your beer) whatever the occasion may call for, VILLAGE LIQUORS is ready to help. This shop carries an extraordinary selection of fine domestic and imported wines and, should you be a bit unschooled in this department, just ask Dan . . . he'll be glad to give you expert advice. For the "crying towel crowd" try VILLAGE LIQUORS' tapper size keg of beer. It's enough for the whole group to commiserate and then start planning for the next election. Cheers!

Holiday season is in full swing at that charming Hallmark haven, ROJEAN'S CARD & PARTY SHOP. More attractive than ever, if that's possible, this year's Hallmark paper party things for Thanksgiving offer several designs. In paper plates (choice of sizes) napkins (likewise) coasters, cups, invitations and place cards I found traditional Pilgrim and turkey designs plus a new-comer. This is a mustardy gold color printed with autumn leaves and fruit. Lots of fold-out decorations, too, in centerpiece size or for individual place settings.

Stunning handbags at THE SANDAL. As you might expect, they are of the finest leathers and many in this season's favorite, hand polished waxhide. Awfully good looking leather jewelry here too in the form of watch bands, barettes, et al. And, natcherly, boots, boots, boots!

"Snoopy for President!"

Hey, gang, RANCHO RAVIRI features the complete Mission Pack line this year. Louis Reimer, Master Chef, and ruler of the range at L'ENTREE tells me there are a few choice dates open with his catering service for holiday parties. This complete, and realistically priced, service is very popular, so don't dawdle, dear. Also, in the think-ahead-department, I like to keep a number of L'ENTREE casserole dinners on hand in the freezer for those inevitably exhausted evenings after Christmas shopping days. These casseroles are really dinner entrees and go from L'ENTREE to the oven or the freezer in their original container. Handy and simply delicious!

Living A Long, Strong Life

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Ninety-year-old, nearly blind Helen Ward Bloomfield, who lives with a dog and four cats in her Chinese style Sausalito home, is a woman who holds strong, unconventional opinions, and she lives according to her convictions.

With an earthy sense of humor expressed in a continuous stream of poems and witty, racy stories, more appropriate for a magazine like "Playboy" than a family newspaper, she told the story of her life recently.

"Life's little ills annoyed me
When life's little ills were few.
One fly in my pot of ointment put me in an awful stew.
But experience has taught me the infrequent good to prize:
Now I'm thankful for some ointment in my little pot of flies."

Yet Helen Bromfield is not as resigned and tolerant as this might imply, for life's little and not so little frustrations still annoy her, and she says, "If I couldn't cuss in Chinese, I'd explode!"

Some of the most important facts about Mrs. Bromfield are that she was the first white stenographer and the first public stenographer in Hong Kong, she says, and a reporter for many years, traveling all over the world. She had many exciting experiences that included covering the Paris Peace Treaty after World War I.

Attesting to these facts are a faded vanity case crammed with passports used on a number of trips around the world and a pile of old newspaper clippings and magazines. Yellowing, creased pictures show that she was once a Gibson girl-type beauty.

HELEN IS NOT sure whether she was born in Detroit, Mich. or Ohio and is not particularly interested where it was. Orphaned at an early age, she was brought up on a "Godforsaken Ohio farm" by an elderly grandmother. She attended a one-room country school and had little respect for the education offered. She reminisced. "We students used to chant this little ditty:

"O Lord of love, look down from above
Upon these simple scholars.
They hired a fool to teach the school
And paid him forty dollars."

"Later I graduated from the Mountain States Business College in Parkersburg, W. Va.," she went on, "where I learned stenography and typing, and after my grandmother died, I sold the farm for $200 and bought a ticket for Hong Kong, the farthest place from the farm I could think of.

"In Hong Kong I went to the best hotel and for $65 a month got room and four meals a day including afternoon tea — in those days $20 was worth about $100. I noticed after about a week that tourists were always coming in to write letters; so I asked the manager if there was a public stenographer. He said no, and when he agreed to let me try, I bought a second hand machine and was in business. I made lots of money!"

LATER HELEN worked as a stenographer for the American Tobacco Company for eight years in Hong Kong, then deciding she would like to try reporting, she returned to the United States and took courses in shorthand and typing, specializing in speed writing, at Eastman College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

At this point Helen interrupted her reminiscences to express her contempt for young people today who get their education too easily.

"Education isn't something you get as easy as putting cream in your coffee," she said. "You have to go out and scratch for it. In Ohio I used to pick wild blackberries and sell them to a saloon keeper to pay for mine."

Equipped to do reporting, Helen first got a little experience in Shanghai. On one of her many trips she met her husband, an insurance man and was married in Manila in 1911.

"I lived in Manila for a number of years—if you can call it that because I was never home much—and worked as a reporter for the 'Philippine Review'."

It was while she was working in this job that Helen covered the Paris Peace Treaty and had some of her most interesting experiences.

After a divorce she became engaged to Sir Edgar Sengier, manager of the Bank of Belgium.

"He took me to dinner at the home of French premier Georges Clemenceau," she recalled," and I remember telling him a joke he thought was funny.

"I'm a vegetarian, you know, and I asked him if he knew why cannibals had stopped eating missionaries. No, he said—so I recited this:

"I have eaten hostile tribes with the greatest of urbanity.
I have partaken of the yellow, black and brown,
But to eat a missionary is the acme of insanity;
You can't keep a good man down."

THIS ANECDOTE pointed up the strength of one of her convictions, for even at this dinner with the famous statesman she insisted on eating only vegetables. Being a vegetarian is related to her immense love of animals.

"Animals were around millions of years before souls were invented. I'm an atheist," she confessed. "They say God created man in his image, but the real truth is that man created his gods in his own image. What people need is not more religion but more compassion."

Religion was the cause of breaking her engagement to Sir Sengier. "He was a Catholic, and I was an atheist," she said; "So why should I marry him and ruin his life. He never did me any harm."

The Bromfields had one daughter, who, she said, was killed in an accident in 1942, and she doesn't care to talk about that.

The strong-willed old lady is an ardent believer in the cause of population control.

"I was a great friend of Margaret Sanger, a pioneer in birth control," she says. "When I was in the Orient and the Philippines I saw so much of breeding like flies and the resulting misery that I could never forget it."

Hippies are among the superfluous people in the world, she believes.

"If I had my way," she snorted, "I'd do with them the way they did in the French revolution—put them all on a huge barge full of holes and tow it out to sea."

After 1917 Helen Bromfield worked for the Food Administration under Herbert Hoover and in several other governmental departments in Washington, D. C., before settling in Sausalito. Her last job was as a stenographer at Fort Mason in San Francisco, where she worked until she was 77.

With her usual complete candor and lack of pretensions she commented, "All the other said they were secretaries, but I was just a stenographer."

A still better illustration of her complete lack of pretensions, especially cultural ones, was this remark, "I'm not like some people I know who pretend to be so musical because they go to operas. One time they played 'Little Brown Jug,' and I stood up because I thought it was the national anthem."

IN 1930 HELEN Bromfield had a Chinese architect design her present home with its Chinese architecture. The genuine jade green porcelain roo cost as much as all the res of the house, she says. Man of the furnishings in it ar Chinese.

Today she lives there wit her pets, Tippie the dog, Mamie Eisenhower her 23-year old cat and three white Persian cats and manages to ge along quite well despite havin been nearly blind since th removal of cataracts from bot eyes in 1962.

She never gets lonely, sh says. She has developed he sense of touch so that she ca do some sewing, crochetin and typing of letters to frien all over the world, enclosin with the letters to friends wh are cat owners, some of th catnip she grows for her ow cats.

THIS PICTURE was taken of Mrs. Helen Bromfield and an officer at Fort Mason in San Francisco on the day she retired at 77 years of age from the last job she held, that of a stenographer at the fort. She holds a goodbye message from co-workers showing her Chinese roof and some of the cats that have been her companions for years.

Swedes Open Battle For Women's Rights

By DAVID ROZENZWEIG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A new battle cry is being heard in the struggle for women's rights. Put simply, it's "emancipate the men!"

A Swedish government report to the United Nations on the status of women says any attempt to give women an equal place in the world without relieving their traditional burden of caring for home and children is doomed.

Thus, the Swedes reckon, husbands should be "emancipated" from their work so they can devote more time to cooking dinner, doing the wash, taking Johnny to the dentist and other housewifely chores.

Undoubtedly this would mean giving most men shorter working hours and educating and encouraging them to take a more active role in parenthood, the report says.

It even goes so far as to note a suggestion voiced in some Swedish quarters that fathers are entitled to leaves of absence from their jobs—with pay—so they can stay at home while their children are young.

"THE GOVERNMENT is well aware that this view appears revolutionary and unrealistic in the eyes of the representatives of many other countries," the Swedes admit. "A growing opinion in Sweden has, however, rallied to its support."

In a country where four out of every 10 workers are women and 70 per cent of its women hold jobs of some sort, the problem of working mothers in Sweden is a burning public issue.

This lively debate, the report says, has fostered a new approach involving a break from the traditional habit of regarding these problems strictly as "women's questions."

"The demand for 'male emancipation' in family life is supported by the results of recent psychological research which have proved that the identification of growing boys become uncertain in a one-sided, mother-dominated home environment," the report says, adding that this leads to "overcompensation expressed in exaggerated agressiveness and may be one explanation of the higher crime rate as compared to girls."

PUBLIC DEMAND has therefore spurred socialist Sweden to do more for families in which both parents work, a practice that is becoming almost normal, the report says. It lists a broad range of family services available to Sweden's population, from all-day nurseries to domestic help supplied by municipalities.

But does it follow that what's good for Sweden is good for the United States.

YES, SAYS MARGARET MEAD, eminent anthropologist, long-time observer of the role of women in American society and editor of a presidential commission report on equal rights for women in the United States.

"As long as we put women in the position of caring for two jobs, it isn't equality at all," she says.

Miss Mead endorses the Swedish approach to working mothers, but believes the probem can't be solved merely by giving husbands more time and responsibility around the house.

As she sees it, the problem is also deeply rooted in the "isolation of the contemporary American family."

Consider the plight of the average family in suburbia she says. Getting the kids to nursery school or shopping for the family needs can easily entail driving 15 miles. When the kitchen sink springs a leak, it means waiting two weeks for the plumber to come and fearing to venture out for a few

Tam Board Sets Candidates' Night

The Tamalpais High School District board last night scheduled a candidates' night at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 so that not only the district's teachers but other interested people may hear views of those seeking a vacancy on the board.

On Monday, the Tamalpais District Teachers Association asked the board for representation at private interviews of candidates for appointment to fill out the two and one-half years remaining of the term of trustee John C. Siemens, who resigned.

Trustees Berton C. Jacobsen and William D. Lewis, who had earlier expressed opposition to the candidates' night which was proposed by board President Gloria W. Melbostad, agreed to the idea after Mrs. Melbostad assured them it wouldn't be "a carnival."

Mrs. Frances Compton, a League of Women voters member, agreed to act as moderator for the candidates night or find a substitute if she was not available.

Trustee Lewis said he did not feel the public meeting was a substitute for private interviews of the candidates by the board, and other trustees agreed with him. Nov. 13 was selected for a special meeting to interview candidates privately.

In answering the teachers' request, Mrs. Melbostad agreed with members of the audience who said that teachers should not be represented at private interviews and more than any other group should.

A fifth name was added to the list of those seeking the vacant trustee position as trustees learned that Rev. Willard Frederickson, pastor of the San Geronimo Community Church, had written asking that he be considered.

Deadline for filing for the position is 5 p.m. Thursday.

In other action last night the trustees accepted a project construction cost estimate for Tiburon High School of $5,278,000, upon which architects' fees will be charged.

The action came after Trustee Lewis found a $100,000 mistake in arithmetic in figures submitted by the administration. (The mistake was in favor of the district, not the architects.)

In August the board allocated a total of $6,272,888 for the school, which will be built if the district's bond issue in today's election passes.

The board last night also discussed briefly the planned evaluation of the district and superintendent by a management firm and set Nov. 18 as the date for reviewing names of such firms.

The Tamalpais High School Board Also:

BUS — Learned of a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the district office of the transportation study group which is considering the problem of transporting students from Marin City to Tamalpais High School.

LEAVE — Granted a leave of absence for the rest of the school year to Jean Krutman, nurse at Tamalpais High School.

50 Pct. Return Transit Cards

More than 50 per cent of commuters who received questionnaires last Wednesday at the Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza returned the cards, Gen. Mgr. Seymour Kaskin of the Marin Transit District announced yesterday.

Questionnaires are designed to give the transit district information on where commuters live and their destination in San Francisco.

A total of 254 cards were distributed in a trial test. A full-scale distribution of 30,000 questionnaires is scheduled for Nov. 13 between 6 and 9 a.m.

Greyhound Posts Fare Schedules

Greyhound Bus Co. has posted new fare schedules in depots and on buses in preparation for the 4 per cent fare increase which takes effect Saturday. The increase was granted last month by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Typical increases for commuters to San Francisco will be from 55 to 60 cents one-way from Sausalito; from 85 to 90 cents one-way and $12 to $12.50 for a 20-ride book from San Rafael, Manor, Tiburon and Belvedere; from 70 to 75 cents and $11 to $11.45 from Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

The new hike follows a 6 to 8 per cent increase of Sept. 1 for commute fares.

Basque Festival Dancers To Perform

Dancers of the Olaeta Basque Festival of Bilbao will perform at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael.

The troupe of 20 also includes singers and instrumentalists who present folk culture of the Basque provinces of the Western Pyrenees.

At the age of 14, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, was secretary of the American Legation in Russia.

New U.C. Alliance Sets Strike Call

BERKELEY (AP) — The controversy over lectures by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver at a University of California course on racism has led to formation of a new coalition of white and minority student protest groups.

Announcing formation of the New World Alliance yesterday, Gene Goldenfeld said it grew out of the Cleaver dispute and its main concern is "racism and who controls the university."

The alliance announced plans to call for a student strike vote tomorrow.

In the new organization are organizations of white, Negro, Mexican American and American Indian students. A common aim is more minority group students and university employees and an expanded curriculum in minority areas.

Warm Springs Road Segment Is Completed

The first segment of road relocation at the Warm Springs Dam near Cloverdale has been completed, the Army Corps of Engineers reported to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Col. Frank C. Boerger, the corps' district engineer said $5 million has already been spent on the $74 million project, mostly in design studies. He said 2,274 acres of property has been acquired. "Restrictions on funds have delayed purchase of more lands this year, but we will have acquired 17,440 acres by the end of 1971," he said.

Colonel Boerger set late 1975 as the completion date. He said 27 miles of roads will be relocated including two bridges, six miles of access roads, power and telephone lines and several cemeteries.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors also:

SALARY SCHEDULES — Appointed a four-man committee representing the county administrator's office and civil service commission to conduct a survey of salary schedules of neighboring counties and businesses. They asked the surveys begin in the fall of each year and a salary schedule recommendation be presented to the board the first week in January for adoption by Jan. 31. The schedule will go into effect on July 31.

PROPERTY SALE — Approved the Dec. 7 sale of 1.5 acres of land on Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, near the site of a planned boat launching ramp.

Chamber Urges Petaluma Delay Library Action

Directors of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to request city council to withhold action on merging the city library with the county library system.

Director Clyde A. Nelson asked delay until the directors can meet with the library trustees in a study session and form an opinion. City council was scheduled to consider adoption of the merger plan at last night's session.

The library board had requested the merger, saying it would improve services without raising costs.

The Petaluma Chamber directors also:

DIRECTOR — Appointed Milt Whitt, former chamber president, to the board of directors. Whitt, proprietor of the Harmony Music store, replaces James Williams, who resigned last month due to business pressures.

MEMBERSHIP — Appointed a three-man committee to organize a membership drive. Named were Jules Fisher, chairman; Owen Fredericks and Theodore Adkins.

CALENDAR — Appointed a committee to establish a calendar arrangement for the new-events sign that will be added to the welcome sign on the north and south boundaries of the city on Highway 101. Named to the committee were James McCaffrey, Chairman; Rolin Rea, Richard Schollenberger and Lloyd Burlingham.

CONCERT REVIEW

Maestro Unveils His Latest, As Farewell

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

First performance of Maestro Vincenzo Giannini's latest work in the faculty concert of San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow yesterday afternoon also marked his farewell, for he is returning to his native Italy today.

Giannini, who has been director of the San Domenico singers four years, composed the musical settings of three D. H. Lawrence poems and one by Keats on commission from the school last summer and conducted the premiere himself.

The settings were very interesting compositions in eclectic contempory idiom with each of the instruments having individual commentary on the theme of each poem. But soprano Marian Marsh's superb singing of the extremely difficult vocal line covering very wide intervals throughout a wide register and requiring a variety of tonal colors was so outstanding that it gave her solo stature.

The other skilled performers were pianist Faith France, chairman of the music department; violinist Frances Shorr, violist Lucien Mitchell, cellist Jean Mitchell and flutist Frank Barbaria. Several hearings of the work would be needed to appreciate the contribution of each.

Another fascinating original work in contemporary style was pianist-composer Ronald McFarland's Suite No. 1 consisting of a chorale, burlesque and fugue. Though intricate, it had considerable youthful charm, especially the burlesque.

So far out has avant-garde music gone that Giannini's and McFarland's compositions, depite much dissonance, sounded almost conservative, especially to students of the now generation. San Domenico is to be commended for programming such works, since young people are more able to accept new sounds and will provide audiences for today's composers.

Discussion of their selections by performers before they were played has a good idea, making for clarity and better understanding.

In addition to being involved with original compositions, the San Domenico faculty musicians are busy performing musicians, which helps to avoid pedantry.

The remainder of the concert introduced the newest faculty members, two young pianists, Karen Glosserman and Carol Liebling. Miss Liebling, who specializes in professional accompanying, showed that she is gifted in that special art in performance of Schumann's Fantasy Piece No. 1 with Frank Barbaria playing the flute

Miss Glosserman played Brahms' Intermezzo in B Flat Major and Capriccio in C Sharp Minor, playing the former expressively and the latter with some brilliance.

Car Overturns, Injuring Two

Two persons were injured at 12:35 a.m. today when their car overturned on Highway 101 south of Sierra Avenue, Petaluma.

Vernon V. Vogle, 48, of 43 Burlington Drive, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital with facial lacerations. His passenger, Carol Ann Evans, 39 of Santa Rosa, was treated for injuries to the right elbow and left foot.

California Highway Patrol said the car ran off the roadway, struck a drain pipe and overturned throwing both from the car.

Harp Quintet Will Perform Thursday

The Lyra Harp Quintet, composed of Joel Andrews of Mill Valley, and four young women, will present a concert Thursday at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts at 8:30 p.m.

Andrews not only performs but composes and arranges for the harp. He has appeared in solo with harp and flute and with orchestras, with Mill Valley poet James Broughton in "The Bard and the Harpist," and with several dance groups. He teaches at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

The other four harpists are Melanie Clark, Terry Grassi, Rebecca Jewel and Alussa Hess. All have played the harp since childhood and have performed in concerts. Miss Clark and Miss Jewel appeared with Andrews in an ensemble program in the Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais in 1965.

The program will include works by Bach, Ravel and Mendelssohn and will cover the full range of harp music, ending with "Popular Fantasy," a harp treatment of several popular airs by Andrews.

The concert is sponsored jointly by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts and the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department.

Parking Limit On Larkspur's Council Agenda

Request by a dozen merchants that parking be limited to two hours on Magnolia Avenue in north Larkspur will be considered at the 8 p.m. meeting tomorrow of the Larkspur City Council.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the restriction would be from the north end of Hillview Gardens to Estelle Avenue —a distance of about half a mile — on both sides of Magnolia until the widening of Magnolia is completed in about two years.

At present there is not time limit for parking on either side.

The council also is scheduled to go into a closed session with the city attorney to discuss litigation on acquisition of a small parcel at College Park and Magnolia Avenue. The land is owned by Mrs. Betsy Michaelson and has been condemned by the city for widening the intersection.

Kentfield Firemen To Attend School

The Kentfield Fire District Board last night approved sending 18 fireman to Marin County's oil fire school in San Rafael Nov. 23-24.

The school is sponsored by the Marin County Fire Training Officers Association. The board also approved the purchasing for another year of bulk motor oil and supplies from Standard Oil Co. in Marin County.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Only Tony Can Provide Answer To Question Of Former Fiancee

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a girl of 17 with a bad past. I've tried everything from glue to pot to pills, and I didn't stop at necking.

I thought my crowd was out of sight until I met Tony about 13 months ago. We had a long talk that was the changing point of my life. I told him all about myself and he said it didn't matter. I was really happy for the first time — until last week.

We were shopping for wedding rings when we met a fellow Tony hates. I don't know why he hates him so much but when he heard I went around with him, he reacted as never before and yelled, "It's all off!"

I never dated the guy but just rode behind him sometimes on his 'cycle.

I haven't seen Tony since and he hangs up when I call. Nobody will tell me what the feud is about.

Helen, if he forgave me for all the terrible things I did, why can't he understand about the one guy I didn't do anything terrible with? — P.H.

DEAR P.:

Only Tony can answer that question. If he won't, then perhaps he is afraid to. He may hate this fellow because he knows too much — about Tony, not you. (My IGAP — "I'm Guessing Again Perception" — isn't always right, remember.)

Try getting in touch by letter. Set down all the facts on the inside pages, but start with a "hook." Like: "Dear Tony: No matter what, I want you to know I'll understand and be on your side, just as you have always been on mine!"

That should keep him reading! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My parents are divorced and I live with my mother and seven brothers and sisters. We have strict rules at home: No yelling, no criticizing, no back talk. We aren't supposed to lift our voices, me most of all, because I'm the oldest.

Three weeks ago one of my brothers was quietly aggravating me. They're good at that! I told him politely to stop, and when he didn't I got mad and raised my voice a little. He kept on, and finally I yelled at him and called him a few names. Like a flash, I had the liquid dish detergent squirted in my mouth. It burned and foamed and I sassed my mother back. Which made things a lot worse. I spent the evening in my room, smarting.

Ever since then my temper has been flaring off at everybody. I'm afraid I'll have no friends left if this keeps on, as I take it out on them because I'll really get it if I pop off at home. What has happened to me? — HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS:

Your mother's unrealistic rules built up so much pressure you exploded. You keep on boiling over because the pressure continues. And your friends get burned.

But I'll bet you are feeling better all the time! Soon you'll learn to regulate your steam valve — especially if you talk your problem over with a counselor or a few close friends. Perhaps you might even persuade your mother that rigid peace makes nervous, resentful kids. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 18, and my mother still picks out my clothes. She must get them off the matron's rack as the skirts are below my knees. I can't shorten them! They make me the college odd ball. If you don't agree I should tell her, I'll buy my own with my own money. Please don't print this. — M.H.

DEAR M:

I printed it. Start buying! — H.

BACKSTAGE AT THE OPERA

hours because no one might be home when he arrives. Then it means another week's wait.

"WE HAVE TURNED the modern family into a power plant that is expected to operate entirely under its own steam," she says. "Present methods of organized living in the United States are probably the most wasteful in all of history."

Every 20 or so homes in the typical American suburb should have someone paid to wait around for the plumber or take care of the children when they're sick and both parents are working, she argues.

"Really," she adds, "a chief justice has better things to do that stay up all night with his grandchild or mow the lawn."

The Swedish government report also makes a number of other somewhat controversial points on the women's rights question.

SOME EXAMPLES:

—"The character of matrimony as an institution for the support of women according to the Occidental tradition has become an indirect obstacle to her emancipation in modern industrial society."

—If women are to have full equality, they must assume a greater share of what has traditionally been considered manly obligations, such as trade union and political activity and sharing in the responsibility of providing financial support for the children.

—Women should "not be able to acquire social status and privileges automatically by virtue of their husbands' contribution to public life"

Use Large Scale Florals To Raise The Roof In Home

By VIVIAN BROWN

(AP) To create illusions of space take a tip from trendsetting artist-designer Jack Denst. Use large-scale wall decorations.

"The returning vacationist who has enjoyed spacious accommodations is conscious of the limits of his own home or apartment. It is especially true of travelers in Europe who become accustomed to 10 or 12-foot ceiling heights."

Denst suggests a single large scale floral or an important vertical stripe of florals to draw the eye to that single decoration and endow the rest of the room with an expansive air. A mural, tapestry or large painting, will also achieve this effect.

A designer of award-winning wall coverings, Denst says stripes can help lift the roof in a small room.

He advises travelers not to overload their home with foreign acquisitions, but to limit collections to three basic colors. Denst restricts his own collection of art pieces to subjects executed in black, white or actual wood, thus enabling him to vary use of objects from time to time while maintaining a decorative balance.

Store those "extra" vacation prizes in a "clutter closet," he suggests, until you can fit them into a room gracefully.

The use of area rugs will also permit a floor level change of scene with rugs alternating to freshen the appearance.

Furniture pieces of different scale, an occasional floor plant instead of a lamp to give an outdoor look to the area are other ideas suggested by Denst for gaining the illusion of more space.

Chewy Bars

Children may like peanut butter caramel bars. Heat 6 cups of puffed wheat in shallow baking pan in preheated 350-degree oven about 10 minutes. Pour into large greased bowl. Melt a 14-ounce package of caramels and ½ cup of water in top of double boiler over hot water; stir occasionally until smooth. Beat in ½ cup of chunk style peanut butter and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Pour over cereal; stir to coat evenly. Press into greased 11 bx 7 inch baking pan. Refrigerate until set; cut into bars. Makes 20 bars.

Pre-Treat Spots

Stains even on permanent press garments respond to a new pre-treat aerosol laundry product. Apply it to stained or heavily soiled area just before laundering—no need for soaking or rubbing. The manufacturer says the product was developed at the request of the textile industry, plagued by the problem of stain retention of permanent press fabrics. The problem exists because the resins which make the garment hold press also cause it to retain grease or other stains. The new product makes the stains water soluble.

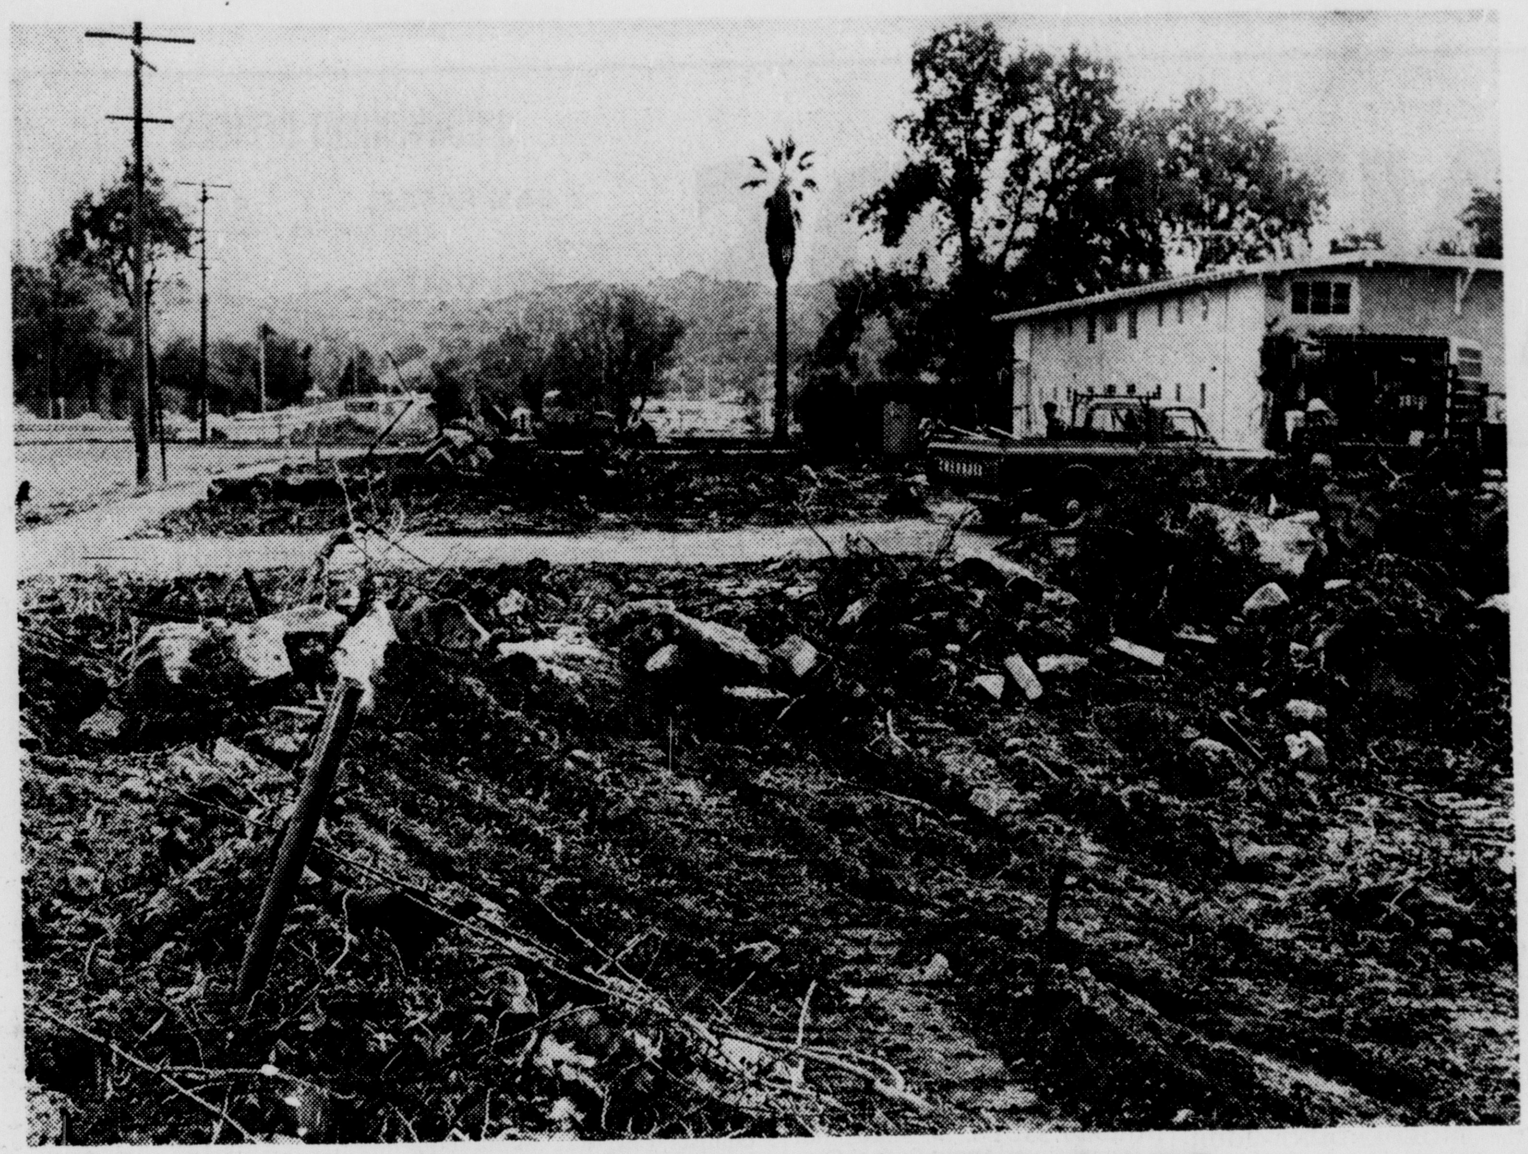
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
THIRD SECTION SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1968



TREES MAKE WAY FOR CARS

A barren vista meets the eye at the northern entrance to San Rafael, where stately trees have gone before the bulldozer in a widening project on Highway 101. Looking south toward the Mission Avenue off-ramp, nothing remains of the once proud stand of eucalyptus and other trees and the many buildings along the west side of the highway. Burning Ban Ends In Some Marin Areas

The summer ban on open burning ended today in unincorporated areas of the county and in 11 fire districts.

Open burning will be permitted from 7 a.m. to noon for residents of one and two-family dwellings without obtaining a permit in the county fire department jurisdiction, Chief Louis J. Bloom said. Open burning is banned elsewhere by air pollution regulations.

The only fires permitted after noon will be agricultural burning, Bloom said.

Following the same policies are Larkspur, Kentfield, Sausalito, Tamalpais Valley, Stinson Beach, Bolinas, Ross, Nicasio, Marinwood and Novato.

The same hours, 7 a. m. tonoon, will be observed in Mill Valley, Alto, Tiburon, San Rafael and Terra Linda. However, a permit is required in each of those jurisdictions.

San Anselmo will allow open burning from 7 to 11 a.m. with a city permit. Corte Madera, where a permit is also required, will allow burning from 6 to 11 a.m.

In Belvedere, burning will be permitted from 7 to 11 a.m. daily except Sundays and holidays.

Fairfax was to announce its hours later.

Fairfax Board Supports Stone

The Fairfax School District board last night voted to support the candidacy of one of its trustees, Dr. George C. Stone, for the Tamalpais High School District board.

Dr. Stone, a clinical psychologist is one of five persons seeking the seat on the high school board which was vacated by Dr. John C. Siemens.

In other action the board agreed to resurvey the line between White Hill School and the property of Arthur Bell. Bell has asked the school district not to build a fence until the line is established.

The trustees learned that the district's enrollment has dropped from 1,140 to 1,122 since school started.

Jury Selection Starts For Novotny, Arceo

Jury selection began today in the murder trial of Dennis C. Novotny and John Arceo in Marin Superior Court before Judge Thomas F. Keating.

Novotny, 22, and Arceo, 31, are charged in the death of Wesley L. Marshall of San Rafael, who died Jan. 6, a month after he was beaten and robbed in his home.

A third accused, Claude (Frenchy) LeBas, has pleaded guilty to the murder charge and is now serving a life sentence.

Deputy Dist. Attorney Joshua W. Thomas indicated he would call approximately 25 witnesses, including LeBas, in the case. Defense attorneys said they would call four witnesses for Arceo, including his wife, and four for Novotny.

Judge Keating excused 16 persons from the 65-member panel before attorneys began questioning and selection. He indicated the jury might be chosen in time to start the prosecution case Friday.

Both defendants were calm and well-dressed at the opening session, Novotny dapper in green jacket and brown trousers. Arceo, who wore a gray suit, resembled a junior executive while Novotny looked like a young man ready for a Friday night date.

Friese Named Deputy In Marin Schools

Stanley H. Friese, present assistant superintendent for educational services for the Marin County Schools office, last night was named by the county board of education to the post of deputy superintendent.

He replaces Charles E. McCully, effective Jan. 1. McCully has been hired as superintendent of the newly formed Shoreline Unified School District.

The board also named Robert E. Spain, coordinator of the instructional materials center, to take Friese's present post. No salary change is involved in either appointment, Friese said. He said the coordinator's position will be filled in the near future.

Friese, 50, has been assistant superintendent for five years. He and his wife, Sue, reside at 3 Eagle Drive, Novato. They have one daughter.

The County Board of Education also:

COUNCIL — Established a nine-member negotiating council to be composed of eight members of the California Teachers Association and one member of the American Federation of Teachers.

CLASSES — Established two classes for educationally handicapped pupils of Southern Marin. The portable classrooms will be located at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School in the Larkspur School District.

CERTIFICATES — Approved the issuance of 20 temporary teaching certificates and 20 life teaching diplomas.

Later Sausalito Curfew Asked

The City-County Services Committee agreed last night to suggest to Sausalito that its 10 p.m. weekday curfew for youths be extended to 11 p.m.

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported that Sausalito is the only city in the county which has a 10 p.m. curfew.

The Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission has recommended a uniform curfew law for the entire county, and relaxation of curfew on weekends.

The committee decided to ask the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen to consider curfew relaxation on weekends.

The committee also asked Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows to get information on the costs of setting up a central crime laboratory for Marin. Barrows will report at the next meeting, scheduled for Dec. 2.

Many Seeking Library Post

Numerous applications have been received for the position of librarian, and an interview board will be set up later this month, the Sausalito Library Board decided last night according to Librarian Kay Bertau, who was unable to say how many have applied.

Mrs. Berteau will be leaving Friday. Janet Gartner, children's librarian, will be acting librarian and Margaret Georgetti will continue in charge of circulation.

The board accepted an etching by Max Pollak of Sausalito. The gift, presented by Pollak and Mrs. B. W. Ansell, was in memory of the late Dr. Fred M. Tetzlall.

Carpets Taken

The theft of two carpets valued at $175 from 948 Lea Drive, San Rafael, was reported yesterday by Mal Hann, project manager of the Meadows apartment development, police said. The theft occurred between Friday and yesterday, Hann told police.

San Marin High Set For Students

San Marin High School in Novato will be ready for students when Thanksgiving vacation ends on Dec. 2, Supt. James G. Bunker told the Novato Unified School District board last night.

Furniture is being moved into the administration building, library and the large classroom wing, Bunker said. Next week, the science wing will be ready, he said. The shops, which have been used for storage, and the gymnasium will take two or three more weeks to complete, he estimated.

Shops should be ready at mid-December and the gymnasium a week later, he said.

The board approved change orders for $1,575 for the high school.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

READING — Received a report that in the Stanford reading test given in the first grades last May, Novato ranked above the state average in all three grades.

SPEECH TESTING — Heard from speech therapists Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte, that the testing of kindergarten children for speech defects for the past three years has shown these defects early and much progress has been made in correction. Results of these tests and testing methods will be made available to other schools in Marin County, partially paid for by the Babcock Foundation.

GIFTS — Accepted gifts of $1,560 made four years ago by the Marin County Insurance Agents Association for driver training, which will now be used for that, and of $500 from the Loma Verde Homeowners Association for playground equipment for Loma Verde School.

RESIGNATIONS — Received a report from Deputy Supt. Ralph Giovanniello that Novato had 12.6 per cent teacher turnover last year and 12.3 per cent the previous year. This is about average for the Bay Area, he said.

Zucker Asks Statement Retraction

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker has demanded that the Independent-Journal retract statements made by supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Barr last week that Zucker is incompetent.

Baar made the statement in a campaign appearance on Radio Station KTIM's Sounding Board program Thursday. The broadcast was covered by the Independent-Journal and an account of it published in the Thursday evening paper.

Baar said he would definitely recommend a new planning director if elected as supervisor from the fourth district. He said, "Mr. Zucker is incompetent in his job."

Baar faulted Zucker as making additions to his staff "because he can't answer the questions."

Zucker called the statements "totally untrue as well as irresponsible."

Tools Taken

Pneumatic tools, valued at $263, were stolen from the Shell service station on Highway 101 and Olive Avenue Friday or Saturday, owner William D. Parker reported yesterday to Novato police.

Dry Spell Is Awaited For Novato Park Work

If there is a dry spell, remaining drainage can be installed in Pioneer Memorial Park in Novato before heavy winter rains set in, Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director, last night reported to the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission.

A portion of the drainage has already been installed. The city has the pipe and if the ground dries up enough so that it can be trenched, then the remainder of the drainage will be installed, Adams said. If it does not, then the city will have to wait until spring to complete it, he said.

Parks, Recreation Advisory Commission Also:

REPORT — Heard a report fromA Adams that the recreation department had 13,995 in attendance at recreation functions in October, 4,728 more than the 9,267 in October last year.

MASTER PLAN — Studied the master plan for parks and agreed that it would take at least two more study sessions before any changes could be made. It set Nov. 17 to take an all-day tour of the park sites in the city.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Heard Adams report that Little League Inc. had offered to purchase, but not set a price, on 2.17 acres at the Rancho School site from the Novato Unified School District. The little league field is built on this parcel of land.

House Ransacked In San Anselmo

Burglars yesterday looted a San Anselmo home of several items including two typewriters, a camera, and shotgun, police reported today.

Mrs. Harry D. Ballard, 90 Spring Grove Avenue, said entry was by forcing a kitchen door. She said the intruders ransacked several rooms, also taking a small amount of jewelry and cash, two clock radios, and an electric adding machine.

A value estimate of the loss was not given.

Cotati Planners Set Hearing On Station

A public hearing on a proposed service station will be held by the Cotati Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Cotati Elementary School.

The design of the station at Gravenstein Highway at Santa Rosa Avenue will also be reviewed along with two office buildings at 8000 and 7885 Redwood Highway.

Welfare Leaflet Proposed

The Marin Welfare Rights Organization last night agreed to investigate the possibility of including a leaflet about the organization with welfare checks.

Members will discuss the leaflet's distribution with Betty Presley, director of the Marin County Department of Public-Social Services, president Mary Brooks said.

The group also agreed to prepare a report of the organization to be sent to the board of supervisors in January along with the conclusions of the Welfare Task Force which is studying problems of people on welfare at the request of the county, Mrs. Brooks said.

A soul food dinner project the group is planning to raise funds was also discussed, Mrs. Brooks said. Dinner orders will be taken from 11 a.m. Nov. 15 and 16 on a pick-up or delivery basis from the Brooks home, 131 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Mrs. Brooks reported four more persons joined last night. The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. next Monday at the Economic Opportunity Council office in Marin City.

Handcrafted articles will include jewelry, carved wooden fruit, candelabra, animal napkin rings, animal miniatures, doll chairs, stuffed soft dolls, games, tops, brooms and pewter items.

Pi Beta Phi established the Settlement School in Gatlinburg, in 1912 to aid rural families. In addition to furnishing teachers and medical assistance, the school expanded its program to promote the weaving ability of the mountaineers and to furnish a market for their handwoven products. In this way the Arrowcraft Workshop, which is supported by members of the sorority in the United States and Canada was established. The sorority has been honored by a permanent exhibition of "Arrowcrafts" at the Smithsonian Institution.

In charge of sales and orders from the Settlement School throughout the year is Mrs. Daniel H. Anderson of Novato.

THURSDAY, Jay Shinahara will speak on "Current Family Problems." Mr. Shinahara is the Director of Counseling at the Family Service Agency in San Rafael, carries a full caseload and is experienced in the area of current family problems. The Lynwood P-TA grossed $1,252.14 on the Halloween hijinks Oct. 26 according to co-chairmen, Mrs. Charles Sahl and Mrs. Sam Peden.

"TALENT MONTH", is the theme chosen for November by the United Presbyterian Women's Association of the Novato Presbyterian Church.

Each member will devise her own fund-raising event, with all proceeds to be donated to the association. Included will be home bridge parties, coffees, sale of baked goods, baby sitting and hobo breakfasts.

One large fund raiser was held in the past, but talent month is designed to utilize the main interest or particular talent of each member and will replace the group endeavor this year.

THE WOMEN'S SOCIETY of Christian Service of the Novato United Methodist Church will hold a charter member service at its luncheon meeting at 10 a.m. Thursday at the church.

She is supervisor of the Marin Blood Center and also makes visits to the North Bay Blood Center and Shasta Blood Center.

Luncheon chairman is Mrs. John J. Hurley, and decorations chairman is Mrs. Frank Connelly.

Dessert Dressup

Top off a backyard dinner with an easy-to-make fancy dessert—flaming strawberries. With a potato peeler, remove the skin from an orange, and cut it into small pieces. Cook the orange zest in a skillet or chafing dish blazer pan with 1 cup of orange juice and ½ cup of sugar for 5 minutes. Add 3 cups of fresh strawberries and heat about 1 minute. Remove from heat. In a small pan, heat ¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon of cognac slightly. When the alcohol fumes begin to rise, light with a long match and pour over strawberries. Spoon flaming sauce over berries with long-handled spoon or shake pan gently until flames die. As flames dwindle, pour sauce over a large mound of vanilla ice cream. If desired, peaches, pears or other fruit may replace berries.

The Tom Thumb Chapter of the Children's Home Society is headed by Mrs. Burt Wilson Richardson, a two-year-member

Jo Ann Richardson has served as recording secretary of the North Bay Council of the Children's Home Society, a private adoption agency.

"I am very enthusiastic about Tom Thumb," Mrs. Richardson says. "I am working on building a stronger, congenial group. The purpose of our chapter is to provide challenging projects to raise money and inform the public about the adoption agency."

The new president enjoys bowling, golf and sailing her Santana 22 sailboat. Her other hobbies are sewing and decorating.

"I like being around people and learning about them," Jo Ann says. "We have participated in the Exchange for International Living program twice, having a Mexican student and a French couple live with us and learn our customs."

Mrs. Richard Mackintosh is the new vice president of the Tom Thumb Chapter of the Children's Home Society. Other new officers are Mesdames Harold Stross, recording secretary; Douglas Abel, corresponding secretary; Toland McGettigan, treasurer; and Donald Smith, press chairman.

Impulse Buying

Careful planning can reduce unnecessary trips to the food store and it can guard against impulse buying, both of which can add to the cost of your family's groceries. Shopping alone rather than with another member of the family helps keep down impulse buying, too.

Town & Country Village

Tonight, between 9 and midnight, election results will be brought to you on KTIM (1510 AM & 100.9 FM) by Strawberry Town & Country Village.

Wednesday Fashion Luncheons have returned to Inn Marin. Showtime is 12:30 and reservations are suggested.

Lots of ideas for lovely holiday table settings at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP. I especially like the fat Zarape candles in three sizes, all with subtle stripes of fall colors. And, of course, candle wreaths in autumn designs are very much in evidence. All the wreaths at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP are stunning but, my favorite includes small velvet fruit in a warm burnt orange (no pun intended) nestled on dark green velvet leaves. Pretty!

It's "that time" again, honey . . . and CAPRICORN BOOKS has stocked their usual fine collection of books of Christmas cards . . . cards that are sure to be noticed and appreciated. (Of course, they offer imprinting services but don't wait too long for this. Their cards are very popular and the waiting list tends to get crowded.) Lots of "special interest" books an sale now at CAPRICORN BOOKS . . . children's books, beautiful adult gift books, etc. Take advantage!

Chris Gartman, congenial owner of The HICK'RY PIT, tells me his popular Business Man's Lunch and Merchant's Lunch are now being served every week day. Both of these lunches are a darned good deal . . . a hearty meal at a remarkably low price. The Business Man's Lunch features choice of barbecued sandwich, homemade pie or cake and coffee or tea. And, offering a different hot entree every day, the Merchant's Lunch also includes a vegetable and beverage. Be sure to try The HICK'RY PIT homemade mince meat pie . . . not mince pie, but mince meat pie. There is a very tasty difference . . . ask Chris to tell you about it!

If visions of sugarplums are starting to run through your head, turn visions into striking holiday arrangements and decorations with the help of ALBERTA OF MARIN. There are free demonstrations each Tuesday that let you watch these fabulous creations being made, and classes for same each Thursday.

Great new towel by Springmaid at THE GOLDEN CHERUB. This is the "black eyed Susan" design and available in four colors. If you are color-coordinated-minded, this lovely little bath boutique is for you. Ferinstance, their collection of wicker bath accessories in three looked-for colors . . . waste baskets, stools, shelves, towel rings (see these!) and hampers. Mix and match to your heart's content (to say nothing of creating a unique decor all your own)!

Well, now, just take a peek at the new luncheon item on the menu at KUBLAI KHAN. This oh-so-attractive restaurant is offering a steak sandwich, shoestring potatoes, salad and garlic bread for $1.85. and I say "offering" advisedly! Said steak sandwich is your choice of petite filet mignon, New York cut, or Chateaubriand!

Lots of news over at INN MARIN. The popular Fashion Luncheons have reappeared each Wednesday at 12:30 (and I do mean popular! Reservations are suggested.) Besides a completely new menu, with very agreeable prices, INN MARIN offers dancing to the lilting tunes of The Eastman Trio starting at 9:30 Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. And, for a really wild scene, catch the breakfast show, with discotheque dancing, at 2:30 A.M. on Saturday and Sunday. Like I said, gang, "news" and all of it good!

A toast of The Bubbly (or a good cry in your beer) whatever the occasion may call for, VILLAGE LIQUORS is ready to help. This shop carries an extraordinary selection of fine domestic and imported wines and, should you be a bit unschooled in this department, just ask Dan . . . he'll be glad to give you expert advice. For the "crying towel crowd" try VILLAGE LIQUORS' tapper size keg of beer. It's enough for the whole group to commiserate and then start planning for the next election. Cheers!

Holiday season is in full swing at that charming Hallmark haven, ROJEAN'S CARD & PARTY SHOP. More attractive than ever, if that's possible, this year's Hallmark paper party things for Thanksgiving offer several designs. In paper plates (choice of sizes) napkins (likewise) coasters, cups, invitations and place cards I found traditional Pilgrim and turkey designs plus a new-comer. This is a mustardy gold color printed with autumn leaves and fruit. Lots of fold-out decorations, too, in centerpiece size or for individual place settings.

"Snoopy for President!"
signed: Love, from MUTTS OF MARIN!

Hey, gang, RANCHO RAVIRI features the complete Mission Pack line this year. No need to go into too much detail about these famous gift packs of fruits, cheeses, etc. except to say that if you haven't discovered these delectables, you are missing a treat (and so are many friends on your gift list). RANCHO RAVIRI will take care of all the shipping details for their Mission Packs and offer nicely varied prices ranging from $1.98 to $8.95.

Louis Reimer, Master Chef, and ruler of the range at L'ENTREE tells me there are a few choice dates open with his catering service for holiday parties. This complete, and realistically priced, service is very popular, so don't dawdle, dear. Also, in the think-ahead-department, I like to keep a number of L'ENTREE casserole dinners on hand in the freezer for those inevitably exhausted evenings after Christmas shopping days. These casseroles are really dinner entrees and go from L'ENTREE to the oven or the freezer in their original container. Handy and simply delicious!

Tam Board Sets Candidates' Night

The Tamalpais High School District board last night scheduled a candidates' night at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 so that not only the district's teachers but other interested people may hear views of those seeking a vacancy on the board.

On Monday, the Tamalpais District Teachers Association asked the board for representation at private interviews of candidates for appointment to fill out the two and one-half years remaining of the term of trustee John C. Siemens, who resigned.

Trustees Berton C. Jacobsen and William D. Lewis, who had earlier expressed opposition to the candidates' night which was proposed by board President Gloria W. Melbostad, agreed to the idea after Mrs. Melbostad assured them it wouldn't be "a carnival."

Mrs. Frances Compton, a League of Women voters member, agreed to act as moderator for the candidates night or find a substitute if she was not available.

Trustee Lewis said he did not feel the public meeting was a substitute for private interviews of the candidates by the board, and other trustees agreed with him. Nov. 13 was selected for a special meeting to interview candidates privately.

In answering the teachers' request, Mrs. Melbostad agreed with members of the audience who said that teachers should not be represented at private interviews and more than any other group should.

A fifth name was added to the list of those seeking the vacant trustee position as trustees learned that Rev. Willard Frederickson, pastor of the San Geronimo Community Church, had written asking that he be considered.

Other candidates are George C. Stone of Fairfax, Brice Pace of Fairfax, David D. Ring of Tiburon and Frank L. Miller of Greenbrae.

Deadline for filing for the position is 5 p.m. Thursday.

In other action last night the trustees accepted a project construction cost estimate for Tiburon High School of $5,278,000, upon which architects' fees will be charged.

The action came after Trustee Lewis found a $100,000 mistake in arithmetic in figures submitted by the administration. (The mistake was in favor of the district, not the architects.)

In August the board allocated a total of $6,272,888 for the school, which will be built if the district's bond issue in today's election passes.

The board last night also discussed briefly the planned evaluation of the district and superintendent by a management firm and set Nov. 18 as the date for reviewing names of such firms.

The Tamalpais High School Board Also:

BUS — Learned of a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the district office of the transportation study group which is considering the problem of transporting students from Marin City to Tamalpais High School.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Joan Thompson, district clerk.

LEAVE — Granted a leave of absence for the rest of the school year to Jean Krutman, nurse at Tamalpais High School.

50 Pct. Return Transit Cards

More than 50 per cent of commuters who received questionnaires last Wednesday at the Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza returned the cards, Gen. Mgr. Seymour Kaskin of the Marin Transit District announced yesterday.

Questionnaires are designed to give the transit district information on where commuters live and their destination in San Francisco.

A total of 254 cards were distributed in a trial test. A full-scale distribution of 30,000 questionnaires is scheduled for Nov. 13 between 6 and 9 a.m.

Greyhound Posts Fare Schedules

Greyhound Bus Co. has posted new fare schedules in depots and on buses in preparation for the 4 per cent fare increase which takes effect Saturday. The increase was granted last month by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Typical increases for commuters to San Francisco will be from 55 to 60 cents one-way from Sausalito; from 85 to 90 cents one-way and $12 to $12.50 for a 20-ride book from San Rafael, Manor, Tiburon and Belvedere; from 70 to 75 cents and $11 to $11.45 from Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

The new hike follows a 6 to 8 per cent increase of Sept. 1 for commute fares.

Basque Festival Dancers To Perform

Dancers of the Olaeta Basque Festival of Bilbao will perform at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael.

The troupe of 20 also includes singers and instrumentalists who present folk culture of the Basque provinces of the Western Pyrenees.

At the age of 14, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, was secretary of the American Legation in Russia.

New U.C. Alliance Sets Strike Call

BERKELEY (AP) — The controversy over lectures by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver at a University of California course on racism has led to formation of a new coalition of white and minority student protest groups.

Announcing formation of the New World Alliance yesterday, Gene Goldenfeld said it grew out of the Cleaver dispute and its main concern is "racism and who controls the university."

The alliance announced plans to call for a student strike vote tomorrow.

In the new organization are organizations of white, Negro, Mexican American and American Indian students. A common aim is more minority group students and university employees and an expanded curriculum in minority areas.

Warm Springs Road Segment Is Completed

The first segment of road relocation at the Warm Springs Dam near Cloverdale has been completed, the Army Corps of Engineers reported to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Col. Frank C. Boerger, the corps' district engineer said $5 million has already been spent on the $74 million project, mostly in design studies. He said 2,274 acres of property has been acquired. "Restrictions on funds have delayed purchase of more lands this year, but we will have acquired 17,440 acres by the end of 1971," he said.

Colonel Boerger set late 1975 as the completion date. He said 27 miles of roads will be relocated including two bridges, six miles of access roads, power and telephone lines and several cemeteries.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors also:

SALARY SCHEDULES — Appointed a four-man committee representing the county administrator's office and civil service commission to conduct a survey of salary schedules of neighboring counties and businesses. They asked the surveys begin in the fall of each year and a salary schedule recommendation be presented to the board the first week in January for adoption by Jan. 31. The schedule will go into effect on July 31.

PROPERTY SALE — Approved the Dec. 7 sale of 1.5 acres of land on Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, near the site of a planned boat launching ramp.

Chamber Urges Petaluma Delay Library Action

Directors of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to request city council to withhold action on merging the city library with the county library system.

Director Clyde A. Nelson asked delay until the directors can meet with the library trustees in a study session and form an opinion. City council was scheduled to consider adoption of the merger plan at last night's session.

The library board had requested the merger, saying it would improve services without raising costs.

The Petaluma Chamber directors also:

DIRECTOR — Appointed Milt Whitt, former chamber president, to the board of directors. Whitt, proprietor of the Harmony Music store, replaces James Williams, who resigned last month due to business pressures.

MEMBERSHIP — Appointed a three-man committee to organize a membership drive. Named were Jules Fisher, chairman; Owen Fredericks and Theodore Adkins.

CALENDAR — Appointed a committee to establish a calendar arrangement for the new-events sign that will be added to the welcome sign on the north and south boundaries of the city on Highway 101. Named to the committee were James McCaffrey, Chairman; Rolin Rea, Richard Scholienberger and Lloyd Burlingham.

CONCERT REVIEW

Maestro Unveils His Latest, As Farewell

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

First performance of Maestro Vincenzo Giannini's latest work in the faculty concert of San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow yesterday afternoon also marked his farewell, for he is returning to his native Italy today.

Giannini, who has been director of the San Domenico singers four years, composed the musical settings of three D. H. Lawrence poems and one by Keats on commission from the school last summer and conducted the premiere himself.

The settings were very interesting compositions in eclectic contempory idiom with each of the instruments having individual commentary on the theme of each poem. But soprano Marian Marsh's superb singing of the extremely difficult vocal line covering very wide intervals throughout a wide register and requiring a variety of tonal colors was so outstanding that it gave her solo stature.

The other skilled performers were pianist Faith France, chairman of the music department; violinist Frances Shorr, violist Lucien Mitchell, cellist Jean Mitchell and flutist Frank Barbaria. Several hearings of the work would be needed to appreciate the contribution of each.

Another fascinating original work in contemporary style was pianist-composer Ronald McFarland's Suite No. 1 consisting of a chorale, burlesque and fugue. Though intricate, it had considerable youthful charm, especially the burlesque.

So far out has avant-garde music gone that Giannini's and McFarland's compositions, depite much dissonance, sounded almost conservative, especially to students of the now generation. San Domenico is to be commended for programming such works, since young people are more able to accept new sounds and will provide audiences for today's composers.

Discussion of their selections by performers before they were played has a good idea, making for clarity and better understanding.

In addition to being involved with original compositions, the San Domenico faculty musicians are busy performing musicians, which helps to avoid pedantry.

The remainder of the concert introduced the newest faculty members, two young pianists, Karen Glosserman and Carol Liebling. Miss Liebling, who specializes in professional accompanying, showed that she is gifted in that special art in performance of Schumann's Fantasy Piece No. 1 with Frank Barbaria playing the flute

Miss Glosserman played Brahms' Intermezzo in B Flat Major and Capriccio in C Sharp Minor, playing the former expressively and the latter with some brilliance.

Car Overturns, Injuring Two

Two persons were injured at 12:35 a.m. today when their car overturned on Highway 101 south of Sierra Avenue, Petaluma.

Vernon V. Vogle, 48, of 43 Burlington Drive, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital with facial lacerations. His passenger, Carol Ann Evans, 39 of Santa Rosa, was treated for injuries to the right elbow and left foot.

California Highway Patrol said the car ran off the roadway, struck a drain pipe and overturned throwing both from the car.

Harp Quintet Will Perform Thursday

The Lyra Harp Quintet, composed of Joel Andrews of Mill Valley, and four young women, will present a concert Thursday at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts at 8:30 p.m.

Andrews not only performs but composes and arranges for the harp. He has appeared in solo with harp and flute and with orchestras, with Mill Valley poet James Broughton in "The Bard and the Harpist," and with several dance groups. He teaches at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

The other four harpists are Melanie Clark, Terry Grassi, Rebecca Jewel and Alussa Hess. All have played the harp since childhood and have performed in concerts. Miss Clark and Miss Jewel appeared with Andrews in an ensemble program in the Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais in 1965.

The program will include works by Bach, Ravel and Mendelssohn and will cover the full range of harp music, ending with "Popular Fantasy," a harp treatment of several popular airs by Andrews.

The concert is sponsored jointly by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts and the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department.

Parking Limit On Larkspur's Council Agenda

Request by a dozen merchants that parking be limited to two hours on Magnolia Avenue in north Larkspur will be considered at the 8 p.m. meeting tomorrow of the Larkspur City Council.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the restriction would be from the north end of Hillview Gardens to Estelle Avenue —a distance of about half a mile — on both sides of Magnolia until the widening of Magnolia is completed in about two years.

At present there is not time limit for parking on either side.

The council also is scheduled to go into a closed session with the city attorney to discuss litigation on acquisition of a small parcel at College Park and Magnolia Avenue. The land is owned by Mrs. Betsy Michaelson and has been condemned by the city for widening the intersection.

Kentfield Firemen To Attend School

The Kentfield Fire District Board last night approved sending 18 fireman to Marin County's oil fire school in San Rafael Nov. 23-24.

The school is sponsored by the Marin County Fire Training Officers Association. The board also approved the purchasing for another year of bulk motor oil and supplies from Standard Oil Co. in Marin County.

Greenland occupies an area of 840,000 square miles.

TREES MAKE WAY FOR CARS

A barren vista meets the eye at the northern entrance to San Rafael, where stately trees have gone before the bulldozer in a widening project on Highway 101. Looking south toward the Mission Avenue off-ramp, nothing remains of the once proud stand of eucalyptus and other trees and the many buildings along the west side of the highway. Burning Ban Ends In Some Marin Areas

The summer ban on open burning ended today in unincorporated areas of the county and in 11 fire districts.

Open burning will be permitted from 7 a.m. to noon for residents of one and two-family dwellings without obtaining a permit in the county fire department jurisdiction, Chief Louis J. Bloom said. Open burning is banned elsewhere by air pollution regulations.

The only fires permitted after noon will be agricultural burning, Bloom said.

Following the same policies are Larkspur, Kentfield, Sausalito, Tamalpais Valley, Stinson Beach, Bolinas, Ross, Nicasio, Marinwood and Novato.

The same hours, 7 a. m. to noon, will be observed in Mill Valley, Alto, Tiburon, San Rafael and Terra Linda. However, a permit is required in each of those jurisdictions.

San Anselmo will allow open burning from 7 to 11 a.m. with a city permit. Corte Madera, where a permit is also required, will allow burning from 6 to 11 a.m.

In Belvedere, burning will be permitted from 7 to 11 a.m. daily except Sundays and holidays.

Fairfax was to announce its hours later.

Fairfax Board Supports Stone

The Fairfax School District board last night voted to support the candidacy of one of its trustees, Dr. George C. Stone, for the Tamalpais High School District board.

Dr. Stone, a clinical psychologist is one of five persons seeking the seat on the high school board which was vacated by Dr. John C. Siemens.

In other action the board agreed to resurvey the line between White Hill School and the property of Arthur Bell. Bell has asked the school district not to build a fence until the line is established.

The trustees learned that the district's enrollment has dropped from 1,140 to 1,122 since school started.

Jury Selection Starts For Novotny, Arceo

Jury selection began today in the murder trial of Dennis C. Novotny and John Arceo in Marin Superior Court before Judge Thomas F. Keating.

Novotny, 22, and Arceo, 31, are charged in the death of Wesley L. Marshall of San Rafael, who died Jan. 6, a month after he was beaten and robbed in his home.

A third accused, Claude (Frenchy) LeBas, has pleaded guilty to the murder charge and is now serving a life sentence.

Deputy Dist. Attorney Joshua W. Thomas indicated he would call approximately 25 witnesses, including LeBas, in the case. Defense attorneys said they would call four witnesses for Arceo, including his wife, and four for Novotny.

Judge Keating excused 16 persons from the 65-member panel before attorneys began questioning and selection. He indicated the jury might be chosen in time to start the prosecution case Friday.

Both defendants were calm and well-dressed at the opening session, Novotny dapper in green jacket and brown trousers. Arceo, who wore a gray suit, resembled a junior executive while Novotny looked like a young man ready for a Friday night date.

Friese Named Deputy In Marin Schools

Stanley H. Friese, present assistant superintendent for educational services for the Marin County Schools office, last night was named by the county board of education to the post of deputy superintendent.

He replaces Charles E. McCully, effective Jan. 1. McCully has been hired as superintendent of the newly formed Shoreline Unified School District.

The board also named Robert E. Spain, coordinator of the instructional materials center, to take Friese's present post. No salary change is involved in either appointment, Friese said. He said the coordinator's position will be filled in the near future.

Friese, 50, has been assistant superintendent for five years. He and his wife, Sue, reside at 3 Eagle Drive, Novato. They have one daughter.

The County Board of Education also:

COUNCIL — Established a nine-member negotiating council to be composed of eight members of the California Teachers Association and one member of the American Federation of Teachers.

CLASSES — Established two classes for educationally handicapped pupils of Southern Marin. The portable classrooms will be located at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School in the Larkspur School District.

CERTIFICATES — Approved the issuance of 20 temporary teaching certificates and 20 life teaching diplomas.

Later Sausalito Curfew Asked

The City-County Services Committee agreed last night to suggest to Sausalito that its 10 p.m. weekday curfew for youths be extended to 11 p.m.

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported that Sausalito is the only city in the county which has a 10 p.m. curfew.

The Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission has recommended a uniform curfew law for the entire county, and relaxation of curfew on weekends.

The committee decided to ask the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen to consider curfew relaxation on weekends.

The committee also asked Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows to get information on the costs of setting up a central crime laboratory for Marin. Barrows will report at the next meeting, scheduled for Dec. 2.

Many Seeking Library Post

Numerous applications have been received for the position of librarian, and an interview board will be set up later this month, the Sausalito Library Board decided last night according to Librarian Kay Bertau, who was unable to say how many have applied.

Mrs. Berteau will be leaving Friday. Janet Gartner, children's librarian, will be acting librarian and Margaret Georgetti will continue in charge of circulation.

The board accepted an etching by Max Pollak of Sausalito. The gift, presented by Pollak and Mrs. B. W. Ansell, was in memory of the late Dr. Fred M. Tetzlall.

Carpets Taken

The theft of two carpets valued at $175 from 948 Lea Drive, San Rafael, was reported yesterday by Mal Hann, project manager of the Meadows apartment development, police said. The theft occurred between Friday and yesterday, Hann told police.

San Marin High Set For Students

San Marin High School in Novato will be ready for students when Thanksgiving vacation ends on Dec. 2, Supt. James G. Bunker told the Novato Unified School District board last night.

Furniture is being moved into the administration building, library and the large classroom wing, Bunker said. Next week, the science wing will be ready, he said. The shops, which have been used for storage, and the gymnasium will take two or three more weeks to complete, he estimated.

Shops should be ready at mid-December and the gymnasium a week later, he said.

The board approved change orders for $1,575 for the high school.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

READING — Received a report that in the Stanford reading test given in the first grades last May, Novato ranked above the state average in all three grades.

SPEECH TESTING — Heard from speech therapists Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte, that the testing of kindergarten children for speech defects for the past three years has shown these defects early and much progress has been made in correction. Results of these tests and testing methods will be made available to other schools in Marin County, partially paid for by the Babcock Foundation.

GIFTS — Accepted gifts of $1,560 made four years ago by the Marin County Insurance Agents Association for driver training, which will now be used for that, and of $500 from the Loma Verde Homeowners Association for playground equipment for Loma Verde School.

RESIGNATIONS — Received a report from Deputy Supt. Ralph Giovanniello that Novato had 12.6 per cent teacher turnover last year and 12.3 per cent the previous year. This is about average for the Bay Area, he said.

Zucker Asks Statement Retraction

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker has demanded that the Independent-Journal retract statements made by supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Barr last week that Zucker is incompetent.

Baar made the statement in a campaign appearance on Radio Station KTIM's Sounding Board program Thursday. The broadcast was covered by the Independent-Journal and an account of it published in the Thursday evening paper.

Baar said he would definitely recommend a new planning director if elected as supervisor from the fourth district. He said, "Mr. Zucker is incompetent in his job."

Baar faulted Zucker as making additions to his staff "because he can't answer the questions."

Zucker called the statements "totally untrue as well as irresponsible."

Tools Taken

Pneumatic tools, valued at $263, were stolen from the Shell service station on Highway 101 and Olive Avenue Friday or Saturday, owner William D. Parker reported yesterday to Novato police.

Dry Spell Is Awaited For Novato Park Work

If there is a dry spell, remaining drainage can be installed in Pioneer Memorial Park in Novato before heavy winter rains set in, Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director, last night reported to the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission.

A portion of the drainage has already been installed. The city has the pipe and if the ground dries up enough so that it can be trenched, then the remainder of the drainage will be installed, Adams said. If it does not, then the city will have to wait until spring to complete it, he said.

Parks, Recreation Advisory Commission Also:

REPORT — Heard a report fromA Adams that the recreation department had 13,995 in attendance at recreation functions in October, 4,728 more than the 9,267 in October last year.

MASTER PLAN — Studied the master plan for parks and agreed that it would take at least two more study sessions before any changes could be made. It set Nov. 17 to take an all-day tour of the park sites in the city.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Heard Adams report that Little League Inc. had offered to purchase, but not set a price, on 2.17 acres at the Rancho School site from the Novato Unified School District. The little league field is built on this parcel of land.

House Ransacked In San Anselmo

Burglars yesterday looted a San Anselmo home of several items including two typewriters, a camera, and shotgun, police reported today.

Mrs. Harry D. Ballard, 90 Spring Grove Avenue, said entry was by forcing a kitchen door. She said the intruders ransacked several rooms, also taking a small amount of jewelry and cash, two clock radios, and an electric adding machine.

A value estimate of the loss was not given.

Cotati Planners Set Hearing On Station

A public hearing on a proposed service station will be held by the Cotati Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Cotati Elementary School.

The design of the station at Gravenstein Highway at Santa Rosa Avenue will also be reviewed along with two office buildings at 8000 and 7885 Redwood Highway.

Welfare Leaflet Proposed

The Marin Welfare Rights Organization last night agreed to investigate the possibility of including a leaflet about the organization with welfare checks.

Members will discuss the leaflet's distribution with Betty Presley, director of the Marin County Department of Public-Social Services, president Mary Brooks said.

The group also agreed to prepare a report of the organization to be sent to the board of supervisors in January along with the conclusions of the Welfare Task Force which is studying problems of people on welfare at the request of the county, Mrs. Brooks said.

A soul food dinner project the group is planning to raise funds was also discussed, Mrs. Brooks said. Dinner orders will be taken from 11 a.m. Nov. 15 and 16 on a pick-up or delivery basis from the Brooks home, 131 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Mrs. Brooks reported four more persons joined last night. The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. next Monday at the Economic Opportunity Council office in Marin City.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Hardening Arteries Detected In Variety Of Ways Nowadays

VAN DELLEN

O.I.D. writes: "How does the physician determine when a person has hardening of the arteries?"

The retinal vessels are easily seen by looking into the eye with an ophthalmoscope. Arteriosclerotic vessels are rather tortuous with a corkscrew appearance. Wherever a hardened artery crosses a soft vein, the latter appears to be indented or nicked. A diagnosis of arteriosclerosis can be made in this situation, but absence of hardening of the retinal arteries does not mean that vessels elsewhere in the body are not thickened.

X-RAYS OF the chest, abdomen, or extremities offer reliable evidence. Thickened and tortuous vessels are demonstrated on the film, especially when there is calcium in the walls. The arterial tree also is visible via arteriography. A radiopaque dye is injected into the artery and continuous (movie) X-rays are taken. An arteriogram shows whether the vessel is normal, narrowed, or obstructed. Arterosclerotic changes usually are far more advanced than the X-ray indicates.

The physician assumes that arteriosclerosis exists in older people and most of us probably have a patch here or there. Traces have been found in postmortem examinations on infants and teen-agers. So long as the vessel remains open there is a good possibilty that blood will flow through a thickened artery for many decades without the slightest trouble.

MOST HEART ATTACKS stem from blockage of an arteriosclerotic coronary artery. This is true especially of persons suffering an attack of coronary thrombosis or angina pectoris.

These symptoms are indirect evidence that the condition exists. We also know that the coronary arteries are most susceptible to the hardening process. As a result, they may be involved long before those of the brain, eye, kidneys, or limbs.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLYMPIC SEX TESTS

W. writes: What are these sex tests given to female (or allegedly female) athletes who particiapte in the Olympics? Can't the judges tell by obvious signs?

REPLY

These are chromosome tests involving the secretions obtained from cells usually on the inside of the mouth. The external signs are not so obvious, especially when these persons have a genetic defect. Some are classified as pseudo or real hermaphrodites and are participating as females when they really are males.

CONGESTED TISSUES

A reader writes: What is congestive heart failure?

REPLY

This is another name for dropsy due to heart disease. The failing heart is unable to meet the demands of the body. In congestive failure, the tissues in the legs, liver, and lungs became waterlogged (congested). Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on generalized dropsy.

HEART ACTION RECORDS

A reader writes: After a coronary, how long does it take for changes to show up on the electrocardiogram?

REPLY

From minutes to days. This is why physicians recommend several electrocardiograms for an individual with chest pain before reaching a decision on whether coronary thrombosis has occurred.

GIVES UP 100 GALLSTONES

Mrs. I. T. writes: My gall bladder that was recently removed contained 100 stones. Is this a lot?

REPLY

Yes, but you have not broken any records.

Today's Health Hint — A cheerful attitude lightens cares.

'SLIGHTLY' DIABETIC

A reader writes: I have a slight case of sugar in the blood. Will anti-diabetic pills help?

REPLY

They may, but the expression "a slight case of" always baffles me. If you have mild diabetes, diet with or without these pills may bring the disease under control. There are tests to determine whether these tablets will help you.

FAINTING AND JITTERS

J. L. writes: My sister, who is a very nervous person, has fainting spells. There is nothing physically wrong with her. Could jitteriness be causing these spells?

REPLY

Yes. In the past, fainting among high-strung women was very stylish and considered a sign of femininity.

FLAVANOIDS USELESS

O. N. writes: Have any conclusions been made regarding the effect of flavanoids on the common cold?

REPLY

The exaggerated claims made about these products have not materialized.

Smoking Clinic Set At School

A six-session smoking withdrawal clinic will be offered by Redwood High School's adult school starting next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

The clinic, to analyze the physiological and psychological aspects of smoking to help adults quit smoking, is a pilot project co-sponsored with the school by the Marin Inter-Agency Council on Smoking.

The two-hour classes will include guest speakers, films, and group discussions.

A HANDSHAKE TO START—At the start of each day's class, pupils reply to Natalie Lenn's "Where's Kevin?" (or Paula or Robbie Jo) by answering "Here I am," then shaking hands with the teacher when she asks. Mrs. Lenn is showing Paula Tomko how the handshake works, while (from left) Kevin Little, Janice O'Donnell, Kimberly Mihan and Robbie Jo Rishel watch. (Independent-Journal Photos by Jim Kean)

Cracking The Tots' Sound Barrier

By ALAN JONES

"Now let's brush our teeth," the teacher said, demonstrating with a toothbrush. The pair of 2-year-old boys obediently raised their brushes, but one of them preferred to brush his tongue instead of his teeth.

In the next room, three children followed another teacher's instructions as she told them to stand, hop, jump, run, and clap hands.

These are the children of the 1965 rubella epidemic which swept the West Coast, and each of the 12 has had seriously impaired hearing from birth.

They are enrolled in Marin County's pioneering early education program for children from 18 to 36 months old, intended to help them use whatever hearing they have, to teach them speech reading (lip reading) and other techniques so they can speak normally, "hear" better and prepare for a more normal life.

With the amazing adaptability and eagerness to learn which children have, the group seems perfectly normal now to the casual observer, except for signs like the hearing aids and their learned habit of watching the teachers' lips to help understanding.

The children have their special program, the first in the state in a public school system, because their parents fought for it.

A state law authorizing the early education program was passed in 1967, and the class started April 1 this year. But just 10 days later, the county's special education office was notified that the law had omitted any funding for the program, so no state money was available.

The 11 mothers (one has twin boys in the program), who formed a group called Parents of Early Education-Deaf Children, besieged State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, for corrective legislation.

Meantime, the parents went to the Marin County Board of Education and asked for county funding if state money was withheld. The county board agreed in August to fund the program through June, 1969.

A few days later, McCarthy's bill to fund the program was signed into law, and the county was told it will be repaid for any extra costs that had gone into the program earlier.

Program costs for this fiscal year will be approximately $1,200 per child or $14,500, Rudolph S. Kupfer, county supervisor of special education, said. Most of the sum is in teaching salaries. Kupfer said state aid will pay the bulk of the cost, but a precise county-state cost breakdown is not available because the aid formula is computed for all physically handicapped classes together.

Similar programs are now planned in San Jose, Ceres, and Shasta County.

The parents' part of the program didn't end with their successful lobbying for state funds. Home visits and in-class observation by parents are major parts of the training.

During the three-hour morning classes, the mothers watch through portable one-way mirrors set up in doorways to the classrooms, which are the Sunday school rooms of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

In the classrooms, two teachers and two teachers' assistants each take three children aside for intensive auditory training and speech and language development.

"It is remarkable that they can sit still and listen so long at a time," said Kupfer. Most young children cannot keep still for any length of time, but in these children the intense desire to learn overcomes their restlessness.

They must sit still to keep their eyes on the teacher, to watch her lips, see her gestures and objects she is handling.

The teachers help by making the training as active as possible. The children learn to understand and to speak the words "jump," "run," "hop," "fall down" and "sit" by acting them out, which helps syphon off their energy.

After the intense language training for the first 90 minutes, the children get a snack break and then go into a more physical part of the program, playing games, marching or walking to music, and drawing pictures. Teachers continue to stress language during the activity.

The class work, although intensive for children so young, is only part of the program. Equally important, Kupfer said, is training the children's parents.

"We can't possibly train the children in just a few hours a week in class," he said. So parents are taught to make every activity part of the speech learning process, 24 hours a day.

The two teachers, Mrs. Natalie Lenn and Mrs. Ann Nadel, pay a two-hour visit to each home once a week to observe the home routine and show parents how they can help the children learn.

"The parents must constantly talk to the child," Mrs. Nadel said, "so he can soak up the language before he starts giving it back." She said most such children must see and hear a word spoken a thousand times before "giving it back" as speech.

"We use a visual, tactile and auditory approach," Mrs. Lenn said. The children watch the lips, listen to the voice and place a hand on the teacher's face to get the voice vibrations.

As for hearing, all the children can hear to a degree. "There is no such thing as stone deaf," Kupfer said. "All persons have some degree of hearing ability."

The early education program was started because educators realize that reaching a deaf child at five is far too late. Children start learning language and speech from the time they are born, and a deaf child may be irremediably far behind by usual school age. Almost any deaf child can learn to speak if reached early enough, Kupfer said.

Early education for the deaf has been pioneered in California by two private organizations — the San Francisco Hearing and Speech Clinic and the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles. The Tracy clinic was started by the late film star Spencer Tracy and named for his son, who had impaired hearing.

The San Francisco clinic starts working with children as early as six months. But both organizations are privately funded, and cannot expand rapidly when something like the rubella epidemic brings on a rapid increase in the number of deaf children.

Mrs. Jean P. O'Donnell began taking her daughter Janice to the San Francisco clinic when she was 6 months old, but her training stopped when the O'Donnells moved to Marin. Mrs. O'Donnell was a leader in initiating the early education program here and in forming the parents group.

Although Janice is "profoundly deaf," Kupfer said, because of her early start in San Francisco she is doing better now than some children with less hearing loss.

To have 12 hearing handicapped children in one age group in Marin is unusual, but has happened before. An older group of such children, born after the 1963 rubella epidemic, is now attending both regular and special classes at Gallinas School.

There is hope it won't happen again. Some reports indicate a vaccine against rubella may be developed by 1970, and vaccination could prevent prenatal damage from the disease.

But the parents group has a mission beyond the training of their own children. They and the teachers are now pressing for hospitals and doctors to set up routine hearing tests for newborn babies so hearing impairment can be detected and training begun early.

ACTING OUT WORDS—Kevin Little, center, helps Kimberly Mihan act out "flying" under the attentive eyes of teacher Natalie Lenn and fellow pupil Janice O'Donnell. The hearing-impaired children often must be taught the concept underlying a word before learning to speak it back to the teacher.

ALL ABOUT CATS—Jerrald Lehmann is all burning attention as teacher's assistant Sally Reilly shows him a toy cat to go along with the pictures and cutouts of cats in front of him.

WALKABOUT TIME — Janice O'Donnell and Kevin Little watch closely as Mrs. Natalie Lenn walks Kimberly Mihan about the classroom, explaining each action as she goes. In the background are teacher's assistant Marilyn Bishop and pupil Paula Tomko.

Safe Lift Devices Are Stolen

Two 200-pound devices used to lift safes were taken from the back yard of William G. Van Zee, 11 Glen Road, Manor, sometime last week, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Mrs. Van Zee reported the theft Friday, but gave no estimate of the value of the lifting devices. She said her husband uses them for his lock and safe business in the East Bay.

The theft was one of eight reported yesterday by deputies.

Deputies said Bobby E. Graves of 1423 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, reported Friday that a ring valued at $1,000 was taken from his home between Oct. 24 and 29. A tape recorder-radio combination valued at $100 was also missing. There was no sign of forced entry, deputies said.

Jeicy Pawlow of 56 Bay Vista Drive, Strawberry, reported Thursday that $40 in silver was taken from his home sometime that day. Entry was apparently gained by removing a pane of glass, deputies said.

A tape recorder and a camera valued at a total of $177 were taken from a locked car owned by John R. Bonacorsi of San Jost between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, Bonacorsi told deputies Thursday. He said the car was parked near Marin Joe's when the theft occurred, deputies reported.

Paul D. Doiron of 35 Bret Court, Novato, reported Friday a stereo tape player was taken from his locked car while it was parked at College of Marin that day, deputies said.

Another tape player was reported missing Thursday by Robert Russo of 245 Flamingo Road, Tamalpais Valley, deputies said. Russo said the player was taken from his home. There were no signs of forced entry.

Dara K. Ellis of Washington Park reported Friday that her gun was stolen from her gear at Mount Tamalpais State Park the night before, deputies said.

Barbara Scott of Lagunitas Country Store reported Saturday that a necklace worth $48 had been taken from the store that day, deputies said.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Hardening Arteries Detected In Variety Of Ways Nowadays

VAN DELLEN

O.I.D. writes: "How does the physician determine when a person has hardening of the arteries?"

The retinal vessels are easily seen by looking into the eye with an ophthalmoscope. Arteriosclerotic vessels are rather tortuous with a corkscrew appearance. Wherever a hardened artery crosses a soft vein, the latter appears to be indented or nicked. A diagnosis of arteriosclerosis can be made in this situation, but absence of hardening of the retinal arteries does not mean that vessels elsewhere in the body are not thickened.

X-RAYS OF the chest, abdomen, or extremities offer reliable evidence. Thickened and tortuous vessels are demonstrated on the film, especially when there is calcium in the walls. The arterial tree also is visible via arteriography. A radiopaque dye is injected into the artery and continuous (movie) X-rays are taken. An arteriogram shows whether the vessel is normal, narrowed, or obstructed. Arterosclerotic changes usually are far more advanced than the X-ray indicates.

The physician assumes that arteriosclerosis exists in older people and most of us probably have a patch here or there. Traces have been found in postmortem examinations on infants and teen-agers. So long as the vessel remains open there is a good possibilty that blood will flow through a thickened artery for many decades without the slightest trouble.

MOST HEART ATTACKS stem from blockage of an arteriosclerotic coronary artery. This is true especially of persons suffering an attack of coronary thrombosis or angina pectoris.

These symptoms are indirect evidence that the condition exists. We also know that the coronary arteries are most susceptible to the hardening process. As a result, they may be involved long before those of the brain, eye, kidneys, or limbs.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLYMPIC SEX TESTS

W. writes: What are these sex tests given to female (or allegedly female) athletes who particiapte in the Olympics? Can't the judges tell by obvious signs?

REPLY

These are chromosome tests involving the secretions obtained from cells usually on the inside of the mouth. The external signs are not so obvious, especially when these persons have a genetic defect. Some are classified as pseudo or real hermaphrodites and are participating as females when they really are males.

CONGESTED TISSUES

A reader writes: What is congestive heart failure?

REPLY

This is another name for dropsy due to heart disease. The failing heart is unable to meet the demands of the body. In congestive failure, the tissues in the legs, liver, and lungs became waterlogged (congested). Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on generalized dropsy.

HEART ACTION RECORDS

A reader writes: After a coronary, how long does it take for changes to show up on the electrocardiogram?

REPLY

From minutes to days. This is why physicians recommend several electrocardiograms for an individual with chest pain before reaching a decision on whether coronary thrombosis has occurred.

GIVES UP 100 GALLSTONES

Mrs. I. T. writes: My gall bladder that was recently removed contained 100 stones. Is this a lot?

REPLY

Yes, but you have not broken any records.

Today's Health Hint — A cheerful attitude lightens cares.

'SLIGHTLY' DIABETIC

A reader writes: I have a slight case of sugar in the blood. Will anti-diabetic pills help?

REPLY

They may, but the expression "a slight case of" always baffles me. If you have mild diabetes, diet with or without these pills may bring the disease under control. There are tests to determine whether these tablets will help you.

FAINTING AND JITTERS

J. L. writes: My sister, who is a very nervous person, has fainting spells. There is nothing physically wrong with her. Could jitteriness be causing these spells?

REPLY

Yes. In the past, fainting among high-strung women was very stylish and considered a sign of femininity.

FLAVANOIDS USELESS

O. N. writes: Have any conclusions been made regarding the effect of flavanoids on the common cold?

REPLY

The exaggerated claims made about these products have not materialized.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Courageous To Play Hand Than To Surrender To The Foes

If you fear that the missing cards are in unfavorable position you can surrender and tell the opponents to take as many tricks as they like. But it's more courageous to play the hand on the assumption that the cards are favorably placed. Hope is precious, but usually costs nothing.

LEADS KING

West led the king of spades, and South won at once with dummy's ace. Declarer next led a heart from dummy, and East played low. South had to guess whether to play the king or the jack of hearts from his hand.

Sure that West had the ace of hearts for his vulnerable overcall, South tried a finesse with the jack of hearts. West took the queen of hearts and cashed two high spades. East eventually defeated the contract with the ace of trumps.

Since we can see all of the cards we know that South made the wrong guess in playing the jack of hearts. Was South wrong of just unlucky? Work out your answer before you read on.

SURRENDERED

South surrendered when he played the jack of hearts. This play would drive out the ace if West had the ace of hearts and East the queen. But then West would cash two high spades and lead a fourth spade. If East had the queen of hearts he would be able to overruff dummy on the fouth spade, and South would be down one anyway. In short, playing the jack of hearts could not enable declarer to make his contract no matter how the hearts were divided.

ONLY CHANCE

South's only chance is that East has the ace of hearts. South should therefore play the king of hearts and hold his breath. When the king happens to win, South should breathe out and lead another heart. He loses only one trump and two spades, making his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K Q J 10 5
♥ Q 7
♦ Q J 9 5
♣ 9 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have 11 points in high cards and 2 points for the doubletons, enough for an optional opening bid. In this case you prefer to pass since a hand with only one king and no aces at all simply isn't worth an opening bid. If you had two small hearts and A-J-9-5 of diamonds, your count would be the same, but you would then have a respectable opening bid of one spade.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 5, the 310th day of 1968 with 56 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1733 John Peter Zenger began printing the newspaper the New York Weekly Journal.

In 1911 Calbrith Rogers completed the first American trans-continental flight. It took him 49 days to fly from New York City to Pasadena, Calif.

In 1940 President Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to a third term.

In 1955 Austria formally opened the reconstructed Vienna State Opera house and celebrated liberation from 17 years of foreign occupation.

A thought for the day: English writer, William McFee, said, "responsibility's like a string that we can only see the middle of. Both ends are out of sight."

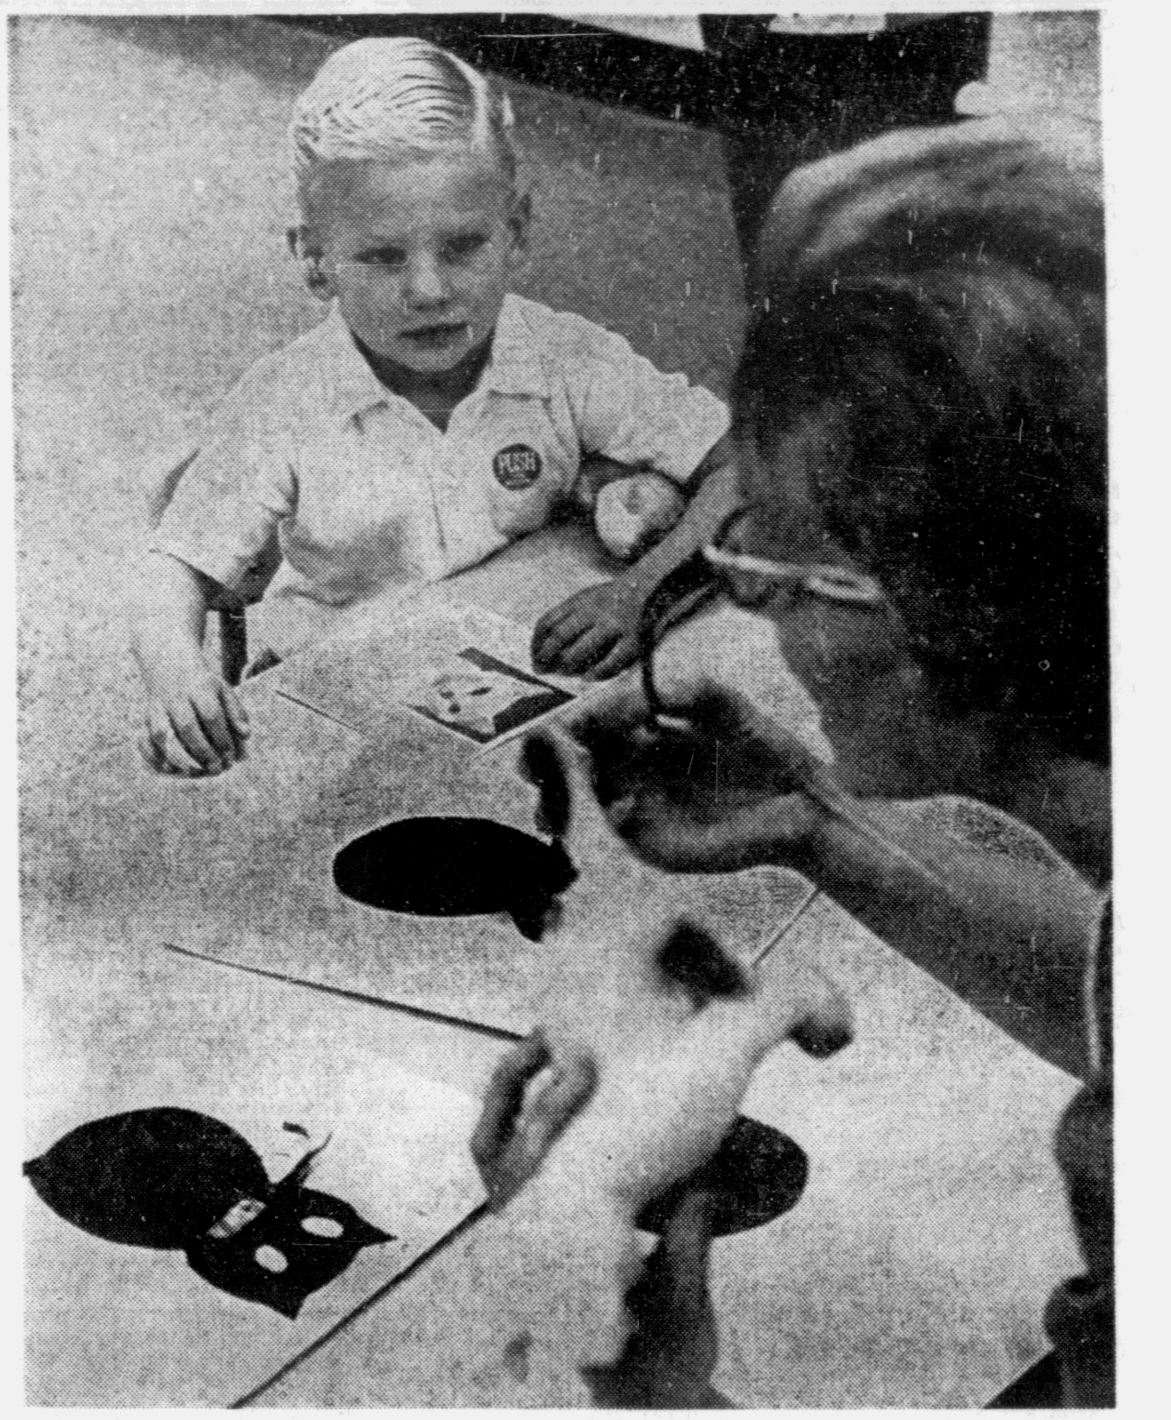
A HANDSHAKE TO START—At the start of each day's class, pupils reply to Natalie Lenn's "Where's Kevin?" (or Paula or Robbie Jo) by answering "Here I am," then shaking hands with the teacher when she asks. Mrs. Lenn is showing Paula Tomko how the handshake works, while (from left) Kevin Little, Janice O'Donnell, Kimberly Mihan and Robbie Jo Rishel watch. (Independent-Journal Photos by Jim Kean)



ALL ABOUT CATS—Jerrald Lehmann is all burning attention as teacher's assistant Sally Reilly shows him a toy cat to go along with the pictures and cutouts of cats in front of him.

Cracking The Tots' Sound Barrier

By ALAN JONES

"Now let's brush our teeth," the teacher said, demonstrating with a toothbrush. The pair of 2-year-old boys obediently raised their brushes, but one of them preferred to brush his tongue instead of his teeth.

In the next room, three children followed another teacher's instructions as she told them to stand, hop, jump, run, and clap hands.

These are the children of the 1965 rubella epidemic which swept the West Coast, and each of the 12 has had seriously impaired hearing from birth.

They are enrolled in Marin County's pioneering early education program for children from 18 to 36 months old, intended to help them use whatever hearing they have, to teach them speech reading (lip reading) and other techniques so they can speak normally, "hear" better and prepare for a more normal life.

With the amazing adaptability and eagerness to learn which children have, the group seems perfectly normal now to the casual observer, except for signs like the hearing aids and their learned habit of watching the teachers' lips to help understanding.

The children have their special program, the first in the state in a public school system, because their parents fought for it.

A state law authorizing the early education program was passed in 1967, and the class started April 1 this year. But just 10 days later, the county's special education office was notified that the law had omitted any funding for the program, so no state money was available.

The 11 mothers (one has twin boys in the program), who formed a group called Parents of Early Education-Deaf Children, besieged State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, for corrective legislation.

Meantime, the parents went to the Marin County Board of Education and asked for county funding if state money was withheld. The county board agreed in August to fund the program through June, 1969.

A few days later, McCarthy's bill to fund the program was signed into law, and the county was told it will be repaid for any extra costs that had gone into the program earlier.

Program costs for this fiscal year will be approximately $1,200 per child or $14,500, Rudolph S. Kupfer, county supervisor of special education, said. Most of the sum is in teaching salaries. Kupfer said state aid will pay the bulk of the cost, but a precise county-state cost breakdown is not available because the aid formula is computed for all physically handicapped classes together.

Similar programs are now planned in San Jose, Ceres, and Shasta County.

The parents' part of the program didn't end with their successful lobbying for state funds. Home visits and in-class observation by parents are major parts of the training.

During the three-hour morning classes, the mothers watch through portable one-way mirrors set up in doorways to the classrooms, which are the Sunday school rooms of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

In the classrooms, two teachers and two teachers' assistants each take three children aside for intensive auditory training and speech and language development.

"It is remarkable that they can sit still and listen so long at a time," said Kupfer. Most young children cannot keep still for any length of time, but in these children the intense desire to learn overcomes their restlessness.

They must sit still to keep their eyes on the teacher, to watch her lips, see her gestures and objects she is handling.

The teachers help by making the training as active as possible. The children learn to understand and to speak the words "jump," "run," "hop," "fall down" and "sit" by acting them out, which helps syphon off their energy.

After the intense language training for the first 90 minutes, the children get a snack break and then go into a more physical part of the program, playing games, marching or walking to music, and drawing pictures. Teachers continue to stress language during the activity.

The class work, although intensive for children so young, is only part of the program. Equally important, Kupfer said, is training the children's parents.

"We can't possibly train the children in just a few hours a week in class," he said. So parents are taught to make every activity part of the speech learning process, 24 hours a day.

The two teachers, Mrs. Natalie Lenn and Mrs. Ann Nadel, pay a two-hour visit to each home once a week to observe the home routine and show parents how they can help the children learn.

"The parents must constantly talk to the child," Mrs. Nadel said, "so he can soak up the language before he starts giving it back." She said most such children must see and hear a word spoken a thousand times before "giving it back" as speech.

"We use a visual, tactile and auditory approach," Mrs. Lenn said. The children watch the lips, listen to the voice and place a hand on the teacher's face to get the voice vibrations.

As for hearing, all the children can hear to a degree. "There is no such thing as stone deaf," Kupfer said. "All persons have some degree of hearing ability."

The early education program was started because educators realize that reaching a deaf child at five is far too late. Children start learning language and speech from the time they are born, and a deaf child may be irremediably far behind by usual school age. Almost any deaf child can learn to speak if reached early enough, Kupfer said.

Early education for the deaf has been pioneered in California by two private organizations — the San Francisco Hearing and Speech Clinic and the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles. The Tracy clinic was started by the late film star Spencer Tracy and named for his son, who had impaired hearing.

The San Francisco clinic starts working with children as early as six months. But both organizations are privately funded, and cannot expand rapidly when something like the rubella epidemic brings on a rapid increase in the number of deaf children.

Mrs. Jean P. O'Donnell began taking her daughter Janice to the San Francisco clinic when she was 6 months old, but her training stopped when the O'Donnells moved to Marin. Mrs. O'Donnell was a leader in initiating the early education program here and in forming the parents group.

Although Janice is "profoundly deaf," Kupfer said, because of her early start in San Francisco she is doing better now than some children with less hearing loss.

To have 12 hearing handicapped children in one age group in Marin is unusual, but has happened before. An older group of such children, born after the 1963 rubella epidemic, is now attending both regular and special classes at Gallinas School.

There is hope it won't happen again. Some reports indicate a vaccine against rubella may be developed by 1970, and vaccination could prevent prenatal damage from the disease.

But the parents group has a mission beyond the training of their own children. They and the teachers are now pressing for hospitals and doctors to set up routine hearing tests for newborn babies so hearing impairment can be detected and training begun early.

ACTING OUT WORDS—Kevin Little, center, helps Kimberly Mihan act out "flying" under the attentive eyes of teacher Natalie Lenn and fellow pupil Janice O'Donnell. The hearing-impaired children often must be taught the concept underlying a word before learning to speak it back to the teacher.

WALKABOUT TIME — Janice O'Donnell and Kevin Little watch closely as Mrs. Natalie Lenn walks Kimberly Mihan about the classroom, explaining each action as she goes. In the background are teacher's assistant Marilyn Bishop and pupil Paula Tomko.

Rams Will Stick To Squibs; 49ers To See Movies

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — From now on George Allen will follow that old adage about practice what you preach.

Allen, coach of the Los Angeles Rams, is a big man for squib kickoff, a technique he installed last year to stop the long runback threat of Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

With Bruce Gossett kicking low line drives, hoping for crazy bounces, the Rams have been most successful with the squibs this season. In one game against Atlanta, Gossett's kicks skittered among the Falcons. One bounced completely over the head of the would-be rec evier.

For some strange reason, Allen decided to go for the long ball Sunday against the Detroit Lions. Gossett was given orders to give the heavy foot to his opening kickoff. Lem Barney of the Lions ran it back 98 yards for a touchdown, and the Rams barely squeaked home 10-7.

"I'm kind of a squib man," Allen told reporters in Los Angeles. "But I felt it would be taken as a negative play after our loss to Baltimore last week which I didn't want. So I told Bruce to kick the hell out of the ball.

"After 98 yards, I'm back to being a squib man."

FLOYD LITTLE won the battle of Syracuse Sunday in Boston. Little, who failed to set the pro world afire last year, to put it mildly, cut loose with his second 100-plus-yard day in a row for the Denver Broncos. Little made 147 on 30 carries.

On the other side of the field, Jim Nance, the two-time rushing champion, who, like Little, is a Syracuse alumnus, gained only 51 yards on 21 attempts.

GALE SAYERS will be the star of the film show in the San Francisco locker room this week, as the 49ers get ready to invade Wrigley Field Sunday for a game with the Chicago Bears.

As if the 49ers needed any prompting to remember that Sayers tied the NFL record with six touchdowns against them in 1965 and also took them apart last year, they will get a long look at the movies of Gale's biggest day as a pro. Sayers ran for 205 yards against Green Bay Sunday, his best since 284 yards for Kansas against Oklahoma State when he was a sophomore.

"WE SHOULD come to Atlanta more often," was Coach Bill Austin's comment after his Steelers trounced the Falcons 41-21 Sunday.

The only other game between the two clubs was in 1966, Austin's first year as boss man. It was in Atlanta and the Steelers rolled it up 57-33.

WITH BILL KILMER out for four weeks with a hairline fracture of an ankle, the New Orleans Saints must go with Karl Sweeten as their quarterback. Karl was intercepted four times Sunday by Dallas after coming in cold to replace Kilmer.

The Saints moved up Ronnie South, a rookie from Arkansas, as a backup man for Sweetan, the ex-Detroit Lion.

It's Now Or Never For Willsey's Golden Bears

To Face Mighty Trojans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is one advantage in playing the top-ranked team in the country in a football game that will determine your Rose Bowl hopes.

No one can accuse you of looking ahead to next week, says California Coach Ray Willsey.

"We can stop looking ahead to anything beyond this week," said Willsey at a meeting of the Northern California Football Writers yesterday. "Obviously this is the make-or-break week. It's this week or never as far as California is concerned."

Willsey, whose team suffered through a 7-7 tie with Washington last week, was asked if Cal would concede SC's star running back, O.J. Simpson, a certain amount of yardage during the game.

"We're going to try to shut him off with nothing," said Willsey. "Of course, he may get 450 yards."

Willsey said he thought Cal had a good chance to beat the Trojans. He was joined in the opinion by John Reid, publicity director for the University of Washington, which lost to USC 14-7 before tying Cal.

"I think Cal will beat USC," said Reid, in town prior to Washington's game Saturday with Stanford. "Off our performances against both teams, I'd say Cal has a real good shot at it. Cal has a good defense and I think USC lacks one."

The writers named Ed White, Cal lineman who helped stop the Washington attack, as lineman oft he week for major colleges and tabbed quarterback Mickey Ackley, instrumental in Pacific's 28-0 victory over San Jose, as back of the week.

For small colleges, Greg Huarte, St. Mary's quarterback, was named backfield star and John Becknall, Hayward State offensive guard, was picked as lineman.

It's Tam-San Rafael Alumni Game In Kezar

OLD GRADS—Saturday afternoon San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools renewed their ancient football rivalry that dates back to 1905. Tamalpais won Saturday's game 12 to 6.

Sunday afternoon there was a Tamalpais-San Rafael Alumni game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco. San Rafael won.

I am NOT kidding. It was billed as the 49ers against the Cleveland Browns but I saw it as an alumni game because a San Rafael grad, Ron Snidow, played defensive end for the Browns and two Tam grads, guard Elmer Collett and linebacker Matt Hazeltine played for the Niners. The Browns—I mean San Rafael Bulldogs—won, 33-21.

Snidow played the entire game on defense and made a major contribution to Cleveland's victory. Acquired by the Browns in a trade with the Washington Redskins earlier this year, Snidow made a crunching tackle that caused Gary Lewis to fumble early in the game, leading to a Cleveland field goal. And his No. 88 was obvious on several other defensive plays that pretty well contained the 49er ground attack.

Had Their Confrontations

Collett and Snidow met more than once during the afternoon. On 49er sweeps around Snidow's left end position. Collett led the interference and his No. 66 jersey colliding with Ron's 88 was a joy to the old S. R. Bulldogs and Tam Indians in the stands. I'd say it was a standoff in the personal duel.

Meantime, Hazeltine being a defensive man, had no confrontation with Snidow, so he enjoyed the alumni game from the sidelines.

Snidow's return to the Bay Area recalled his great high school career at San Rafael in the late 1950s when he was All-Northern California in football, won the California Interscholastic Federation discus championship and helped San Rafael win a basketball title. Ron went on to football stardom at University of Oregon and is now in his sixth season in the National Football League. Now 26 years old, he stands 6-foot 3 and weighs 250.

Large Marin Delegation

There was an unusually large Marin County delegation at Kezar Sunday. Side-by-side in the pressbox, for example, were sportscaster and Mrs. Russ Hodges of Mill Valley's Enchanted Knolls, pro football Hall of Famer Ernie Nevers of Tiburon and barkeep (The Cellars) Lou Buecher of San Rafael.

Quite a contrast: The aforementioned Nevers, stands were the Drake Junior Pirates of San Anselmo, champions of the Marin County Pop Warner Football Conference who were decked out in their bright green jackets.

Quite a contrast: the aforementioned Nevers, greatest star for Glenn S. "Pop" Warner at Stanford, on one side of the stadium; the 1968 Marin Pop Warner champs on the other side.

Gauchos Were 49er Guests

Also in the stands Sunday, as guests of 49er management, were the University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos, including Terra Linda High School grads Stan Pareto, Paul Lee and Doug Parker. The previous evening the Gauchos whupped the University of Santa Clara Broncos, 35-14.

SICK BAY—The aforementioned Hodges, voice of the San Francisco Giants, underwent major surgery this morning. His many fans can send their best wishes to him at Marin General Hospital.

BASKETBALL BALLOT—Spectators at tonight's Oakland Oaks-Dallas Chaparrals American Basketball Association game will be kept abreast of election results via the Oakland Coliseum's huge message board on the circular scoreboard. 'll bet Rick Barry outscores George Wallace.

Daryle Says He'll Play

OAKLAND (AP)—Daryle Lamonica, the Oakland Raiders' star quarterback who was injured in Sunday's victory over the Kansas City Chiefs, predicted yesterday that he would be able to play next Sunday.

X rays taken Sunday night and yesterday at an Oakland hospital showed no cartilage or ligament damage and Lamonica was sent home. He'll be given ice-pack and whirlpool therapy for the next few days to reduce swelling.

"It's tender and swollen," said Lamonica, who was hit by Kansas City linebacker Jim Lynch and had to be helped off the field. "But it's not really painful. You can't count me out Sunday."

Casper Heads Hawaiian Golf Field

HONOLULU (AP) — Billy Casper, on the brink of another money winning mark, heads the field for the $125,000 Hawaiian International Golf Tournament this week over a course where he has always played well.

Casper, fresh from victory in the Lucky Open in San Francisco, is less than $8,000 from the official and total winnings marks set by Jack Nicklaus last year.

A finish of third or better in the tournament on the Waialae course on the slopes of Hawaii's Diamond Head would put Casper over, and he has been second here the past two years.

Top prize in the Hawaiian is $25,000. It is the next to the last stop on the pro tour for the year. Play over the 6,800-yard course runs Thursday through Sunday. Par is 72.

Arnold Palmer is in the field for the second straight year. He came here from Australia where he and Nicklaus played two tournaments.

Nicklaus has gone home, to Columbus, Ohio, where his wife expects a child.

Many of the regular tourists are entered, including a number of double winners this year. Lee Trevino, National Open champ, will play, as will Dudley Wysong, who beat Capser here in a playoff last year.

Ted Makalena, the Hawaiian golfing star who was killed in a freak swimming accident at Waikiki two months ago, edged Casper in the 1966 tournament.

Casper has more than $182,000 in official money this year and six tournament victories, and better than $203,000 over-all. Nicklaus set the marks of $189,000 and $211,000 last year.

Besides Casper, Trevino and Palmer, three others in the field —George Archer, Miller Barber and Bob Lunn — have won over $100,000.

Gridder's Condition Reported 'Serious'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The condition of John Chrestman, UCLA football player who is partly paralyzed from a neck-spinal injury suffered in the Tennessee game here Saturday, remains "unchanged—still serious," University Hospital reported today.

Safe Lift Devices Are Stolen

Two 200-pound devices used to lift safes were taken from the back yard of William G. Van Zee, 11 Glen Road, Manor, sometime last week, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Mrs. Van Zee reported the theft Friday, but gave no estimate of the value of the lifting devices. She said her husband uses them for his lock and safe business in the East Bay.

The theft was one of eight reported yesterday by deputies.

Deputies said Bobby E. Graves of 1423 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, reported Friday that a ring valued at $1,000 was taken from his home between Oct. 24 and 29. A tape recorder-radio combination valued at $100 was also missing. There was no sign of forced entry, deputies said.

Jeicy Pawlow of 56 Bay Vista Drive, Strawberry, reported Thursday that $40 in silver was taken from his home sometime that day. Entry was apparently gained by removing a pane of glass, deputies said.

A tape recorder and a camera valued at a total of $177 were taken from a locked car owned by John R. Bonacorsi of San Jost between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, Bonacorsi told deputies Thursday. He said the car was parked near Marin Joe's when the theft occurred, deputies reported.

Paul D. Doiron of 35 Bret Court, Novato, reported Friday a stereo tape player was taken from his locked car while it was parked at College of Marin that day, deputies said.

Another tape player was reported missing Thursday by Robert Russo of 245 Flamingo Road, Tamalpais Valley, deputies said. Russo said the player was taken from his home. There were no signs of forced entry.

Dara K. Ellis of Washington Park reported Friday that her gun was stolen from her gear at Mount Tamalpais State Park the night before, deputies said.

Barbara Scott of Lagunitas Country Store reported Saturday that a necklace worth $48 had been taken from the store that day, deputies said.

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Rains Will Soon Be Followed By Those Salmon, Steelhead

STEVENS

The rains came, and so to those avid anglers who favor working the coast streams — the Russian River, the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Big and Ten Mile rivers to the north of the Bay Area, as well as those streams to the south — it is now legal to take salmon or steelhead in those streams.

But, legal or otherwise, unless the mouths of the streams are not bar bound, and the steelies come in out of the deep, and start upstream to the spawning grounds, the fact is that few, if any, of the fish will be taken. Steelhead fishing is a time of waiting. Waiting for the streams to return to normal after a spell of raining, and AFTER the streams lower after a hard rain, and they become first cloudy and then gradually attain a "milky" appearance. Then steelhead fishing becomes productive.

EVERY YEAR at this period, hundreds of fishermen leave the Bay Area and head for their favorite stream. Many will find the stream strictly nonproductive, still too cloudy to be fished; or the stream has gone through the cycle and has become too clear to yield many fish, and the few that are in the streams seldom take roe, night crawlers, spoon or spinners, one to mention artificial flies.

Not a very pleasant picture, is it? But the waiting is worth while; just one steelhead caught in the tide-water rivers is an experience you will never forget.

SO — WHAT'S to do? The answer is to contact some resort owner or private citizen after a rain and learn the current water condition. Ask about the color of the water. Figure at least five rainless days for most coast tidewater streams to return to normal. Several days longer for some streams such as the Russian River. So call your contact, but not before we have had a long spell of rainless days.

Perhaps the Russian River — its full length — attracts more anglers from the Bay Area, than any other stream. A good and reliable contact is the King News and Tackle Shop at Guerneville. You can depend upon any report given. If you like driving you will get an honest report from the Tackle Shop at Garberville. The new owner is Bob Hoops.

A good contact to learn weather conditions is the weather bureau itself. It could be fair weather here in the bay region, and raining cats and dogs back from the coast. Don't shove off for any stream until you check.

Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles remained the top floor shooter with 81 of 119 tries for a .681 percentage. New York's Walt Frazier has converted 31 of 34 free throw attempts for .912, while Seattle's Lennie Wilkens is the top playmaker with 99 assists in 10 games.

U.S. Soccer Owners Have Huge Losses

COMBINED AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The two-year operation of the North American Soccer League was a $1 million lesson for every owner, Toby Hilliard, co-owner of the Oakland Clippers, said yesterday.

That's the figure Hilliard said the league owners had to dole out in the NASL's two-year existence.

Speaking at a news conference, he said there definitely would be no Clippers' team this year and added, "It probably was a mistake to play games exclusively in Oakland.

"We should have moved around to San Francisco and San Jose."

A final decision on whether the NASL would sponsor an All-Star team which would play in league cities is expected to be made at an owner's meeting Nov. 15.

PITTSBURGH — Linebacker John Campbell was lost to the Pittsburgh Steelers for the remainder of the NFL season with a broken left elbow and cornerback Bob Holn was sidelined for at least four weeks with a shoulder separation.

TENNIS

WHO'S THAT IN CAL BEAR BACKFIELD?

As he put his Bears through a two-hour drill yesterday in preparation for the Cal-USC weekend battle, Willsey decked out his squad in white — except for one man who had on a dark jersey with the number "32" on it.

"That stands for either O. J. Simpson or Jimmy Brown," Willsey said. "You can decide which one." Simpson, of course, is USC's great halfback.

Perhaps it was coincidence but Willsey had his "32" running with the offensive unit.

Oregon Stater Wins Honors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billy Main, ball-carrying star of Oregon State's 29-7 victory over Stanford last Saturday, was named the Pacific-8 Conference Back of the Week today.

Main rushed for 126 yards in 18 carries against Stanford, caught two passes for 18 yards and scored twice on runs of 24 and 20 yards.

He now is the Pacific-8's No. 3 rusher behind O. J. Simpson of USC and Oregon State teammate Bill Enyart.

Main, who has run for 469 net yards in seven games, is a 5-foot-11, 195-pound junior from Lafayette.

Now Pitching: Conigliaro

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's pro debut as a pitcher was a qualified success, and the Boston Red Sox think their onetime slugging outfielder will be even better on the mound with a bit more practice.

Conigliaro pitched the first three innings for the Red Sox team in an Instructional League game against the Phillies yesterday and looked sharp although tagged with the 3-0 loss.

The comeback-bent 23-year-old right-hander retired the side in order in the first two innings, allowing only one ball to be hit to the outfield, before his own wildness and some mental miscues by his young supporting cast victimized him in the third.

Tony C. walked three batters in that inning and also got a bad break when a potential double play ball rolled into left field as the shortstop, trying to hold a runner at second base, didn't get over to cover his position.

That plus a bloop single to right added up to the three runs.

"I think I'm going to be all right," Conigliaro said. "Mace Brown, the coach, said I did fine.

"Mace said I wasn't swinging my left leg when I had men on. That'll come. But the fact the ball was moving was the big thing."

Conigliaro was a high school pitching ace, compiling an 18-2 record, but this was his first game action on the mound since Junior American Legion ball.

"Tony did better than I expected—or anyone reasonably could," Brown said. "He pitched very well—very well indeed."

Congiliaro, whose career as a hitter was sidetracked when he was hit by a pitch Aug. 18, 1967, indicated he still hasn't ruled out the hope of a comeback in his old spot.

"I hit the ball all right, lining it to the shortstop, and I walked," he said. "So we'll go on from there. I'm happy—but awful tired."

Conigliaro's showing raised speculation again about his status with the Red Sox, who did not protect him on the 40-man winter roster they announced last month.

Normally this would make a player available in the draft for $25,000, but a Red Sox spokesman said Conigliaro had been placed in a special category by Commissioner William Eckert.

According to the spokesman, Conigliaro is currently immune from the draft via his emergency disabled status.

He indicated it was possible that this immunity would be withdrawn, but if so, the Red Sox would be given the opportunity to put Tony on the 40-man roster in place of another player.

Fairfax Gal Wins Marin Pin Tourney

Miss Puccinelli averaged 178 through 14 games to win the fourth annual Marin County Women's Championship tournament last weekend at Nave Lanes near Ignacio, it was announced by tourney officials yesterday.

The tourney drew 56 Marin women and was sponsored by the Marin County Women's 600 Bowling Club. Miss Puccinelli, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Puccinelli of Fairfax, succeeds RoseMarie O'Neil of Corte Madera as the new "queen" of Marin bowling. Lu Sharp of San Anselmo had won the first two titles.

Miss Puccinelli, who has a 158 blue book average, went through the 10-game finals undefeated. Kay Beal was runner-up in this year's tourney and Jeanne Gaffney was third.

Cards' Sportscaster In Fair Condition

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Hospital officials said sportscaster Harry Caray was in fair condition yesterday.

Caray, announcer for the St. Louis Cardinals' baseball team, was struck by a motorist as he crossed a St. Louis street early Sunday. He suffered multiple cuts and was listed in critical condition for a time.

Simpson And Mates Picked By Seven Over Cal Bears

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson is expected to break loose against California Saturday and the oddsmakers back their belief by making top-ranked Southern California a seven-point favorite over the Bears.

Simpson was held to 67 yards rushing by Oregon last weekend as the Trojan backfield star stumbled momentarily in his race for Heisman Trophy honors. USC has a slate of six consecutive victories this season to five wins, a tie and a defeat for conference rival California.

Second-ranked Ohio State figures to extend Wisconsin's winless skein to 18 games as the Buckeyes, 6-0, take the field 20-point favorites.

No. 3 Kansas is rated seven points better than Oklahoma, fourth-ranked Penn State is 6 over Miami and fifth-ranked Tennessee, 3 over Auburn.

Rounding out the top 10 rated teams, Purdue is 13 over Minnesota, Michigan 21 over Illinois, Missouri 22 over Iowa State, Texas 19 over Baylor and Georgia 7 over Florida.

By Sections:

EAST — Dartmouth 12 over Columbia, Cornell 12 over Brown, Harvard 1 over Princeton, Yale 14 over Penn and Army 14 over Boston College.

SOUTH — Clemson 10 over Maryland, Florida State 10 over Mississippi State, Alabama 6 over Louisiana State, Kentucky 6 over Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech 12 over Navy, North Carolina State 7 over Duke, Wake Forest 7 over South Carolina and Virginia 6 over North Carolina.

MIDWEST—Michigan State 6 over Indiana, Iowa 13 over Northwestern, and Nebraska 18 over Kansas State.

Cardinals Slug Five Home Runs In 9-7 Victory

TOYAMA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals hammered five home runs but needed a ninth inning rally, climaxed by Orlando Cepeda's second homer of the game, to beat the Yomiuri Giants 9-7 today.

Bob Gibson, the National League's leading pitcher, held the Japanese champions scoreless for four innings and the Cardinals ran up a 5-0 lead. But the Giants tied the game with five runs in the fifth inning against Mel Nelson.

St. Louis now has a 6-3 record on its 18-game Japanese tour and a 4-1 record against Yomiuir. Two of St. Louis' losses have been to the Japan All-Stars—both shutouts.

They Did Their Part

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Jack Smith bowled 659 and his son, Danny, contributed 646, with father and son each rolling 254 in one game, but their team lost.

Warriors Beat Suns; To Face Knicks Next

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Warriors, mastering the National Basketball Association expansion teams but unable to beat the older clubs, try to reverse that trend tomorrow night against the New York Knicks at Civic Auditorium.

Nate Thurmond and Rudy LaRusso scored 28 points apiece last night as the Warriors beat the new Phoenix Suns for the second time, 119-108 at Phoenix.

Jeff Mullins contributed to the three-pronged offensive attack with 26 points.

San Francisco held a six-point halftime lead but the Suns came back in the third quarter to tie at 72-72 before nine straight points put the Warriors out of reach.

Dick Van Arsdale and Gail Goodrich paced Phoenix with 29 and 27 points respectively.

A's Slate More Games In Daylight

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics, the first major league transfer franchise which failed to draw over a million fans, have scheduled more day games for the 1969 season.

In releasing their new schedule, the Athletics yesterday said the club wil lplay 42 day games compared to only 22 last year. Thirty-nine night games, as opposed to 60 in 1968, are on the 1969 slate.

One of the major changes include switching Saturday twi-night games to 1:30 afternoon starts.

The A's will open their home season April 8 against the Chicago White Sox.

Oakland in its inaugural season after transferring from Kansas City drew 838,501 fans.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 5, the 310th day of 1968 with 56 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1733 John Peter Zenger began printing the newspaper the New York Weekly Journal.

In 1911 Calbrith Rogers completed the first American trans-continental flight. It took him 49 days to fly from New York City to Pasadena, Calif.

In 1940 President Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to a third term.

In 1955 Austria formally opened the reconstructed Vienna State Opera house and celebrated liberation from 17 years of foreign occupation.

A thought for the day: English writer, William McFee, said, "responsibility's like a string that we can only see the middle of. Both ends are out of sight."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Courageous To Play Hand Than To Surrender To The Foes

If you fear that the missing cards are in unfavorable position you can surrender and tell the opponents to take as many tricks as they like. But it's more courageous to play the hand on the assumption that the cards are favorably placed. Hope is precious, but usually costs nothing.

LEADS KING

West led the king of spades, and South won at once with dummy's ace. Declarer next led a heart from dummy, and East played low. South had to guess whether to play the king or the jack of hearts from his hand.

Sure that West had the ace of hearts for his vulnerable overcall, South tried a finesse with the jack of hearts. West took the queen of hearts and cashed two high spades. East eventually defeated the contract with the ace of trumps.

Since we can see all of the cards we know that South made the wrong guess in playing the jack of hearts. Was South wrong of just unlucky? Work out your answer before you read on.

SURRENDERED

South surrendered when he played the jack of hearts. This play would drive out the ace if West had the ace of hearts and East the queen. But then West would cash two high spades and lead a fourth spade. If East had the queen of hearts he would be able to overruff dummy on the fouth spade, and South would be down one anyway. In short, playing the jack of hearts could not enable declarer to make his contract no matter how the hearts were divided.

ONLY CHANCE

South's only chance is that East has the ace of hearts. South should therefore play the king of hearts and hold his breath. When the king happens to win, South should breathe out and lead another heart. He loses only one trump and two spades, making his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K Q J 10 5
♥ Q 7
♦ Q J 9 5
♣ 9 4.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have 11 points in high cards and 2 points for the doubletons, enough for an optional opening bid. In this case you prefer to pass since a hand with only one king and no aces at all simply isn't worth an opening bid. If you had two small hearts and A-J-9-5 of diamonds, your count would be the same, but you would then have a respectable opening bid of one spade.

WELL, GANG, HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE

Clyde Lee Hurting, So Are The Warriors

When the Warriors left on a five-game road trip last week they were leading the Western Division of the National Basketball Association. They returned home Monday night just a step out of the cellar.

It was a disastrous road trip beginning with the first game in Baltimore where they dropped a 112-110 overtime decision to the Bullets after dissipating a 19-point fourth quarter lead.

The next three defeats were equally frustrating. The Warriors dropped them in the last minute of each game.

If Clyde Lee's ailing arch had not kept the 6-9 forward on the bench, all of the initial four road losses might have been salvaged. A tendon in the arch of Lee's left foot is the source of his trouble.

LEE MOVED in Rick Barry's old forward position when Barry jumped to the Oakland Oaks in the American Basketball Association a year ago. Barry sat out his option with the Warriors. That course of action, or mare accurately inaction, prompted a whopping damage suit again Barry and the Oaks by Franklin Mieuli, owner of the Warriors, who said Barry should have played out his option. The suit still is in the courts.

If Nate Thurmond hadn't damaged a knee serevely last year, the Warriors might have made it to the NBA finals because Lee's performances at forward were superb. He was a perfect partner for Rudy LaRusso, a 10-year NBA veteran.

JUMPING JOE ELLIS, the former University of San Francisco star, has been filling in at forward. But Ellis naturally can't fill in at two positions simultaneously. He had been spelling LaRusso who, at 31, needs periodic rests from the racehorse pace the pros maintain for the full 48 minutes of their basketball games.

At the outset of the 1968-69 NBA season, George Lee, new coach of the Warriors, predicted a brilliant year for the team. His prediction was predicated on Thurmond's staying healthy. Nobody thought of Clyde Lee breaking down.

WHEN THEY had Barry, the Warriors also had depth. Loss of Barry to the Oaks and other players to NBA expansion teams depleted the depth of the Warriors. An injury to their superstar, Thurmond, would be fatal to team hopes.

But an injury to a supporting star now is almost as deadly. At least, the results of the first road trip without Lee would seem to indicate that.

HOWEVER, AN injury at this early stage of the basketball season leaves plenty of time for recuperation. It's not the same as an injury in the home stretch of a nip-and-tuck race.

The Warriors are in trouble with less than a dozen of the 82 games played in the 1968-69 schedule but it is nothing more than temporary trouble this early in the campaign.

Marin Hockey Players Win

Pat McPartlan pulled off a hat trick of three goals and four teammates scored a pair of goals as the Marin Junior Peewee Hockey team bombed Belmont of Burlingame, 12-0, at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera Sunday.

McPartlan joined teammate David Bonbright on the hat trick list. Bonbright pulled it off against San Francisco a week earlier.

North Carolina End Shows He's Ready

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Ron Lowry, a former trackman from Chesapeake, Va., showed early that he was in shape for the football season at North Carolina.

The defensive end ran the fastest mile the first day of fall practice. He was timed in 5:14.

Novato Girls Win Swim Meet

Novato High School's girl swimmers won the final event of the meet, the 200-yard freestyle relay to nip Drake High School of San Anselmo, 56-55, in Marin County Athletic League girls swimming action last week.

In other meets, Redwood of Larkspur topped Tamalpais of Mill Valley, 71-40, and San Rafael High School swamped Marin Catholic of Kentfield, 81-28.

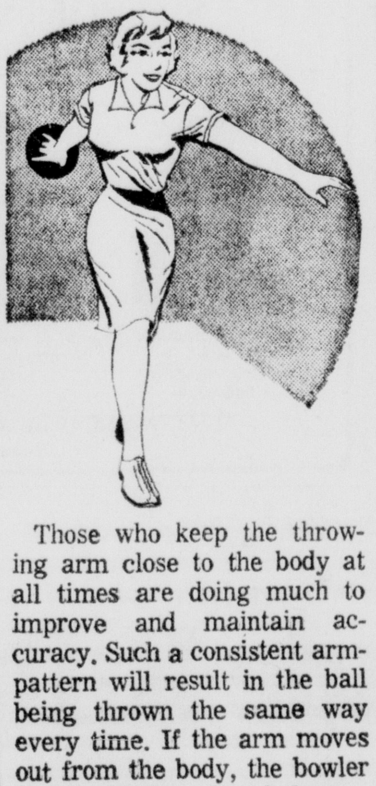
In tennis action, Tamalpais nicked Novato, 3-2 and Drake stopped Marin Catholic, 3-2.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Those who keep the throwing arm close to the body at all times are doing much to improve and maintain accuracy. Such a consistent arm-pattern will result in the ball being thrown the same way every time. If the arm moves out from the body, the bowler is most likely to lose balance.

Stats Show Wild Season For The Tars

One look at the College of Marin Tars' football statistics, and you get an idea of the kind of wild and woolly season it's been for the men from Kentfield.

Nothing comes out quite right. The Tars have been out-first downed, 58-54, but have outgained their opponents in rushing, passing and total yardage. The mistakes that have plagued the Tars in a 5-2 won-lost season are heer too — 18 interceptions, 12 fumbles and a whopping 584 yards in penalties.

Halfback Tim Garvin is the top rusher and scorer on the squad with 489 yards in 75 carries and 7 touchdowns.

Hawkins belted Crawford through the ropes with 1:18 elapsed in the eighth round of their scheduled 12-rounder, the last of four bouts at the Forum. Referee George Latka stopped the contest when Crawford was unable to get back on his feet.

Napoles, flailing away at Rea almost at will, dropped the Irishman for the mandatory nine count in the first round and bloodied his nose in the third. The fight was stopped in the fifth when Rea's nose continued to bleed.

The crowd of 10,857 also saw Richie Sue of Portland, Ore., open the card by kayoing Gil Noriega of Mexico City in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

In the fourth bout, Arturo Lomeli of Guadalajara, Mexico, apparently earned himself a shot at world lightweight champion Carlos Cruz with a unanimous decision over Ruben Navarro of Los Angeles.

Lomeli had Navarro down three times for the mandatory nine count, but could not finish him off.

The judges, Larry Rozadilla and John Thomas, had it 7-5 and 7-6 respectively, while referee Joey Olmos scored it 9-5 for Lomeli.

Four Marin Men Racing In Mexico

Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax are driving a Ford Cortina in the Mexican 1,000, an off-road race event which started today at 6 a.m.

The Marin County pair will be competing in a two-wheel drive production class. Two other Marin County men, Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington, are also in the race, in a division for dune buggies.

Winkelmann, 40, is owner of Robert Winkelmann Racing Shop in Sausalito, and Maxey, 28, is his chief mechanic.

About $2,000 has gone into the building of their car, No. 71, green with gold trim. They will not be using a follow vehicle, as do some of the other entrants. Instead, the car will be packed with spare parts, torches, spare tires and tools.

ROUGH TERRAIN

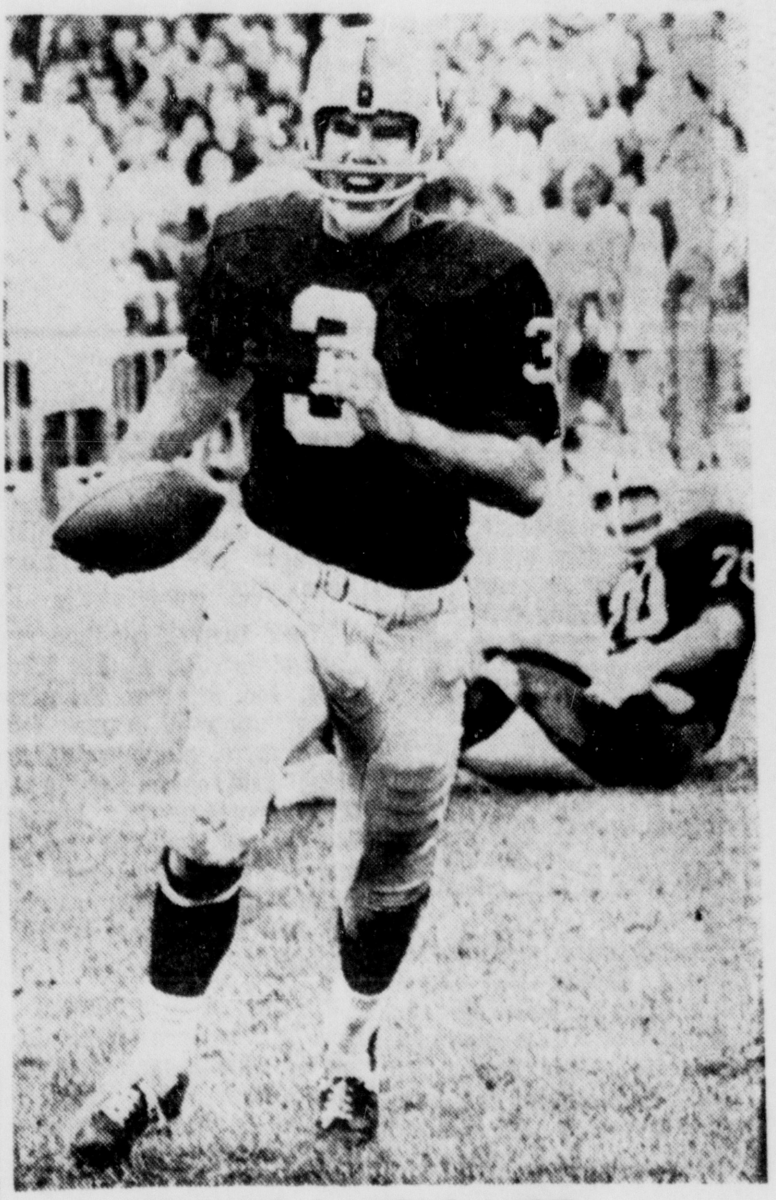
The car started out as a 1964 Cortina, but the interior has been changed around to provide more storage, and an extra gas tank has been added in the trunk. It has been raised from the ground to provide more clearance over the rough terrain which the race covers, approximately 1,000 miles from Ensenada to La Paz.

The bearded Winkelmann was born and reared in London and came to the United States in 1950. He has just recently moved his business from Mill Valley to Sausalito.

Ex-Red Sox Stephens Dies Of Heart Attack

LONG BEACH (AP) — Vern Stephens, the slugging Boston Red Sox shortstop who led the American League in runs batted in with 159 in 1949 and 144 in 1950, is head at the age of 48.

The 15-year major league veteran who also played with three other clubs and was in six All-Star Games, died of a heart attack last night.



HE WHO LAUGHS LAST . . .

Yes, he who laughs last laughs the longest, as the old saying goes, and Oakland Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica was hysterical with joy on this second quarter American Football League play against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday at Oakland Coliseum. Lamonica completely fooled the Chiefs and scored untouched on a four-yard quarterback draw play. Oakland won a laughter, 38-21.

Rohnert Park Golf Links Will Be Completed Soon

Rohnert Park's Municipal Golf Course will be a full-fledged golf course in another two months when work on the back nine holes is completed.

According to Rohnert Park Superintendent of Public Works Bill Wiggins and Golf Course Superintendent Sam Singh, the holes have been regraded, leveled and replanted and a completely new irrigation system has been installed. They have been completed recently and only missing ingredient is grass that's growing right now.

Rams Will Stick To Squibs; 49ers To See Movies

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — From now on George Allen will follow that old adage about practice what you preach.

Allen, coach of the Los Angeles Rams, is a big man for squib kickoff, a technique he installed last year to stop the long runback threat of Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

With Bruce Gossett kicking low line drives, hoping for crazy bounces, the Rams have been most successful with the squibs this season. In one game against Atlanta, Gossett's kicks skittered among the Falcons. One bounced completely over the head of the would-be rec evier.

For some strange reason, Allen decided to go for the long ball Sunday against the Detroit Lions. Gossett was given orders to give the heavy foot to his opening kickoff. Lem Barney of the Lions ran it back 98 yards for a touchdown, and the Rams barely squeaked home 10-7.

"I'm kind of a squib man," Allen told reporters in Los Angeles. "But I felt it would be taken as a negative play after our loss to Baltimore last week which I didn't want. So I told Bruce to kick the hell out of the ball.

"After 98 yards, I'm back to being a squib man."

FLOYD LITTLE won the battle of Syracuse Sunday in Boston. Little, who failed to set the pro world afire last year, to put it mildly, cut loose with his second 100-plus-yard day in a row for the Denver Broncos. Little made 147 on 30 carries.

On the other side of the field, Jim Nance, the two-time rushing champion, who, like Little, is a Syracuse alumnus, gained only 51 yards on 21 attempts.

GALE SAYERS will be the star of the film show in the San Francisco locker room this week, as the 49ers get ready to invade Wrigley Field Sunday for a game with the Chicago Bears.

As if the 49ers needed any prompting to remember that Sayers tied the NFL record with six touchdowns against them in 1965 and also took them apart last year, they will get a long look at the movies of Gale's biggest day as a pro. Sayers ran for 205 yards against Green Bay Sunday, his best since 284 yards for Kansas against Oklahoma State when he was a sophomore.

"WE SHOULD come to Atlanta more often," was Coach Bill Austin's comment after his Steelers trounced the Falcons 41-21 Sunday.

The only other game between the two clubs was in 1966, Austin's first year as boss man. It was in Atlanta and the Steelers rolled it up 57-33.

WITH BILL KILMER out for four weeks with a hairline fracture of an ankle, the New Orleans Saints must go with Karl Sweeten as their quarterback. Karl was intercepted four times Sunday by Dallas after coming in cold to replace Kilmer.

The Saints moved up Ronnie South, a rookie from Arkansas, as a backup man for Sweetan, the ex-Detroit Lion.

It's Now Or Never For Willsey's Golden Bears

To Face Mighty Trojans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is one advantage in playing the top-ranked team in the country in a football game that will determine your Rose Bowl hopes.

No one can accuse you of looking ahead to next week, says California Coach Ray Willsey.

"We can stop looking ahead to anything beyond this week," said Willsey at a meeting of the Northern California Football Writers yesterday. "Obviously this is the make-or-break week. It's this week or never as far as California is concerned."

Willsey, whose team suffered through a 7-7 tie with Washington last week, was asked if Cal would concede SC's star running back, O.J. Simpson, a certain amount of yardage during the game.

"We're going to try to shut him off with nothing," said Willsey. "Of course, he may get 450 yards."

Willsey said he thought Cal had a good chance to beat the Trojans. He was joined in the opinion by John Reid, publicity director for the University of Washington, which lost to USC 14-7 before tying Cal.

"I think Cal will beat USC," said Reid, in town prior to Washington's game Saturday with Stanford. "Off our performances against both teams, I'd say Cal has a real good shot at it. Cal has a good defense and I think USC lacks one."

The writers named Ed White, Cal lineman who helped stop the Washington attack, as lineman oft he week for major colleges and tabbed quarterback Mickey Ackley, instrumental in Pacific's 28-0 victory over San Jose, as back of the week.

For small colleges, Greg Huarte, St. Mary's quarterback, was named backfield star and John Becknall, Hayward State offensive guard, was picked as lineman.

It's Tam-San Rafael Alumni Game In Kezar

OLD GRADS—Saturday afternoon San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools renewed their ancient football rivalry that dates back to 1905. Tamalpais won Saturday's game 12 to 6.

Sunday afternoon there was a Tamalpais-San Rafael Alumni game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco. San Rafael won.

I am NOT kidding. It was billed as the 49ers against the Cleveland Browns but I saw it as an alumni game because a San Rafael grad, Ron Snidow, played defensive end for the Browns and two Tam grads, guard Elmer Collett and linebacker Matt Hazeltine played for the Niners. The Browns—I mean San Rafael Bulldogs—won, 33-21.

Snidow played the entire game on defense and made a major contribution to Cleveland's victory. Acquired by the Browns in a trade with the Washington Redskins earlier this year, Snidow made a crunching tackle that caused Gary Lewis to fumble early in the game, leading to a Cleveland field goal. And his No. 88 was obvious on several other defensive plays that pretty well contained the 49er ground attack.

Had Their Confrontations

Collett and Snidow met more than once during the afternoon. On 49er sweeps around Snidow's left end position. Collett led the interference and his No. 66 jersey colliding with Ron's 88 was a joy to the old S. R. Bulldogs and Tam Indians in the stands. I'd say it was a standoff in the personal duel.

Meantime, Hazeltine being a defensive man, had no confrontation with Snidow, so he enjoyed the alumni game from the sidelines.

Snidow's return to the Bay Area recalled his great high school career at San Rafael in the late 1950s when he was All-Northern California in football, won the California Interscholastic Federation discus championship and helped San Rafael win a basketball title. Ron went on to football stardom at University of Oregon and is now in his sixth season in the National Football League. Now 26 years old, he stands 6-foot 3 and weighs 250.

Large Marin Delegation

There was an unusually large Marin County delegation at Kezar Sunday. Side-by-side in the pressbox, for example, were sportscaster and Mrs. Russ Hodges of Mill Valley's Enchanted Knolls, pro football Hall of Famer Ernie Nevers of Tiburon and barkeep (The Cellars) Lou Buecher of San Rafael.

Quite a contrast: The aforementioned Nevers, stands were the Drake Junior Pirates of San Anselmo, champions of the Marin County Pop Warner Football Conference who were decked out in their bright green jackets.

Quite a contrast: the aforementioned Nevers, greatest star for Glenn S. "Pop" Warner at Stanford, on one side of the stadium; the 1968 Marin Pop Warner champs on the other side.

Gauchos Were 49er Guests

Also in the stands Sunday, as guests of 49er management, were the University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos, including Terra Linda High School grads Stan Pareto, Paul Lee and Doug Parker. The previous evening the Gauchos whupped the University of Santa Clara Broncos, 35-14.

SICK BAY—The aforementioned Hodges, voice of the San Francisco Giants, underwent major surgery this morning. His many fans can send their best wishes to him at Marin General Hospital.

BASKETBALL BALLOT—Spectators at tonight's Oakland Oaks-Dallas Chaparrals American Basketball Association game will be kept abreast of election results via the Oakland Coliseum's huge message board on the circular scoreboard. 'll bet Rick Barry outscores George Wallace.

Daryle Says He'll Play

OAKLAND (AP)—Daryle Lamonica, the Oakland Raiders' star quarterback who was injured in Sunday's victory over the Kansas City Chiefs, predicted yesterday that he would be able to play next Sunday.

X rays taken Sunday night and yesterday at an Oakland hospital showed no cartilage or ligament damage and Lamonica was sent home. He'll be given ice-pack and whirlpool therapy for the next few days to reduce swelling.

"It's tender and swollen," said Lamonica, who was hit by Kansas City linebacker Jim Lynch and had to be helped off the field. "But it's not really painful. You can't count me out Sunday."

Casper Heads Hawaiian Golf Field

HONOLULU (AP) — Billy Casper, on the brink of another money winning mark, heads the field for the $125,000 Hawaiian International Golf Tournament this week over a course where he has always played well.

Casper, fresh from victory in the Lucky Open in San Francisco, is less than $8,000 from the official and total winnings marks set by Jack Nicklaus last year.

A finish of third or better in the tournament on the Waialae course on the slopes of Hawaii's Diamond Head would put Casper over, and he has been second here the past two years.

Top prize in the Hawaiian is $25,000. It is the next to the last stop on the pro tour for the year. Play over the 6,800-yard course runs Thursday through Sunday. Par is 72.

Arnold Palmer is in the field for the second straight year. He came here from Australia where he and Nicklaus played two tournaments.

Nicklaus has gone home, to Columbus, Ohio, where his wife expects a child.

Many of the regular tourists are entered, including a number of double winners this year. Lee Trevino, National Open champ, will play, as will Dudley Wysong, who beat Capser here in a playoff last year.

Ted Makalena, the Hawaiian golfing star who was killed in a freak swimming accident at Waikiki two months ago, edged Casper in the 1966 tournament.

Casper has more than $182,000 in official money this year and six tournament victories, and better than $203,000 over-all. Nicklaus set the marks of $189,000 and $211,000 last year.

Besides Casper, Trevino and Palmer, three others in the field —George Archer, Miller Barber and Bob Lunn — have won over $100,000.

Gridder's Condition Reported 'Serious'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The condition of John Chrestman, UCLA football player who is partly paralyzed from a neck-spinal injury suffered in the Tennessee game here Saturday, remains "unchanged—still serious," University Hospital reported today.

Drapery Cleaning Specialist Switches To A Local Franchise

Drapery cleaning specialist Frank H. Michelfelder of San Rafael has given up his post as national sales manager for the rapidly expanding Coit Drapery Cleaners to settle down with a local franchise for the same company.

Michelfelder has supervised Coit branches and franchises for eight years and since the firm has been extending its coverage into new areas his job has been taking him farther afield than ever.

Through Marin realty brokers Herman Deitch and Jane Fairchild he has leased an entire building of over 2,500 square feet at 55 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Here equipment is being installed for a full drapery cleaning plant. In the past a Coit pick-up and delivery station has been maintained at 1852 Fourth Street, San Rafael. This will be discontinued.

The organization is headquartered in Burlingame.

Michelfelder was the subject of a feature article in the I-J's Marin Magazine in March, 1965.

PayLess Reports Record Earnings

OAKLAND (BW) — Skaggs PayLess Drug Stores with an outlet in Marin County, achieved record operating results for the nine months ended Sept. 30, with net sales up 26 per cent and earnings per share up 42 per cent.

Net sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $56,459,636, compared with $44,954,407 in 1967.

Net income was $1,336,696, equal to 64 cents a share on the 2,073,750 shares of common stock outstanding. In the previous nine-month period PayLess had a net income of $916,397, or 45 cents a share when there were 2,038,333 shares outstanding.

Net Earnings Climb 300 Pct.

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Trans-Coast Investment Co., a $92 million savings and loan holding company, has reported that consolidated net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 had increased more than 300 per cent when compared with the similar period in 1967.

Thomas W. Clarke, president, said that net earnings for the first three quarters of 1968 amounted to $408,646, or 19 cents per share, compared with $130,020, or 6 cents per share for the same period in 1967.

For the third quarter of 1968 the company earned $159,318, or 8 cents per share, compared with $69,587, or 3 cents per share in 1967.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switching To Mutual Funds Costly Move

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of General Electric, Radio Corp., Skaggs Drug Centers, Safeway Stores, Marathon Oil and Eastman Kodak which I have been advised to transfer to a mutual fund. What do you advise? — E. K.

A. Selling your holdings and buying a mutual fund could prove costly in commissions, sales fees and capital gains taxes. You have six excellent issues, all of which are well worth retaining.

A good increase in 1968 sales and earnings is predicted for Eastman Kodak, with the greatest gains coming from sales of "Instamatic" cameras, professional photography equipment, man-made fibers and plastics.

General Electric, despite a setback in 1968 earnings, should work higher over the next several years.

Marathon's outlook has been strengthened by an improved crude position, resulting from Alaskan production.

Radio Corp. has predicted another record year, with strength noted in color TV, computers (overseas), broadcasting and computer rental.

A high level of volume for Safeway Stores coupled with some widening of profit margins should lift 1968 results close to record 1966 earnings.

Skaggs Drug Centers, not to be confused with California-based Skaggs Pay Less Drugs — another attractive issue — operates a chair of retail drugstores in the Midwest. Earnings were up 55 per cent in the first 9 months, due in part to inventory and expense control programs.

Changes in your portfolio at this time appear unwarranted.

Q. I am a widow with $20,000 in savings, living on Social Security, a small pension and dividends. Would you suggest any changes in these holdings for extra income: Atlas Corp., Bulova Watch, Charter New York Corp., Cities Service, Crown Zellerbach, General Motors, Gulf & Western dustries. Home Insurance and Midland Ross? — M. C.

A. Sell Atlas Corp., which pays no dividend, and Bulova Watch, which has moved up sharply, thereby discounting near-term earnings prospects.

Interpace Dividend

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (BW) — The board of directors of Interpace Corp. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock, payable Dec. 26 to share owners of record Dec. 6, and a regular dividend of $1.25 per share on the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, payable Jan. 1 to share owners of record Dec. 6.

Air West Over 1 Million Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Air West has carried its first million passengers since it began merged operations July 1.

The new regional airline said this week that its October passenger boardings totaled 250,856, the third month since July that they have exceeded the quarter-million count.

This raised the post-merger count to 1,076,000 passengers, up 108,560 passengers from the pro forma total a year ago.

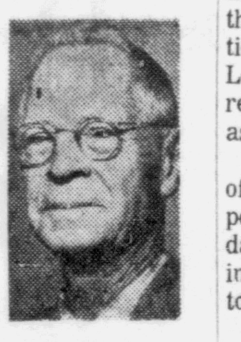
The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Rains Will Soon Be Followed By Those Salmon, Steelhead



STEVENS

The rains came, and so to those avid anglers who favor working the coast streams — the Russian River, the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Big and Ten Mile rivers to the north of the Bay Area, as well as those streams to the south — it is now legal to take salmon or steelhead in those streams.

But, legal or otherwise, unless the mouths of the streams are not bar bound, and the steelies come in out of the deep, and start upstream to the spawning grounds, the fact is that few, if any, of the fish will be taken. Steelhead fishing is a time of waiting. Waiting for the streams to return to normal after a spell of raining, and AFTER the streams lower after a hard rain, and they become first cloudy and then gradually attain a "milky" appearance. Then steelhead fishing becomes productive.

EVERY YEAR at this period, hundreds of fishermen leave the Bay Area and head for their favorite stream. Many will find the stream strictly nonproductive, still too cloudy to be fished; or the stream has gone through the cycle and has become too clear to yield many fish, and the few that are in the streams seldom take roe, night crawlers, spoon or spinners, one to mention artificial flies.

Not a very pleasant picture, is it? But the waiting is worth while; just one steelhead caught in the tide-water rivers is an experience you will never forget.

SO — WHAT'S to do? The answer is to contact some resort owner or private citizen after a rain and learn the current water condition. Ask about the color of the water. Figure at least five rainless days for most coast tidewater streams to return to normal. Several days longer for some streams such as the Russian River. So call your contact, but not before we have had a long spell of rainless days.

Perhaps the Russian River — its full length — attracts more anglers from the Bay Area, than any other stream. A good and reliable contact is the King News and Tackle Shop at Guerneville. You can depend upon any report given. If you like driving you will get an honest report from the Tackle Shop at Garberville. The new owner is Bob Hoops.

A good contact to learn weather conditions is the weather bureau itself. It could be fair weather here in the bay region, and raining cats and dogs back from the coast. Don't shove off for any stream until you check.

Wilt Chamberlain of Los Angeles remained the top floor shooter with 81 of 119 tries for a .681 percentage. New York's Walt Frazier has converted 31 of 34 free throw attempts for .912, while Seattle's Lennie Wilkens is the top playmaker with 99 assists in 10 games.

U.S. Soccer Owners Have Huge Losses

COMBINED AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The two-year operation of the North American Soccer League was a $1 million lesson for every owner, Toby Hilliard, co-owner of the Oakland Clippers, said yesterday.

That's the figure Hilliard said the league owners had to dole out in the NASL's two-year existence.

Speaking at a news conference, he said there definitely would be no Clippers' team this year and added, "It probably was a mistake to play games exclusively in Oakland.

"We should have moved around to San Francisco and San Jose."

A final decision on whether the NASL would sponsor an All-Star team which would play in league cities is expected to be made at an owner's meeting Nov. 15.

WHO'S THAT IN CAL BEAR BACKFIELD?

As he put his Bears through a two-hour drill yesterday in preparation for the Cal-USC weekend battle, Willsey decked out his squad in white — except for one man who had on a dark jersey with the number "32" on it.

"That stands for either O. J. Simpson or Jimmy Brown," Willsey said. "You can decide which one." Simpson, of course, is USC's great halfback.

Perhaps it was coincidence but Willsey had his "32" running with the offensive unit.

Oregon Stater Wins Honors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billy Main, ball-carrying star of Oregon State's 29-7 victory over Stanford last Saturday, was named the Pacific-8 Conference Back of the Week today.

Main rushed for 126 yards in 18 carries against Stanford, caught two passes for 18 yards and scored twice on runs of 24 and 20 yards.

He now is the Pacific-8's No. 3 rusher behind O. J. Simpson of USC and Oregon State teammate Bill Enyart.

Main, who has run for 469 net yards in seven games, is a 5-foot-11, 195-pound junior from Lafayette.

Now Pitching: Conigliaro

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's pro debut as a pitcher was a qualified success, and the Boston Red Sox think their onetime slugging outfielder will be even better on the mound with a bit more practice.

Conigliaro pitched the first three innings for the Red Sox team in an Instructional League game against the Phillies yesterday and looked sharp although tagged with the 3-0 loss.

The comeback-bent 23-year-old right-hander retired the side in order in the first two innings, allowing only one ball to be hit to the outfield, before his own wildness and some mental miscues by his young supporting cast victimized him in the third.

Tony C. walked three batters in that inning and also got a bad break when a potential double play ball rolled into left field as the shortstop, trying to hold a runner at second base, didn't get over to cover his position.

That plus a bloop single to right added up to the three runs.

"I think I'm going to be all right," Conigliaro said. "Mace Brown, the coach, said I did fine.

"Mace said I wasn't swinging my left leg when I had men on. That'll come. But the fact the ball was moving was the big thing."

Conigliaro was a high school pitching ace, compiling an 18-2 record, but this was his first game action on the mound since Junior American Legion ball.

"Tony did better than I expected—or anyone reasonably could," Brown said. "He pitched very well—very well indeed."

Congiliaro, whose career as a hitter was sidetracked when he was hit by a pitch Aug. 18, 1967, indicated he still hasn't ruled out the hope of a comeback in his old spot.

"I hit the ball all right, lining it to the shortstop, and I walked," he said. "So we'll go on from there. I'm happy—but awful tired."

Conigliaro's showing raised speculation again about his status with the Red Sox, who did not protect him on the 40-man winter roster they announced last month.

Normally this would make a player available in the draft for $25,000, but a Red Sox spokesman said Conigliaro had been placed in a special category by Commissioner William Eckert.

According to the spokesman, Conigliaro is currently immune from the draft via his emergency disabled status.

He indicated it was possible that this immunity would be withdrawn, but if so, the Red Sox would be given the opportunity to put Tony on the 40-man roster in place of another player.

Simpson And Mates Picked By Seven Over Cal Bears

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson is expected to break loose against California Saturday and the oddsmakers back their belief by making top-ranked Southern California a seven-point favorite over the Bears.

Simpson was held to 67 yards rushing by Oregon last weekend as the Trojan backfield star stumbled momentarily in his race for Heisman Trophy honors. USC has a slate of six consecutive victories this season to five wins, a tie and a defeat for conference rival California.

Second-ranked Ohio State figures to extend Wisconsin's winless skein to 18 games as the Buckeyes, 6-0, take the field 20-point favorites.

No. 3 Kansas is rated seven points better than Oklahoma, fourth-ranked Penn State is 6 over Miami and fifth-ranked Tennessee, 3 over Auburn.

Rounding out the top 10 rated teams, Purdue is 13 over Minnesota, Michigan 21 over Illinois, Missouri 22 over Iowa State, Texas 19 over Baylor and Georgia 7 over Florida.

Cardinals Slug Five Home Runs In 9-7 Victory

TOYAMA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals hammered five home runs but needed a ninth inning rally, climaxed by Orlando Cepeda's second homer of the game, to beat the Yomiuri Giants 9-7 today.

Bob Gibson, the National League's leading pitcher, held the Japanese champions scoreless for four innings and the Cardinals ran up a 5-0 lead. But the Giants tied the game with five runs in the fifth inning against Mel Nelson.

St. Louis now has a 6-3 record on its 18-game Japanese tour and a 4-1 record against Yomiuir. Two of St. Louis' losses have been to the Japan All-Stars —both shutouts.

Warriors Beat Suns; To Face Knicks Next

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Warriors, mastering the National Basketball Association expansion teams but unable to beat the older clubs, try to reverse that trend tomorrow night against the New York Knicks at Civic Auditorium.

Nate Thurmond and Rudy LaRusso scored 28 points apiece last night as the Warriors beat the new Phoenix Suns for the second time, 119-108 at Phoenix.

Jeff Mullins contributed to the three-pronged offensive attack with 26 points.

San Francisco held a six-point halftime lead but the Suns came back in the third quarter to tie at 72-72 before nine straight points put the Warriors out of reach.

Dick Van Arsdale and Gail Goodrich paced Phoenix with 29 and 27 points respectively.

A's Slate More Games In Daylight

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics, the first major league transfer franchise which failed to draw over a million fans, have scheduled more day games for the 1969 season.

In releasing their new schedule, the Athletics yesterday said the club wil lplay 42 day games compared to only 22 last year. Thirty-nine night games, as opposed to 60 in 1968, are on the 1969 slate.

One of the major changes include switching Saturday twi-night games to 1:30 afternoon starts.

The A's will open their home season April 8 against the Chicago White Sox.

Oakland in its inaugural season after transferring from Kansas City drew 838,501 fans.

WELL, GANG, HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE

Clyde Lee Hurting, So Are The Warriors

When the Warriors left on a five-game road trip last week they were leading the Western Division of the National Basketball Association. They returned home Monday night just a step out of the cellar.

It was a disastrous road trip beginning with the first game in Baltimore where they dropped a 112-110 overtime decision to the Bullets after dissipating a 19-point fourth quarter lead.

The next three defeats were equally frustrating. The Warriors dropped them in the last minute of each game.

If Clyde Lee's ailing arch had not kept the 6-9 forward on the bench, all of the initial four road losses might have been salvaged. A tendon in the arch of Lee's left foot is the source of his trouble.

LEE MOVED in Rick Barry's old forward position when Barry jumped to the Oakland Oaks in the American Basketball Association a year ago. Barry sat out his option with the Warriors. That course of action, or mare accurately inaction, prompted a whopping damage suit again Barry and the Oaks by Franklin Mieuli, owner of the Warriors, who said Barry should have played out his option. The suit still is in the courts.

If Nate Thurmond hadn't damaged a knee serevely last year, the Warriors might have made it to the NBA finals because Lee's performances at forward were superb. He was a perfect partner for Rudy LaRusso, a 10-year NBA veteran.

JUMPING JOE ELLIS, the former University of San Francisco star, has been filling in at forward. But Ellis naturally can't fill in at two positions simultaneously. He had been spelling LaRusso who, at 31, needs periodic rests from the racehorse pace the pros maintain for the full 48 minutes of their basketball games.

At the outset of the 1968-69 NBA season, George Lee, new coach of the Warriors, predicted a brilliant year for the team. His prediction was predicated on Thurmond's staying healthy. Nobody thought of Clyde Lee breaking down.

WHEN THEY had Barry, the Warriors also had depth. Loss of Barry to the Oaks and other players to NBA expansion teams depleted the depth of the Warriors. An injury to their superstar, Thurmond, would be fatal to team hopes.

But an injury to a supporting star now is almost as deadly. At least, the results of the first road trip without Lee would seem to indicate that.

HOWEVER, AN injury at this early stage of the basketball season leaves plenty of time for recuperation. It's not the same as an injury in the home stretch of a nip-and-tuck race.

The Warriors are in trouble with less than a dozen of the 82 games played in the 1968-69 schedule but it is nothing more than temporary trouble this early in the campaign.

Marin Hockey Players Win

Pat McPartlan pulled off a hat trick of three goals and four teammates scored a pair of goals as the Marin Junior Peewee Hockey team bombed Belmont of Burlingame, 12-0, at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera Sunday.

McPartlan joined teammate David Bonbright on the hat trick list. Bonbright pulled it off against San Francisco a week earlier.

North Carolina End Shows He's Ready

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Ron Lowry, a former trackman from Chesapeake, Va., showed early that he was in shape for the football season at North Carolina.

The defensive end ran the fastest mile the first day of fall practice. He was timed in 5:14.

Novato Girls Win Swim Meet

Novato High School's girl swimmers won the final event of the meet, the 200-yard freestyle relay to nip Drake High School of San Anselmo, 56-55, in Marin County Athletic League girls swimming action last week.

In other meets, Redwood of Larkspur topped Tamalpais of Mill Valley, 71-40, and San Rafael High School swamped Marin Catholic of Kentfield, 81-28.

In girl's volleyball action, Redwood downed Tamalpais and Drake defeated San Marin.

In tennis action, Tamalpais nicked Novato, 3-2 and Drake stopped Marin Catholic, 3-2.

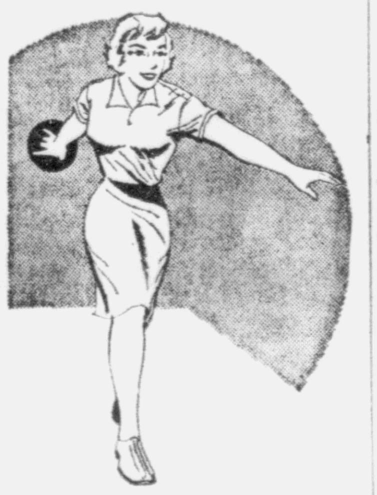
BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Those who keep the throwing arm close to the body at all times are doing much to improve and maintain accuracy. Such a consistent arm-pattern will result in the ball being thrown the same way every time. If the arm moves out from the body, the bowler is most likely to lose balance.

Stats Show Wild Season For The Tars

One look at the College of Marin Tars' football statistics, and you get an idea of the kind of wild and woolly season it's been for the men from Kentfield.

Nothing comes out quite right. The Tars have been out-first downed, 58-54, but have outgained their opponents in rushing, passing and total yardage. The mistakes that have plagued the Tars in a 5-2 won-lost season are heer too — 18 interceptions, 12 fumbles and a whopping 584 yards in penalties.

Halfback Tim Garvin is the top rusher and scorer on the squad with 489 yards in 75 carries and 7 touchdowns.

Los Angeles Boxer Is New State Champ

SPTS—230-2 Los Angeles Boxer

Hawkins belted Crawford through the ropes with 1:18 elapsed in the eighth round of their scheduled 12-rounder, the last of four bouts at the Forum. Referee George Latka stopped the contest when Crawford was unable to get back on his feet.

Napoles, flailing away at Rea almost at will, dropped the Irishman for the mandatory nine count in the first round and bloodied his nose in the third. The fight was stopped in the fifth when Rea's nose continued to bleed.

The crowd of 10,857 also saw Richie Sue of Portland, Ore., open the card by kayoing Gil Noriega of Mexico City in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

In the fourth bout, Arturo Lomeli of Guadalajara, Mexico, apparently earned himself a shot at world lightweight champion Carlos Cruz with a unanimous decision over Ruben Navarro of Los Angeles.

Lomeli had Navarro down three times for the mandatory nine count, but could not finish him off.

The judges, Larry Rozadilla and John Thomas, had it 7-5 and 7-6 respectively, while referee Joey Olmos scored it 9-5 for Lomeli.

Four Marin Men Racing In Mexico

Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax are driving a Ford Cortina in the Mexican 1,000, an off-road race event which started today at 6 a.m.

The Marin County pair will be competing in a two-wheel drive production class. Two other Marin County men, Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington, are also in the race, in a division for dune buggies.

About $2,000 has gone into the building of their car, No. 71, green with gold trim. They will not be using a follow vehicle, as do some of the other entrants. Instead, the car will be packed with spare parts, torches, spare tires and tools.

ROUGH TERRAIN

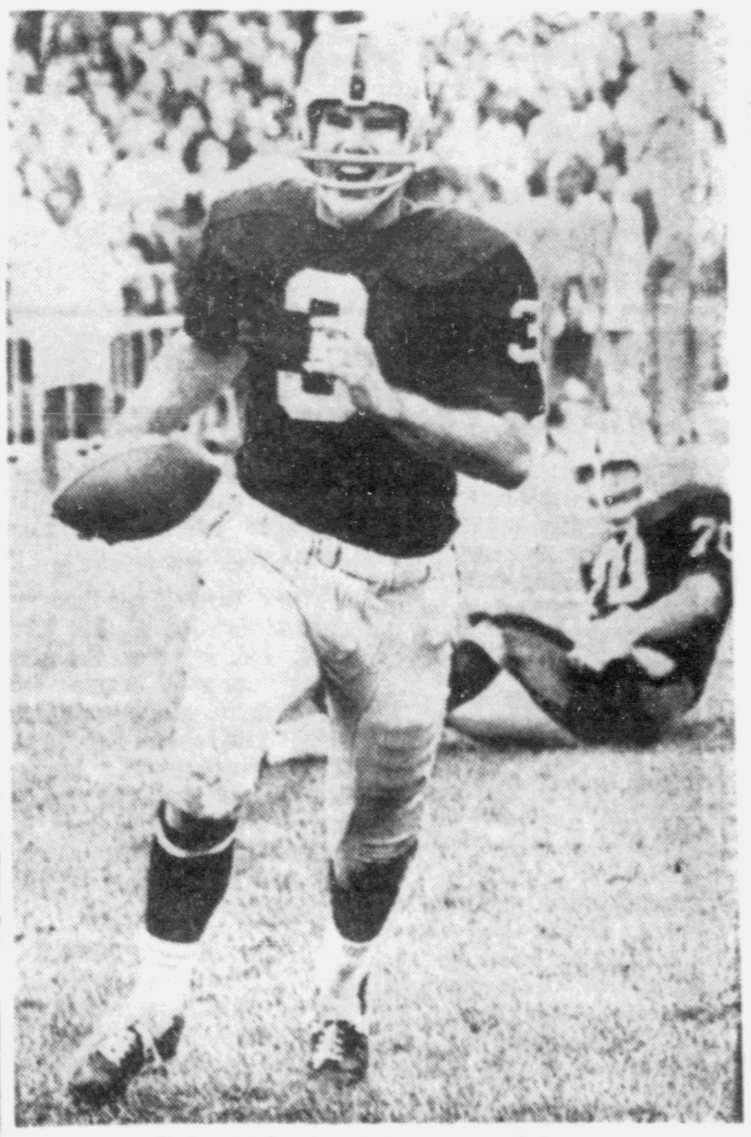
The car started out as a 1964 Cortina, but the interior has been changed around to provide more storage, and an extra gas tank has been added in the trunk. It has been raised from the ground to provide more clearance over the rough terrain which the race covers, approximately 1,000 miles from Ensenada to La Paz.

The bearded Winkelmann was born and reared in London and came to the United States in 1950. He has just recently moved his business from Mill Valley to Sausalito.

Ex-Red Sox Stephens Dies Of Heart Attack

LONG BEACH (AP) — Vern Stephens, the slugging Boston Red Sox shortstop who led the American League in runs batted in with 159 in 1949 and 144 in 1950, is head at the age of 48.

The 15-year major league veteran who also played with three other clubs and was in six All-Star Games, died of a heart attack last night.



HE WHO LAUGHS LAST . . .

Yes, he who laughs last laughs the longest, as the old saying goes, and Oakland Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica was hysterical with joy on this second quarter American Football League play against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday at Oakland Coliseum. Lamonica completely fooled the Chiefs and scored untouched on a four-yard quarterback draw play. Oakland won a laughter, 38-21.

Rohnert Park Golf Links Will Be Completed Soon

Rohnert Park's Municipal Golf Course will be a full-fledged golf course in another two months when work on the back nine holes is completed.

According to Rohnert Park Superintendent of Public Works Bill Wiggins and Golf Course Superintendent Sam Singh, the holes have been regraded, leveled and replanted and a completely new irrigation system has been installed. They have been completed recently and only missing ingredient is grass that's growing right now.

Drapery Cleaning Specialist Switches To A Local Franchise

Drapery cleaning specialist Frank H. Michelfelder of San Rafael has given up his post as national sales manager for the rapidly expanding Coit Drapery Cleaners to settle down with a local franchise for the same company.

Michelfelder has supervised Coit branches and franchises for eight years and since the firm has been extending its coverage into new areas his job has been taking him farther afield than ever.

Through Marin realty brokers Herman Deitch and Jane Fairchild he has leased an entire building of over 2,500 square feet at 55 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Here equipment is being installed for a full drapery cleaning plant. In the past a Coit pick-up and delivery station has been maintained at 1852 Fourth Street, San Rafael. This will be discontinued.

The organization is headquartered in Burlingame.

Michelfelder was the subject of a feature article in the I-J's Marin Magazine in March, 1965.

PayLess Reports Record Earnings

OAKLAND (BW) — Skaggs PayLess Drug Stores with an outlet in Marin County, achieved record operating results for the nine months ended Sept. 30, with net sales up 26 per cent and earnings per share up 42 per cent.

Net sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $56,459,636, compared with $44,954,407 in 1967.

Net income was $1,336,696, equal to 64 cents a share on the 2,073,750 shares of common stock outstanding. In the previous nine-month period PayLess had a net income of $916,397, or 45 cents a share when there were 2,038,333 shares outstanding.

Net Earnings Climb 300 Pct.

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Trans-Coast Investment Co., a $92 million savings and loan holding company, has reported that consolidated net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 had increased more than 300 per cent when compared with the similar period in 1967.

Thomas W. Clarke, president, said that net earnings for the first three quarters of 1968 amounted to $408,646, or 19 cents per share, compared with $130,020, or 6 cents per share for the same period in 1967.

For the third quarter of 1968 the company earned $159,318, or 8 cents per share, compared with $69,587, or 3 cents per share in 1967.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switching To Mutual Funds Costly Move

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of General Electric, Radio Corp., Skaggs Drug Centers, Safeway Stores, Marathon Oil and Eastman Kodak which I have been advised to transfer to a mutual fund. What do you advise? — E. K.

A. Selling your holdings and buying a mutual fund could prove costly in commissions, sales fees and capital gains taxes. You have six excellent issues, all of which are well worth retaining.

A good increase in 1968 sales and earnings is predicted for Eastman Kodak, with the greatest gains coming from sales of "Instamatic" cameras, professional photography equipment, man-made fibers and plastics.

General Electric, despite a setback in 1968 earnings, should work higher over the next several years.

Marathon's outlook has been strengthened by an improved crude position, resulting from Alaskan production.

Radio Corp. has predicted another record year, with strength noted in color TV, computers (overseas), broadcasting and computer rental.

A high level of volume for Safeway Stores coupled with some widening of profit margins should lift 1968 results close to record 1966 earnings.

Skaggs Drug Centers, not to be confused with California-based Skaggs Pay Less Drugs — another attractive issue — operates a chair of retail drugstores in the Midwest. Earnings were up 55 per cent in the first 9 months, due in part to inventory and expense control programs.

Changes in your portfolio at this time appear unwarranted.

Q. I am a widow with $20,000 in savings, living on Social Security, a small pension and dividends. Would you suggest any changes in these holdings for extra income: Atlas Corp., Bulova Watch, Charter New York Corp., Cities Service, Crown Zellerbach, General Motors, Gulf & Western dustries. Home Insurance and Midland Ross? — M. C.

A. Sell Atlas Corp., which pays no dividend, and Bulova Watch, which has moved up sharply, thereby discounting near-term earnings prospects.

Interpace Dividend

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (BW) — The board of directors of Interpace Corp. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock, payable Dec. 26 to share owners of record Dec. 6, and a regular dividend of $1.25 per share on the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, payable Jan. 1 to share owners of record Dec. 6.

Air West Over 1 Million Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Air West has carried its first million passengers since it began merged operations July 1.

The new regional airline said this week that its October passenger boardings totaled 250,856, the third month since July that they have exceeded the quarter-million count.

This raised the post-merger count to 1,076,000 passengers, up 108,560 passengers from the pro forma total a year ago.

MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Jean-Claude Killy talks shop...
Chevrolet Sports Shop

(Freely translated from the French) . . . "I am a man who drives for sport . . . for fun, you know? This is why I am now telling you all about the brave new Chevrolet and its Sports Shop.

"Only in the Chevrolet Sports Shop do you find cars like the Camaro Z/28. Ah, yes, the Z/28. A Camaro with 302 V8, Holley 4-barrel carburetor, more muscular suspension and Hurst shifter. Is also one of two American cars which offer 4-wheel disc brakes. The other is also in the Chevrolet Sports Shop . . . Corvette, of course.

"Only the Chevrolet Sports Shop has sporting cars from two-seater all the way to five-seater. Beside the Z/28 and Corvette, there is Camaro SS, Chevelle SS 396, Nova SS and the big Impala SS 427.

"Will you come and see these cars very soon at your Chevrolet dealer?

"But of course."

Putting you first, keeps us first.

LEGAL MEETING NECESSARY

Marin City Acts To Control Plans

A plan to put development of Marin City under local control was approved last night by directors of the Marin City Community Services District, Marin City Council, and Development Corp of Marin City.

The three groups met jointly at an unannounced meeting. Attorney Hugh Lawrence told the services district board it would have to hold another meeting to ratify the proposal, its action last night being illegal under the Ralph M. Brown Act because of lack of 24 hours' public notice. Directors indicated they will meet again Thursday or Friday to conform to the legal requirement.

The other two groups are not public bodies under the Brown Act.

The meeting brought to light the existence of the development corporation, which was incorporated in September but not publicly announced.

The proposal is that the Marin City Council be officially named the planning body for future Marin City plans and development, with the development corporation officially named the developing group.

In effect, the corporation would succeed California Development Corp., which has held options on redevelopment land in Marin City for several years.

All programs would be reviewed and approved by the council, the corporation and the community services district, who are to coordinate actions with other community organizations.

The proposal, by Ulysses J. Montgomery, urban planning consultant of San Francisco, will be placed also before the Marin County Board of Supervisors and the Marin County Redevelopment Agency. It would require their approval to be put into effect.

Montgomery said the new corporation should get an option on seven acres now committed to the California Development Corp. and a commercial center on approximately one acre should be started immediately.

A federal small business loan or private financing would be sought. The corporation was set up specifically to seek such financing, Lawrence said.

The council, services district and corporation must present a united front to the outside to regain control of the community, Montgomery declared.

"You're saying to outside groups the decision will be made in Marin City," he told the meeting.

Montgomery's consulting firm has a tentative agreement with the development corporation for planning a commercial center in Marin City.

Daniel N. Hayden, a director of the corporation, said it has no capital yet. He said the articles of incorporation call for 75 per cent of shares to be sold to residents of Marin City, with limits on shares held to prevent control of the corporation by a few individuals. Low-cost shares will be offered "when the time is right," Hayden said.

Saigon Stay-Aways Cause Delay In Tomorrow's Peace Discussion

PARIS (AP) — The first scheduled peace talks since the bombing halt in Vietnam, due tomorrow, were postponed today beacuse of the absence of a delegation from the Saigon government.

A U.S. delegation spokesman, William J. Jordan, in announcing that the session "will not be held," added that the United States hopes the South Vietnamese government will send a negotiating team "in the near future."

Also, he said, certain procedural matters involving the proposed expanded phase of the Paris parley have not yet been agreed on, and U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys have been meeting on these "procedural questions."

The postponement followed the refusal of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to join the proposed four-party sessions which would also include the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"We will not talk with the NLF in Paris and no one can force us to do such a thing," Thieu said in Saigon.

The Saigon boycott embarrassed the U.S. delegation, headed by Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, in view of President Johnson's Oct. 31 announcement of a bombing halt aimed at propelling the Paris talks into a new, more productive phase.

There was no immediate indication just when an expanded conference might get under way.

The postponement announcement put on the record for the first time what diplomatic sources had been reporting privately — that U.S. and North Vietnamese envoys had been holding unannounced meetings.

Secret talks were under way between U.S. diplomats and North Vietnamese in Paris, and between the U.S. government and Saigon as the Americans sought to avoid launching the new phase of the Paris meetings with a prestige boost for the Viet Cong.

Thieu's government organized a demonstration in Saigon today in support of its stand, while a militant Catholic faction held another. But the two rallies brought out a total of only 5,000 people, many of them were generally apathetic, and there was no anti-American violence.

Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh and the other five members of the NLF team put up at a plush residence on the opposite side of Paris from the North Vietnamese delegation's quarters. The gold-starred red and blue Viet Cong flag was hoisted over the building.

Despite the uncertainty of the outlook for the Paris talks, the lull in major ground fighting continued across South Vietnam. However, military sources in Saigon reported the halt in U.S. bombing of North Vietnam had been followed by an expected increase of American air attacks on North Vietnam troops and supplies moving down the Ho Chi Minh Trail through Laos to South Vietnam.

The sources in Saigon said an estimated 300 Air Force and Navy bombers are attacking the traffic through the Laotian jungles each day.

Johnson Ballots In Hometown

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson cast his vote for a new president today two hours after the polls opened in his own hometown.

There wasn't much doubt that he balloted for Hubert H. Humphrey, although Johnson wasn't answering any questions about the personal electoral process.

This was one of the few national elections since 1937 when Johnson himself wasn't running for Congress, the Senate, the vice presidency or the White House.

Truman Walks To Cast Ballot

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) — Former President Harry S Truman walked two blocks from his home to cast his ballot in Memorial Building where he has voted for many years.

On the walk he chatted with newsmen and said this was "good Democrat weather" and that it would have been a better Democratic day if it had been raining. The sky was overcast and temperatures were near 40.

Asked if he had talked with President Johnson or Hubert Humphrey, Truman replied:

"If they have not done enough to win the election now, it is too late for me to do anything for them today."

Voters Crowding Polls To Settle Cliff-Hanger

California Key Area Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans poured from their homes in massive numbers today to settle the cliff-hanging race for the presidency between Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey—or to throw the battle into the House.

Election oratory a fading echo, they rose from their beds early and stood in line for blocks in towns and cities across the land, undeterred in some areas by rain-swollen clouds overhead.

Morning voting was heavy in California's metropolitan centers today, except in populous Los Angeles County where the state's elections often are decided.

BEHIND 1964

Fair weather encouraged a good early turnout in most regions, but the vote in Los Angeles County, with 36 per cent of the state's registered voters, was only 15.3 per cent during the first three hours compared to 27 per cent in the record year 1964.

San Francisco reported a 31 per cent turnout well before noon, 5 per cent more than the record 1964 tally at that time.

The turnout appeared heavy —more than 20 per cent—in Orange and San Diego counties, considered Nixon strongholds.

From North Carolina came reports of the "heaviest turnout in memory." From Columbus, Ga.: "There are crowds like we have never seen."

In Mobile County, Ala., early voting appeared the heaviest in history. In the Kansas City area it was considerably heavier than usual. In Detroit, long line-ups were the rule, although the actual vote was somewhat below 1964.

Eighty people were in line when the polls opened at 6:30 a.m. in a Columbus, Ohio, suburb. Cars were backed up for two miles at a Charlotte, N.C., precinct.

These early-bird voters were casting their ballots in climax to one of the most topsy-turvy, dramatic presidential election campaigns in history.

POLLSTERS WARY

The pollsters had retreated from late summer and early autumn forecasts of a smashing victory for Nixon, the Republican candidate, to a virtual refusal to choose between him and Democrat Humphrey.

George C. Wallace's third-party drive appeared to be slipping a gear or two toward the wire, but it carried still the dynamite of upset as well as the potential of denying either a majority of the lectoral votes—the 270 needed to win.

In that event, the House, for the third time in history, would pick the president.

The Justice Department said there were no reports by midday of illegal activity at the polls. "It's quieter today than in

LAST SHOTS MARK TWIN TELETHONS

Humphrey Home To Vote, Wait

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The last parade was over, the last television broadcast had ended, the last hands had been shaken. And Hubert H. Humphrey went home to Waverly, Minn., today to vote — then wait to learn how the rest of America had voted.

Abandoning the hectic pace of his jet-age presidential campaign, he sought the quiet of a rustic, white-frame town hall at nearby Marysville, Minn., to pencil his ballot among the friends and neighbors who still call him Hubert.

The vice president ended his campaign last night was a 4-hour appearance on live, nationwide television. (See other campaign stories, page 2.)

The candidate ended the telethon with as much bounce and self-confidence as when he began.

Humphrey, cheered by huge turnouts during a downtown Los Angeles motorcade and a public opinion poll that showed him ahead, wound up the campaign by accusing Richard M. Nixon of making a "totally irrespondible charge" and trying to "frighten the Amrrican people." (See Nixon story elsewhere on page 1.)

Humphrey and his running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine—surrounded by show business stars in a casual format—made much of the fact that Nixon was appearing without his running mate, Spiro T. Agnew.

"Maybe Mr. Nixon feels he doesn't have a vice presidential candidate," Muskie quipped.

Although Nixon was in a studio several miles away, Humphrey addressed his comments

Nixon Draws Fire On Viet Buildup

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard M. Nixon triggered an unusual election eve campaign joust with Hubert H. Humphrey by reporting Hanoi may be taking advantage of the Veitnam bombing halt.

Appearing on a $400,000 network telethon last night, the Republican presidential candidate said:

"I read a very disturbing report this afternoon in which an Air Force general pointed out that the North Vietnamese are moving thousands of tons of supplies down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and that our bombers are not able to stop it."

Humphrey was simultaneously conducting a telethon of his own here—and the Democratic presidential candidate quickly answered a question about Nixon's remarks.

Humphrey accused Nixon of trying to "frighten the American people" and said "it is a totally irresponsible charge."

The vice president said he checked with U.S. government officials who said the Nixon statement was not true.

"It's a totally unsubstantiated charge," he went on. "Now. Mr. Nixon, I think you know very well that the President's orders to stop the bombing of the North did not include the Ho Chi Minh Trail. The Ho Chi Minh is subject to intensive American air power as it has been in the past and is even more so now, and that all the lines of communication south of the demilitarized zone are all subject to intensive air interception or interdiction."

"If they don't know what's going on," Nixon replied. "How can they deal with it? At least I

Marin's Turnout Is Heavy

A heavy turnout of voters throughout Marin was reported by precinct workers today, despite overcast skies and the threat of rain, as balloting opened in today's general election.

Polls close at 8 p.m.

County elections officials predict 90 per cent of Marin's 96,695 registered voters will ballot. About half of Marin voters generally get to the polls after the workday.

LENGTHY BALLOT

At stake are races for president, vice president, U.S. Senate, House of Representatives, California Assembly, Marin County Board of Supervisors, the boards of directors of the Marin Hospital, Bolinas Harbor and Strawberry Recreation districts, 10 state propositions and three local measures — a county gun registration ordinance, a $10.9 million bond measure in the Tamalpais High School District and a $3 million street bond measure in the City of Novato.

Counting of some 5,000 absentee ballots will begin at 8 p.m., with results expected to be reported by 8:30 p.m. Reporting of returns from the 221 precincts should begin by 9:30 p.m., elections officials said.

COMPUTER COUNT

Election coverage will begin at 9 p.m. on radio station KTIM-FM, 100.9 megacycles.

Balloting reportedly went smoothly throughout Marin, although several voters told the Independent-Journal they were confused by a blank space on the presidential section of their ballots.

The blank had been reserved for the Peace and Freedom Party's nominee for president, Eldridge Cleaver, but he did not qualify, because he is three years too young to be president.

There also were complaints that some voting booths had curtains on only three sides. Elections officials said the state election code has no provision at all for curtains on booths.

Some voters were confused to find holes already punched in

GENETIC VIOLENCE?

Judge Goldstein Sets Chromosome Testing

Controversial chromosome tests for genetic defects which allegedly make a man a born criminal have been ordered by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein of Marin Municipal Court for two men convicted of misdemeanor crimes.

One of the subjects to be tested is 22-year-old William Duncan Lindley of San Rafael, described by the staff of a state hospital as a "potential murderer."

The other is Harold J. Von Feldt, 34, of San Rafael, who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of battery for beating up a San Rafael man who was recovering from chest surgery.

The tests are to determine if either man has an extra Y chromosome, said by some researchers to make a man a "born killer."

In Australia recently, a 21-year-old laborer was found innocent of murder by reason of insanity after doctors reported that he had an extra Y chromosome.

Judge Goldstein said today that, if the cost of the genetic testing is not too great, he will order such tests in the future "for people with a history of violence or charged with unusually violent crimes."

The magistrate said he would discover the cost of the testing today and vacate his orders for chromosome tests if the cost is prohibitive.

The results of such tests could serve as a guide for judges who must impose sentence and order treatment for violent criminals, Goldstein said.

Black Students List Demands, Plan Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The Black Student Union has presented San Francisco State College officials with 10 demands, asking the college to spend more money on minority group programs.

A few minutes after the BSU disclosed the demands yesterday in a news conference closed to all whites except newsmen, the college president held his own news conference and said the college is $750,000 over its budget.

More than 8,000 must be turned away for the spring term, said Dr. Robert R. Smith, and 60 instructors may have to be released.

The BSU, and two Negro administrators called for a "Black-Brown student strike" tomorrow of Negroes, Mexican-Americans and Oriental students to protest the suspension of Black Panther George Murray as a student and part-time English teacher.

He was suspended on an order by Glenn S. Dumke, chancellor of the state college system, for inflammatory remarks, including a suggestion that students bring guns to school.

"This college is facing a crisis much worse than a student strike," said Smith.

"We are finding more and more groups demanding increased services, but there is little hope of coping with them with our present budget restrictions.

"They have the notion it can be done out of my hip pocket, and it can't."

Knife-Carrying Students Imprison College Officials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Officials of San Fernando Valley State College were held prisoner by knife-carrying students for up to four hours yesterday.

No serious injuries or vandalism was reported.

Alleging unfair treatment of Negro athletes, about 200 students seized the top floor of the administration building and held 34 persons in the president's conference room.

The fifth floor was sealed off by members of the Black Student Union. Downstairs, on the first floor, leaders of the Negro group met with acting president Paul Blomgren and other administraters.

A leaflet distributed by the Black Student Union called for an investigation into "the racist attitude" of a coach who allegedly struck a Negro student, for giving more power to students and refusing a cutback of funds from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

Athletic director Glenn Arnott was among those held prisoner. The door to the room was guarded by students armed with fire extinguishers. Table knives, and at least one butcher knife, were seen in student hands.

"There were implied threats of violence," said Donald W. Krimel, executive assistant to the president.

Italian Downpours Cease; New Flooding Still Feared

VERCELLI, Italy (AP) — The skies cleared over northern Italy today after 84 hours of rain, and waters began receding in a triangle of death and ruin ies emptied floodwaters into the Po, Italy's greatest river, officials went on the alert for new dangers in the river's basin. along the south slopes of the Alps.

Floods and landslides took at least 102 lives there and other persons were missing. It was feared the toll might surpass the 113 deaths of the disastrous Florence-Venice floods in November 1966.

But as the northern tributar- Low-lying areas were ordered evacuated as a precautionary measure.

Emergency crews worked to reopen roads in the flood zone. Some villages still were isolated. The Milan-Turin main railway line was restored and so was the international rail line through the Simplon Pass between Italy and Switzerland.

Army Mutiny Suspects Loose

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Three prisoners accused of mutiny have walked away from the Presidio Stockade.

The Army said yesterday that the trio apparently mingled with a work detail moving furniture from inside the stockade fence to a building just outside and then drifted off. The escape occurred last Saturday.

The prisoners were among 27 recently charged with mutiny after a sit-down strike protesting the fatal shooting last month of a fellow prisoner during an escape attempt.

They were identified as Richard L. Gentile, 19, whose parents live in Japan, Buddy J. Shaw, 18, Hayward, and Harold J. Swanson, 19, San Leandro.

A pre-trial investigation hearing into the mutiny cases was scheduled to begin today.

Pelican Editor Quits–Censorship

BERKELEY (AP)—The senior editor of The Pelican, University of California campus humor magazine, has resigned, charging censorship by the printer.

Larry Thomasson complained in his letter of resignation yesterday that the printing firm of Lederer, Street & Zeus had produced the issue out today with three, four and 12-letter words represented by initials and dashes.

Walter Kolasa Sr., head of the printing firm, said the company could be held liable if the issue were found to be osscene.

Separate Dope Trials Refused

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court has ruled that three men, under indictment for alleged sale of methamphetamine (speed) and conspiracy to sell the dengerous drug, must be tried together and in Marin.

Motions by James Dewey Bell, Robert Drolla and Robert Nelson, all of San Rafael, for a change of venue and separate trials was denied.

Judge Harold J. Haley yesterday ordered them to appear in Superior Court next Tuesday so that their jury trial can be scheduled for the next day.

Hijacker Took Money, Cubans Gave It Back

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Airline passengers back from Cuba today said the man who hijacked their plane seized their money as "contraband of war." They got it back from Cuban officials when the plane landed at Jose Marti airport outside Havana.

Morris Bedlin, a Miami Beach, Fla., taxi driver, said the Negro hijacker announced "You've got a new captain" when he took over the Boeing 727 jet with 57 other passengers and seven crew members aboard.

Bedlin said the hijacker announced over the public address system that the jet seizure was part of a black nationalist movement.

"He said: 'we're going to take over a new ship every day for 100 days,'" Bedlin told newsmen.

M. R. Garrison, a Vernon, Tex., oilman now living in Rome, Italy, said the hijacker said the black nationalists were taking the action for "a new Africa."

"He said they would take one a day for 100 days and that this was the first one. He was a kook!" Garrison said.

Bedlin said the man asserted black nationalists intend to hijack commercial lines 'to show the white people that we're keeping them down, or something like that."

Pilot Antone Hunter said the hijacker—waving a revolver with a six-inch barrel—ordered stewardess Sandy O'Brien to collect money from the passengers.

"He made her count the money on the floor," after Miss O'Brien returned to the cockpit, the captain said. It totaled $405.

A National Air Lines spokesman said the passenger listed on the manifest as "Mr. H. Jackson" of Baton Rouge, La., was not on the list of returning passengers. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents questioned the crew and passengers, but declined to discuss Jackson or any other aspect of the case.

Hunter said the hijacker held a gun at Miss O'Brien's head and forced her to unlock the cockpit door about 10 minutes out of New Orleans on National Flight 186 from Houston to Miami via New Orleans.

Jordan Streets Patrolled After 16 Die In Fighting

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Armored cars and steel-helmeted troops today patrolled the streets of the Jordanian capital, still gripped by tension following widespread street fighting yesterday in which 16 persons were reported killed and 40 wounded.

King Hussein clamped a heavy guard on his restive, divided country in an attempt to prevent further clashes between troops loyal to him and the palestine guerrilla groups who have made his kingdom a base for terrorist operations against Israel.

All demonstrations were banned until further notice. An 18-hour curfew, between 4 p.m. and 10 a.m., was imposed.

The government announced the arrest of an undisclosed number of guerrilla leaders charged with responsibility for Monday's violence, the bloodiest confrontation so far between the army and the guerrilla groups demanding a free hand again Israel.

Pleads Guilty In Assault Case

James Melvin White, 18, of Marin City, pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Superior Court to felony charges of assault with a deadly weapon and burglary. His case was continued until Dec. 2 for sentencing.

His pleas acknowledged that he was the youth who shot Diller Ryan, 18, of Ross, during a robbery attempt Sept. 2 in Marin City, and who burgled a Marinwood home a week later.

The district attorney dismissed additional charges that White tried to rob Ryan and his companion Sept. 2 in Marin City.

On arriving in Montgomery yesterday after a rally in Atlanta, the last of the campaign, Wallace said his run for the presidency had been "enjoyable."

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Republican vice-presidential candidate Spiro T. Agnew voted early today and said he was "looking forward to a victory but we'll be prepared to lose in case it doesn't come."

SENATE

Both predicted victory. Cranston was unwilling to set a definite margin but said his victory would be "smashing" and Rafferty said he hoped for a 250,000-vote win.

Cranston, the former state controller, pointed to public opinion polls which show him comfortably in front and talked about a million-vote victory.

Rafferty, state superintendent of public instruction, predicted he would win easily enough to destroy the credibility of the polls.

"The blow will be a decisive one," Rafferty said. "I don't think the polls will be able to survive the election."

PACOIMA (AP) — A policeman beat the clock today, frantically removing a rock-and-concrete barricade from railroad tracks just moments before a freight train roared by.

Officers Larry Bain and Joseph Baty said they spotted a car parked near a railroad siding and, as they approached it, the driver fled.

While Baty pursued the man, Bain noticed the barricade and removed it. As he finished, the train passed by at an estimated 45 miles an hour. Police said there were enough rocks and concrete to derail it.

Booked on suspicion of intent to derail a train was Larry Stratis, 23, of San Fernando.

Hippie Accused Of Explosives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A young hippie, wearing spurs and carrying a curved sword, was arrested yesterday by state and local agents who said he was selling high explosives on a corner at $500 a block.

The suspect was identified as Charles Michael Kirby, 18. Officers said he was carrying a satchel containing 17 blocks of military C-2 explosive — each block equal to six and a half pounds of TNT.

Agents said Kirby also had "an old-fashioned, round, anarchist - type bomb" wrapped in tinfoil, with a fuse and containing more C-2.

The explosive, now obsolete, was used during World War II for destroying bridges and concrete pillboxes. However, ordnance specialists said Kirby's C-2 was "still alive."

Two Arrested As CHP Finds Drugs In Car

The California Highway Patrol said they stopped a car bearing two different license plates on Highway 101 today and found dangerous drugs and a loaded .32 caliber revolver in the vehicle.

Arrested were the driver, Algis Michael Budry, 39, who identified himself as a writer and seaman but refused to give an address, and Lewis Powell, 35, of 206½ Webster Street, Petaluma, an unemployed laborer.

Officer Merlyn L. Baarts said Budry struck his partner, Officer David R. Welty, in the face while being questioned. Budry then ran, Baarts said, but was caught and subdued by the two officers after a struggle on the ground.

The officers, alerted by radio to watch for the car with two plates, stopped it about 1:45 a.m. on St. Vincent's Hill near Novato as it traveled northbound.

Found in the car was the revolver a syringe and possible methedrine and other dangerous drugs, officers said.

Budry and Powell were booked at Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs, carrying a concealed weapon, possession of narcotics paraphenalia and possession of a loaded weapon in a motor vehicle. Budry also was booked on suspicion of felony assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.

No bail was set and the two were to appear in Marin Municipal Court later today.

Propelled Cable Cars Set For Fair

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Self-propelled versions of San Francisco cable cars have been selected as principal means of transportation at the world fair scheduled to open in Osaka, Japan in 1970.

The announcement was made yesterday as a huge scale model of Expo 70 was unveiled at the Japanese Cultural and Trade Center here.

Osaka and San Francisco are sister cities.

The cars will have self-contained motors in contrast to the underground moving cable propelling the San Francisco tourist attractions.

Council Deadlocks, Planners Get Enchanted Knolls Issue

By ANNE BARDWELL

After nearly three hours of debate and several fruitless attempts to settle the question, the Mill Valley City Council last night once again referred the issue of density for the Enchanted Knolls Ridge back to the city's planning commission.

The council's move came after three attempts to resolve a request for a density increase from five to eight units per acre for 76 acres of undeveloped ridgelands failed to garner more than two supporting votes.

The final motion by councilman Rodric L. Robinson, which passed by a 4-1 vote, asked the planning commission to consider a series of three densities for various sections of the property while maintaining an overall density of 6.5 units per acre. It also specified that the council "would look unfavorably" on any request to place townhouses or apartments on the crest of the ridge.

The densities specified were 4.5 units per acre for 19 acres on the west side of the ridge, 6.5 units per acre for 52 acres on the east side and 17 units per acre for five acres adjacent to the Shelter Bay apartments along Highway 101.

The council, rather reluctantly, also agreed to sit down with the planning commission and developers in a workshop session to study the project's economic feasibility. A workshop session was tentatively scheduled for 9 a.m. Nov. 16 in City Hall.

Councilman Jerome C. Hauke was the dissenter, saying: "Any motion that takes three minutes to read, I'll vote no on."

Patiently sitting through the lengthy discussion were more than 90 Enchanted Knolls residents, nearly all of whom were opposed to the density increase.

Developers Eugene Harder and Warner R. Odenthal told the council that the density increase is necessary to make a "quality development" on the large parcel economically feasible.

"We've owned this property for 10 years and have either studied and scrapped or presented numerous development plans which either weren't feasible or weren't acceptable to the city or to the residents of Enchanted Knolls," Odenthal said. "This time we have a good plan but we need the higher density to make it work."

The density increase request was first brought to the city in June and was denied by the planning commission in July. In August, the council expressed interest in Odenthal's plans and instructed the planning commission to restudy the request.

This the planners did and in September approved the higher density.

By September, the plan had also been approved by directors of the Enchanted Knolls Homeowners Association who had opposed all previous development plans.

However, grass roots opposition developed among Enchanted Knolls residents and by last night the ad hoc Committee for Proper Development of Enchanted Knolls had collected 181 signatures on petitions opposing any density increase.

(In a side repercussion, homeowners association directors who supported the Odenthal plan face a recall election Thursday night.)

Last night, attorney Richard Burns, acting as spokesman for Enchanted Knolls residents, told the council the density increase would be "grossly contrary" to the East Mill Valley master plan, would be "contrary to assurances" given residents in the past that the area would be maintained as a single family development and that the development would "scar the entrance to Mill Valley."

Planning Director Harvey E. Bragdon said that he believed the property could "physically support" the higher density and that the city's 1965 traffic study indicated it could also support the increased traffic, to which Burns had also objected.

Bragdon also noted that of the 274 residences in Enchanted Knolls, 94 are apartments and 180 single family homes.

He also assured the council that quality of development and location of types of housing could be adequately controlled by the city's ordinances.

Odenthal, in answer to residents' objections, said that only single family development is planned for the west side of the ridge adjacent to existing homes and that the apartments would be located on the east side of the ridge overlooking Highway 101.

Mixed development would bring the city and county an annual tax surplus of $107,000, he said, as compared to a $282,000 annual deficit if the area is developed with only single family homes.

After a half hour of debate and the failure of several motions, came Robinson's motion which was adopted.

In a related matter, the council refused to grant a quarry permit to the Mill Valley School District to remove 58,000 cubic yards of dirt from the ridge area to fill the middle school site on Project 17.

City Eng. Stanley M. Bala said granting of the permit would save the school district $20,000 in hauling costs but would be contrary to the city's existing policy of not allowing quarrying in an area without an approved master plan.

Bala said the soil would be taken from the ridge area in which a main road is planned.

Appointments Controversy Flares Anew

The long simmering disagreement on the Mill Valley City Council as to a mayor's prerogative to make appointments erupted again last night as Mayor Dean N. Meyer attempted to name a Mill Valley miniboard for the Marin County Human Rights Commission.

After Meyer had named his five candidates for the committee, Councilman Robert H. Andresen offered the name of another candidate, W. E. Williams. Andresen's suggestion was imfediately backed by Councilman George Wickham who has long fought to limit the mayor's power of appointment power.

SHARP DIALOGUE

Meyer declined the suggestion, saying he wanted to stick with his nominees: Roger J. Fleischmann, Charles P. Guichard, William J. Walker, Mrs. Richard Jessup and Dr. Larry Beck.

"You frequently ask us for names, yet it appears you take little weight of our suggestions," Andresen countered.

"To submit your suggestions at a council meeting after I have announced my selections is a difficult way to accomplish your aim," snapped Meyer, noting, "I have not received a name from any councilman for any of these positions prior to just now."

He suggested the councilmen submit suggestions by letter when vacancies are first announced.

Andresen then moved to table the appointments but was only supported by Wickham. However, after tempers cooled, a move by Councilman Rodric L. Robinson to delay a vote until Nov. 18 was approved.

BIDS ACCEPTED

The council also accepted a low bid of $8,780 by Stanton Bates of Fresno for construction of a retaining wall at 416 Ethel Avenue; a low bid of $6,769 by Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael for construction of a retaining wall at 397 Rose Avenue and a low bid of $5,098 by A. J. Bresnan Co. of San Rafael for drainage improvements on Miller Avenue adjacent to the Tamalpais High School football field.

All other items on the agenda were postponed to 8 p.m. Nov. 18 in city hall because of the late hour.

Corte Madera To Ask Road Widening Fund

A request for $48,000 in state urban thoroughfare funds will be made toward a $101,700 project to widen a section of Tamalpais Drive to four lanes, the Corte Madera Town Council agreed last night.

The widening and beautification project, expected to start next summer, would be from Highway 101 to Pixley Avenue. Besides widening, islands will be constructed where only painted islands now exist. Meadowsweet Drive would also be made one-way angling east off Tamalpais Drive.

Besides the $48,000, town gas tax funds totaling $51,360 and $2,340 from the town's general fund would cover the cost of the work.

In other business last night the council changed its employee medical and hospital coverage policy of paying all of the employee's insurance premium or half of the total for the employee and his dependents.

Instead, the town will pay up to $14 a month toward either of two insurance plans — The Kaiser Plan or the Blue Cross — that the employee chooses. The employee would then pay any additional cost.

The change in policy followed a decision by the town employees association to get health coverage under the state employees retirement system plan rather than from a local insurance program. It will cost the town about $800 more this year, Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher said, but the old rates had also been increased.

The Corte Madera Town Council Also:

CITATION — Formally accepted from the American Automobile Association a citation for an excellent traffic safety record the past two years.

MINIBOARD — Named itself as a "miniboard" committee to advise the Marin County Human Rights Commission on local matters.

SANITARY — Unanimously agreed to offer the Corte Madera Sanitary District the temporary free use of a maintenance employee to fill a district vacancy. The offer is based on the likelihood that the district and the town will merge in the near future and the work would be good on-the-job training for the employee.

HOUSING — Agreed that Floyd D. Allensby and C. D. Parmelee, owners of a two-acre parcel in an unincorporated area on Tamal Vista Boulevard, should present to the planning commission their plans for a 56-unit senior citizen resident housing development when the plans are completed. Zoning and plans would have to worked out through the county, and the owners have agreed to annex to Corte Madera when the parcel's use is established, Usher said.

ACCESS — Declined to review its access policy for the proposed connection road between Paradise and Tamalpais drives. James Smith had requested an exception to the policy — which states that all or none of the adjacent landowners can develop access — to permit him access from his S and L subdivision parcel.

GRADING — Accepted completion of a fill and grading contract with Blasi-Engelke Construction Co. of Healdsburg for first phase of the connection road between Tamalpais and Paradise drives. Contract for building the road (San Clement Drive) will be awarded next spring.

Bolinas Firemen Plan Yule Decor

Fire Chief Jose A. Silva appointed Capt. Edward Letter chairman of the Christmas decorations committee last night at a meeting of the Bolinas Volunteer Firemen, according to Mrs. Alice Silva.

The purchase of two walkie talkies for the department was dicussed but no action taken.

It was decided during winter months, fighting films will be shown at the training meetings.

The members presented a letter of recommendation to Sherman Smith, who recently resigned as secretary of the department but continues to act as assistant chief.

UNIFICATION ASKED

Corte Madera Attempts To Regain Fire Rating

The Corte Madera Town Council last night adopted several recommendations of its own fire committee to attempt to regain a fire rating it lost in September.

It also listened politely to the urging of a special committee of the Corte Madera Volunteer Fire Department that the town hire seven more paid firemen— the council committee recommended hiring only one— and that a student "sleeper" program at the two fire stations be dropped. But the council postponed decisions until 1969-70 budget time.

The lengthy discussion on fire matters also heard Mayor Edward W. Colthurst suggest that the benefits of unifying all fire districts "south from Kentfield" into one large Southern Marin fire district should be investigated.

Adopted on the proposal of the council's fire committee, which comprised Colthurst and Harold B. Wagstaff, were measures to hire one fireman in addition to the two firemen now employed, and to purchase $1,000 in equipment, including several fire hose nossles.

An ordinance also was introduced to make major commercial areas Fire Zone 1 with higher fire prevention requirements for new buildings than the present Fire Zone 2. In addition, the council plan would add three student sleepers to the three already on night duty.

Town Mgr. Ronald L. Usher, said the measures should bring the town back to the Class 6 rating it lost in September after a ruling by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau in San Francisco and estimated they will cost $5,925 from Jan. 1 to the end of this fiscal year.

He originally estimated a cost of $8,000, but the council agreed to not pay the sleepers $3 each for nights which they guarantee they will be on duty.

The decline by Corte Madera from Class 6 to 7 increased commericial fire insurance premiums by about 16 per cent, Usher has pointed out. San Anselmo has a Class 3 rating and Larkspur, Class 5.

The volunteer fire department's committee, headed by Jack W. Forster, department secretary, recommended last night that the town hire one additional fireman now and six more the next fiscal year. The committee estimated the additional expense at $70,000 annually.

Forster said the change would be a departure from the volunteer department concept, but that his committee and Fire Chief Frank L. Nelson felt the town's safety was the important concern.

Forster said the sleeper program was undependable because the students were "quite transient" and it took a minimum of two years for proper fireman training. The department has 19 volunteers.

Colthurst said he would get in touch with Southern Marin Fire districts to discuss the unification possibility.

The combined fire districts have annual budgets totaling $1,264,000, he said after the meeting, and could provide excellent service by utilizing existing fire stations and equipment. He said the district probably would not include Stinson Beach or Bolinas areas.

Teener Let Out Of Jail On Charge

An 18-year-old Terra Linda youth, held in jail since Saturday, was arraigned on a misdemeanor charge of having an open liquor container in his car and released without bail in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Ralph Peder Sewell of 858 Las Pavadas was told to return to court Tuesday to plead to the charge.

Sewell and three 16-year-old boys were stopped after sheriff's deputies saw them smoking what may may have been marijuana cigarettes as they drove through Terra Linda Saturday afternoon, deputies reported.

No evidence of marijuana was found in the car, however, deputies said.

Two of the juveniles were cited on suspicion of having an open liquor container and pssession of liquor by a minor and released to their parents. The third was booked into juvenile hall on the same charges.

Sewell did not make bail of $746.

The incident was one of three which resulted in juvenile citations during the weekend.

Two 15-year-old boys were cited for possession of marijuana after deputies found them with eight cigarettes suspected of being marijuana at 9:25 p.m. Saturday on the grounds of the Lucas Valley Community Center.

Another 15-year-old boy was booked into juvenile hall as a runaway Saturday after deputies found him living at Muir Beach in a shelter he built for himself.

The boy told deputies he had run away from home two weeks before.

Marinwood Rec Board Requests Sidewalk Plans

Sidewalks should be installed along Miller Creek Road in front of the new housing development, Casa Marinwood, Marinwood Parks and Recreation Commission members decided last night.

The commissioners, headed by Chairman Ralph E. Tischbern, Community Services District directors to urge county action on the sidewalks along the road west of Marinwood Avenue.

Recreation Director William A. Gordon announced that the Funsters, senior citizens group, will hold its third annual Thanksgiving baked ham buffet and party at noon Nov. 20.

The tiny tots' second fall session will begin next Tuesday. Registration for resident tiny tots will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow, and for nonresidents at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

East Bay Man Killed By Hit-Run Driver

OAKLAND (UPI) — Russell Earhart, 80, Oakland, was struck and killed early today by a woman hit-run driver who carried the body on the hood of her car for 90 feet before swerving to throw it loose and speed away.

The accident occurred at Telegraph Avenue and 40th Street.

Wife Appeals For Blood

Patrick Holman, 34, of 10 La Brea Way, Santa Venetia, needs blood, his wife announced yesterday in a public appeal for help.

Mrs. Holman said her husband has received 36 transfusions of plasma since being admitted to Marin General Hospital last week, and now needs 12 transfusions a day while doctors try to stem internal bleeding in his leg. The bleeding is apparently from recurrence of a hip injury suffered last year in a fall, she said.

Blood type does not matter, she said, because Holman is receiving plasma, not whole blood.

Donations may be made in Holman's name at the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank at 506 Fourth Street, San Rafael. Blood bank hours are from noon to 6 p.m. Mondays and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays.

$8,500 Blaze Blamed On Fireplace Ashes

Carelessly discarded hot ashes from a fireplace were blamed for a fire that did damage estimated at $8,500 to the home of Fred B. Harrington, 112 Twelve Oaks Hill Drive, San Rafael, yesterday, firemen reported.

The ashes were put in a container and placed in the garage, firemen said. The ashes set the garage on fire and caused extensive smoke damage to the house, firemen said. The fire was reported at 10:50 a.m.

City Council Approves New Fire Station

Proposals to build a new fire station in East Petaluma, enlarge the present central fire station and abandon that at East D and Payran streets were approved last night by the Petaluma City Council.

Fire Chief Roscoe A. Benton recommended a new station be built as soon as possible and set 1970 or 71 as the latest possible date. "We have a very dire situation with all the population growth being on the east side and all the fire fighting equipment on the west side," he said.

BUILDING FUND

Benton recommended land be acquired on McDowell Boulevard North. He said a site could be purchased from $45,000 in the fire department building fund. Any money remaining should be used to enlarge facilities at the central station on D Street, he told the council.

The chief said one or two more bays are needed to house equipment at the central station. He told council this would be even more necessary when the east side station is built, because he would then recommend the station at East D and Payran streets be abandoned with the men and equipment transferring to central.

FLOOR PLANS

In general approval of his recommendations, council retained architect Richard Lieb for $1,200 to develop floor plans, sketches and cost estimates for the central addition. Lieb said the fee would later apply to his fee of eight per cent of the building cost.

Benton estimated cost of the proposed east side station at $90,000. He said the project could probably not be supported from the general tax fund and recommended a bond issue be considered. He also reminded the council that a new station would mean adding seven new firemen at an annual cost of $62,869 and a new fire engine at $35,000.

Rohnert Park Asks Water Lines Funds

Rohnert Park City Council last night approved a request for federal assistance for improvements to the city water system.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan will file a preliminary request with the Department of Housing and Urban Development for $35,000 in matching funds. The project would provide a new, 300,000-gallon tank and a new well.

The Rohnert Park City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Found a procedural error had been made in holding a public hearing on the updated building code before its presentation to the council. A new hearing was scheduled for Dec. 2.

MARKET — Approved building plans of Paul Golis for a convenience market on Southwest Boulevard. He told the council he had dropped plans for an adjacent pharmacy.

REDUCTION — Heard that Storer Cable Television, Inc. agreed to a reduction of the city rate from $4.75 to $4.56 per month.

LIBRARY — Gave Callinan authority to begin negotiations to merge the city library with the Sonoma County library system.

STOP SIGNS — Denied a request from the John Reed School Parent-Teacher Association that stop signs be placed in front of the school. Police and fire chief Brian Koch recommended the denial, saying the signs weren't necessary at this time and would cause problems rather than solve them.

TREES — Authorized Callinan to cooperate with the chamber of commerce in the annual tree-planting project. An estimated 300 trees will be added to the city.

Coffee Stolen From Cooperative Nursery

The Larkspur-Corte Madera Parents Cooperative Nursery at 56 Mohawk Avenue is minus three pounds of coffee in a burglary last night, Corte Madera police reported today.

Officers said entry to the children nursery's office was via an open window. The coffee was removed from a locker, they said.

'BLACKMAIL' ABOLISHED

Petaluma Councilmen Cut Permit Strings

By BONNIE BARD

Complaints of "blackmail" and "confiscation" highlighted a heated Petaluma City Council meeting last night at which councilmen voted 4-3 to abandon past policy of using the power of granting use permits to force dedication of land without compensation.

The change in policy came on approval of an appeal by Union Oil Co. of a city planning commission decision which would have granted a permit for a station at D Street and Petaluma Boulevard South only if the company would dedicate 2,805 square feet for future widening of the boulevard.

The occasionally strindgent debate over the station was followed by an equally argumentative discussion of the status of the city's Core Area Plan by Councilman John W. Cavanagh Jr. and Vice Mayor Kenneth J. Colin, who had no trouble voting together to change the dedication policy.

Norman Miller, Union Oil real estate representative, said the amount of the dedication requested was too large and called it "confiscation without compensation." He said his company would conform to setback requests, but felt giving up more than 10 per cent of the corner property was excessive.

Future city plans call for the widening of Petaluma Boulevard South from 70 to 86 feet, taking eight feet from the station site. D Street plans call for widening from 66 to 86 feet, taking 10 feet from the site.

At the Oct. 22 meeting of the planning commission, members withheld the use permit pending dedication of the land.

"This seems like it's blackmail," Councilman Albert L. Battaglia Jr., said. Agreeing with him was Councilman Phillip L. Joerger, who said council policy in taking residential land is to compensate the property owners. "Just because it's a big oil company doesn't change the situation," he said.

City Atty. Edouard E. Robert assured council the dedication request was legal and said it happens all the time. City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said someone would have to pay for the property, "if not the individual owner, the whole city."

On the suggestion of Mayor Helen Putnam, the council was about to shelve the matter and take it up in a study session next week when Robert Acorn, a manager of the proposed station, demanded an immediate answer.

"We've been kicked around long enough," he charged, adding if plans aren't known this week, purchase of the land would be impossible.

On a motion by Joerger and seconded by Battaglia, the council voted to allow the building and not to demand dedication. Joining them were Colin and Cavanagh. Casting negative votes were Mayor Putnam and Councilmen David W. Brainerd and Robert S. Lipman.

After the hot debate and close balloting, Cavanagh demanded a status report on the Core Area plan by members serving on the council's downtown committee.

"If we want to have the confidence of the people, we should let them know what the status of the plan is," he said.

"There is no report," said Colin, speaking as committee chairman. "We're still working and the report will be presented when it's finished."

Cavanagh pressed on: "This is the reason for the great lack of confidence in the Core Area plan — I demand an answer."

Colin again refused, saying it was the position of the mayor to call for a committee report and not a councilman.

"It's my prerogative to want to know what's going on," Cavanagh said. "My constituents stop me on the street and ask me what's going on and I have to tell them I don't know."

Mayor Putnam called his accusations untrue and said some segments of the community did, indeed, have confidence in the committee. "They're making an honest effort and are acting in good faith and will present a full report which we will all hear when the findings are complete," she said.

Joerger agreed with Cavanagh and said the committee should at least give some indication of when the report will be completed. "This put us in a bad position," he said. "I'm tired of not having any answers."

"Every day there are no answers, the plan dies a little bit more," Cavanagh said.

Committee member Lipman said the group is now meeting individually with property owners since the results of the questionnaires showed they did not fully understand the plan.

The Petaluma City Council Also:

LIBRARY — Deferred action on merging the city library with the county library system so that the chamber of commerce and other interested groups can study the plan further.

BIDS — Approved plans and specifications and called for bids on paving work for the new Mary Street parking lot adjacent to the new Bank of America building. In doing so, Mary Street will be one-way east from Kentucky Street to Petaluma Boulevard North.

RAILROAD — Approved an agreement with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad Co. to share costs of installing drop gates on the D Street and Washington Streets crossings. The city's share will be $26,450, half of which will be reimbursed by the State Public Utilities Commission when the job in completed.

REZONED — Rezoned a 17-acre parcel on the northeast corner of East Washington Street and McDowell Boulevard North from residential to community commercial.

DRAINAGE — Received letter from Otto R. Nation complaining of inadequate drainage at H and Second streets. Engineer David Young said the area has been a trouble spot for many years and recommended enlargement of storm drains and estimated costs at $21,000. He urged the council to consider this in preeparing next year's capital outlay budget.

AIRLINE — Gave support to Let's Fly, Inc. of Santa Rosa in requesting the Public Utilities Commission to reopen hearings on the proposed commuter flight service from Santa Rosa Airport and the Petaluma Sky Ranch to San Francisco and Oakland International Airports.

BADGE FEES — Ordered operators of taxicabs to pay full costs of replacing license badges when lost.

WEEDS — Approved a resolution declaring that weeds rubbish refuse and dirt on streets, sidewalks and private property will be considered a public nuisance.

GAS PIPES — Authorized the mayor to sign an agreement with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for the installation of pipes at the city's non-solid fill project south of the city. Cost was estimated at $625.

Car Crashes Injure Two

Two persons were treated yesterday at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for minor injuries sustained in separate accidents.

James T. Lee, 19, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. James W. Lee of 242 Randolph Drive on the bas, received a sprained left knee when a car driven by retired M/Sgt. Maurice E. Lafferty of 611 Manor Drive, Novato, backed into him in the service station on the base about 2 p.m., according to base officials.

S/Sgt. Warren Richard De Laurie, 36, of 1175 San Jose Boulevard, Novato, was treated at the hospital for a cut lip and mouth injury suffered, Novato police said, when his car, westbound on Ignacio Boulevard, hit an auto belonging to Sgt. Hayward Cormier of 650 Ignacio Boulevard and parked in front of his house at 6:05 p.m.

Library Growing

More than 11,000 books are now in ciruculation from the San Anselmo library, it was announced yesterday at a library board meeting. Valerie M. Ansel, board chairman, said 803 magazines were checked out last month.

'City That Knows How' Uses Bay For Cess Pool

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week took what may be viewed as a great step forward — for San Francisco.

The board unanimously approved a resolution calling for the "city that knows how" to quit dumping raw sewage into the Bay — within 12 years.

Even that was hedged carefully. The resolution avoids any commitment for the city to pay for the necessary sewage treatment facilities, estimated to cost as much as $355 million. It says the money "must be derived from revenue sources not presently available" to the city. Just what that means, you guess with us.

THIS ACTION — if it can be called that — by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors points up the unequal treatment accorded communities surrounding the Bay by the state government.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor, the Bay Region Water Pollution Control Board, have been trying for years to get San Francisco to do something about its lack of sewage treatment facilities. But the board's persuasion has mostly brought no response at all. This time, it has brought a response that would be laughable were it not such a serious matter: a resolution calling for doing within 12 years what should have been done at least 50 years ago — if somebody else puts up the money.

The Water Quality Control Board and its predecessor have not taken brush-offs from jurisdictions other than the City and County of San Francisco. The board has been extremely insistent, even threatening when it appeared necessary, for correction of sewage facilities in all the counties surrounding the Bay — except San Francisco.

Largely as result of its efforts, numerous sanitary districts in Marin and other counties have spent millions of dollars, put up by the taxpayers, to lay sewer lines and build sewage treatment facilities.

IT IS IRONIC that the various conservation groups which have worked themselves into a dither over the possibility of someone's filling a few acres of smelly swamp anywhere along the Bay's shores have seemed unperturbed over the fact that San Francisco, a city of three quarters of a million people, continues to use the Bay as its cesspool.

The City of San Francisco has never had an adequate sewage disposal system. It started polluting the Bay before James Marshall discovered gold at Coloma. It has been at it ever since.

San Francisco has floated bond issues to rebuild a temporary 1915 fair building, to build a baseball park for a New York-capitalized ball club at probably the most miserable location that could be found anywhere in the Bay Area, and for many other similarly superfluous purposes.

The governing boards of "the city that knows how" have never felt, however, that its citizens should be taxed to keep their neighborhood sanitary. And the resolution adopted by the San Francisco Board of Supervisors last week makes it evident this attitude has not changed.

Missile Base On Wolfback Ridge Could Be Boon To Marin City

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

An antimissile base will locate on Wolfback Ridge above Sausalito or on Angel Island in Tiburon, despite mush heated local opposition, if the Army decides this is where it must go.

Some like to think that the local citizenry should decide the matter, but this simply is not the way it will be done.

But opponents of the base, unimpressed by the $2 million to $3 million annual payroll its personnel would bring, might at least consider the social advantage offered by the need to house some 300 to 700 families that would be attached to the base.

The base would not be large enough to house dependents, so the question is, where would they go?

HOW ABOUT Marin City? An influx into that community of white residents long has been sought, but only a handful have come.

The mere details of how this could be done are for someone else to figure out. One approach could be for the federal government to lease housing in Marin City for families from the base.

This modest proposal could be hard on some of the opponents of the base, since they tend to be the same persons who like to be identified as progressive and liberal in racial matters.

AN ELECTION postscript is the discovery that former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace's campaign biography was written by a former San Rafael and Novato resident, John J. Synon.

Synon once served as executive secretary to Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, then was appointed a member of the state Industrial Accident Commission.

In the early 1950s, he was elected to the Marin County Republican Central Committee, and in 1958 tried unsuccessfully for the First Congressional District seat on the GOP ticket.

The same year, Synon listed Walter Reuther among labor leaders who "should be put in San Quentin or Sing Sing for their evil influence on American life."

Synon then moved to Richmond, Va., and has worked as a lobbyist in Washington for a group funded by the White Citizens Councils of Mississippi.

STATE SEN. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and other powerful senators who traditionally have run the Senate may find themselves out in the cold when their power is tested in January by a new Legislature.

It's not that McCarthy has done anything, but rather that the leader of the old guard, Sen. Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno, has angered the growing group of liberals in the Senate by endorsing Max Rafferty. Without support from some liberal senators relatively new to the Senate, Burns could be pushed out — and McCarthy with him.

The dimmycratic party ain't on speakin' terms with itsilf.— Finley Peter Sunne (1900).

Public opinion's always in advance of the law. — John Galsworthy.

Hippies In Hospitals —Who Would Pay?

I read with consternation a news item in the Independent-Journal of Oct. 25 about hippies. Sen. John McCarthy, with the endorsement of Mr. "Bud" Baar, wishes to pass a law to force admission of hippies into hospitals for treatment.

At Marin General Hospital, for instance, this would cost $55 per day per hippie so they could have plush care for bathing and delousing — they would love it.

If they had in mind hospitalization for communicable diseases, we already have this on the law books and enforced by our health officer.

Whom do you think would pay the bill? If you don't know, look in the mirror.

On election day vote for level headed candidates.

Campus Opinion Of 'Nigger' Essay

I was more than a little appalled by the perspective of your editorial, Oct. 18, concerning the recent distribution of Farber's essay "The Student as Nigger" on various college campuses. First let me clarify my position as a student with regard to this matter. Having read "The Student as Nigger," I judge it an essay cleverly but poorly written and not worthy of serious study as literature. Its free use of obscenities appeals to the younger mind, but to the more perceptive, it detracts from the validity of the issues raised by assuming an immature level of dissertation.

But equally as sensationalistic was your reaction to and evaluation of the implications of its appearance on campuses. Since you devoted the bulk of your article to the crisis at the University of Minnesota, I propose to offer a more enlightened analysis of both what happened and what was the true tenor of feeling on that campus. In the first place, please understand that Dr. Clark did not "forbid" his associates to use the Farber essay, he merely stated he felt its use would be imprudent, "especially in an election year" (Minnesota Daily). Its subsequent use in the classroom was not a violation of authority, and in a later departmental meeting, Dr. Clark clarified himself by stating that he would not censure its use by any of the faculty. As for the 200-student protest rally, I happened to be coming out of Vincent Hall after it began below the steps, and not only was the actual number of protesters well under 200— which is a small enough number on a campus of over 40,000 — but those who spoke the loudest were also the youngest. . . .

Yes, people were angry about "academic freedom," but most of the students found the essay childish and certainly did not feel that "the jargon of the gutter has become the language of higher education," to quote your own analysis. One associate who offered the essay to his freshman class found in their reactions both disgust and boredom. . . .

Dr. Hage, by upholding the publication of Farber's essay, was merely affirming the fact that it cannot be as dangerous to trust young people to have a reasonable amount of discernment as it is to shelter them from ideas and words.

Bible Not Banned; Cleaver Shouldn't Be

Mr. Jack A. Binns Jr. of Mill Valley's letter to you (Oct. 29) is the latest to volunteer to research and recommend which of the several thousand different readings of the Old Testament and the hundreds of thousands of the New shall be in our schools.

Secondly, are we not yet able to see through that canard which claims prayer and the Bible have been barred from our public schools?

Prayer to the truth—as God is called in the Gospels — for a better understanding of truth happens daily in our schools, evident to all who stop to analyze. No pupil nor teacher can be prevented from using it and it is demonstrably effective.

No law or rule prevents study of the Bible in schools. It would be very enlightening, but as long as so much controversy exists as to how the pupils and their teacher may interpret what it says, schools are wise to avoid its use.

As for letting Mr. Cleaver speak to students — isn't it for the schools to decide, largely? . . .

Insofar as I can see, Mr. Cleaver falls far short of a teacher's ability to bestow academic credits upon students, but he is obviously an apt subject for students' study and inquiry into the social problems facing us today to the purpose of correcting the conditions that cause them. . . .

Good taste would have us reject and boycott his obscenities and insults, but wisdom bades us return and to try in spite of these to glean from him a message which might help us to uplift mankind.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

THE FOURTH TIME this year that Mrs. Kadison cracked up the family station wagon, she at least came up with a novel alibi: "I was carefully following the white line in the road on Route 22 — and the white line turned out to be a skunk!"

Asked to use the word "paradox" in a sentence, little Pulsifier Boles, of South Bend, came up with "On our farm we've got 200 chickens, six geese, and a paradox."

Hard Road To Peace; Korea Provides Proof

By PHIL NEWSOM, UPI Foreign News Analyst

The fact that President Johnson could announce a bombing halt over North Vietnam is a victory for patient diplomacy, but peace in Vietnam still could be far away.

Korea provides the example. Armistice talks in Korea began July 10, 1951, and were not concluded until July 27, 1953, after 575 meetings.

No South Korean representative was present at the armistice signing.

THE KOREAN armistice provided that within three months a political conference should be held to negotiate the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Korea and a "peaceful settlement of the Korean question . . ."

That conference never was held.

A subsequent Geneva conference in 1954, which, ironically also took up the question of French withdrawal from Indo-China and marked the beginning of U.S. involvement there, settled nothing.

It called for a unified Korea through general elections to be held under United Nations supervision. The elections never were held.

The Korean War cost more than 33,000 American lives and it was scarcely a week ago, 15 years after signing of the armistice, that another American was killed there while on guard duty along the truce line.

The United States continues to maintain 50,000 troops there.

IN SOUTH VIETNAM, as in Korea, the South Vietnamese leaders will be but reluctant partners in the peace talks.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu and his vice president, Nguyen Cao Ky, believe they have a military victory within their grasp and fear an American sellout.

The could disrupt the talks at any time, either through demonstrations, by an unauthorized attack against the North or by a walkout.

The hope is that they are sensible men who realize they cannot go it alone.

Nor is there evidence that despite some 400,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed since 1962, the Communists have changed their position.

NORTH VIETNAMESE President Ho Chi Minh felt he was cheated by the French after World War II and cheated again at the Geneva conference which also called for unification of Vietnam after free elections. Those elections also never were held.

There is no indication he has retreated from the four points he has declared can be the only conditions for peace talks. These are:

—Withdrawal of U.S. forces and recognition of Vietnam's territorial integrity.

—Respect for the military provisions of the Geneva treaty barring foreign forces.

—South Vietnam's internal problems to be settled under the guidance of the Hanoi-supported and controlled National Liberation Front.

—Reunification of North and South Vietnam without outside interference.

The bombing pause and a lull in the ground fighting are said to have been achieved as result of secret talks in Paris during a coffee break. Many more cups will be consumed before there can be a peace in Vietnam.

Lesson Of Cuba Crisis Brought Home By Book

(Reprinted from
St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Reading again the frightening story of the 1962 Cuba missiles crisis, this time as seen through Robert Kennedy's eyes, we are astonished at how little attention was paid by the policy-makers to the key question: did Khrushchev's installation of offensive missiles 90 miles from our shores actually change the world military balance so greatly as to warrant going to the brink of nuclear holocaust?

Only a trifling minority of the strategic planners appears even to have raised the question, which evidently never got serious consideration. Yet if it was true, as we suspect, that the Cuba missiles made no essential difference in the military equation, according to which with or without Cuba Russia had the capacity to destroy us and we to destroy them, then it follows that our two nations came within a whisker of nuclear war for psychological and political, rather than security, reasons.

THIS UNDOUBTEDLY is what President Kennedy had in mind when he told his brother he would have been impeached if he had failed to act. He would have been impeached not because missiles in Cuba placed the United States in any more jeopardy than it was already in, but because in the political context of the time the American people simply would not tolerate rockets aimed at their cities from a point so close at hand. We insisted on the right to aim missiles at Soviet cities from adjacent Turkey, and from submarines in all the seas, but were righteously outraged to be placed in the same situation ourselves.

A special irony surrounded the question of our Turkey-based missiles. They had become obsolete, and President Kennedy several months before the Cuba crisis had directed the State Department to arrange for their removal. The State Department did nothing. During the Cuba crisis Adlai Stevenson suggested that we might offer to remove our missiles from Turkey in exchange for removal of the Soviet missiles from Cuba. He was excoriated as a softy; any such deal was rejected as a sign of weakness.

Yet, as Robert Kennedy reveals in the book now published by McCall's magazine, he himself privately assured the Soviet ambassador that the Turkish bases would be dismantled if the Russians got out of Cuba. In other words our government feared losing face by openly making a trade which it secretly acknowledged to be reasonable. And it feared losing face because of the irrational climate of American opinion, the product of years of cold war.

IT IS THIS climate of opinion, with its admixture of self-righteousness, doctrinaire anti-communism and national arrogance, its tendency to set up one standard for ourselves and another for somebody else, that must concern Americans if we would avoid future nuclear brinks as hair-raising as the Cuba crisis. The country can be eternally grateful to President Kennedy and his brother for their cool and prudent choice of responses then. They had to resist pressure from the Joint Chiefs of Staff who wanted the response to be a surprise blitzkrieg on Cuba.

Some military leaders even proposed the use of nuclear weapons; nearly all of them, judging by Robert Kennedy's account, were ready and eager for the big war with Russia, which would have killed millions of civilians on both sides. In stemming this madness, and insisting on a blockade which gave the Russians scope for retreat, the two Kennedys earned highest marks for diplomatic skill and wrote a message that should be engraved in granite: never turn over policy-making to the Pentagon.

But we need to beware not only of the Pentagon but of the jingoistic excesses of cold war psychology. The Cuba crisis had its earliest beginnings in an American political climate which tolerated the pursuit of national ends by the use of military power, and encouraged intervention in other people's national lives. Castro asked for Soviet military aid in the first place because the United States had attempted to invade Cuba, in order to dictate to the Cuban people what kind of government they should have. When Americans give up the idea of policing the world, and cease to regard ourselves as the arbiter of other nations' political development, and abandon armed power as an instrument of diplomacy, we shall have learned the real lesson of the Cuba missiles crisis.

Dead Letter Office, Airplane Mixup, And Celebration Fete

The following came to us from an inside source:

Postmaster Harry Overly had been receiving his mail at the Novato Post Office at 1118 First Street, which is now an empty building. The post office moved to 1537 South Novato Boulevard.

Guess who forgot to change the address of his incoming mail! Right! Postmaster Harry Overly. He is still getting his magazines and other mail addressed at the First Street number.

WHEN GNOSS FIELD was dedicated, approximately 100 people waited in the heat for a plane bearing Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, and County Supervisor William A. Gnoss to come to the airport to cut a ribbon suspended between two ballons.

Gnoss had flown to Santa Rosa, where he was to meet Clausen, so the two could fly back together to cut the ribbon.

The time for the ribbon cutting came and went. Clausen had not arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, it was reported.

Clausen it turned out, had been at another meeting and was late starting for the Santa Rosa Airport. The person driving him there missed the road and made the congressman even later. So when he arrived at the Santa Rosa Airport, he took his plane and headed for Gnoss Field, leaving Supervisor Gnoss waiting there.

Clausen, in his plane, sat at the end of the runway at Gnoss Field while an other plane with Supervisor Gnoss flew down from Santa Rosa and cut the ribbon.

At the south end of the runway, Clausen got out of his plane and into that Gnoss was in. The congressman, a pilot, then taxied the plane up to the speakers' platform.

Learning of the mixup, chairman Ernest N. Kettenhoffen of the board of supervisors told the crowd that Clausen was the only person he knew who could fly two planes from Santa Rosa at the same time.

IN A FEW DAYS, the board of Western Weekend Inc. will meet to decide the fate of that celebration. The fiesta has had its ups and downs — and lately more downs than ups.

It was an outgrowth of a parade by the Novato Horsemen's Association. The Novato Junior Chamber of Commerce handled it for years and it grew. When it was too large for the Jaycees to handle, the celebration was incorporated, with representatives of the civic service organizations on its board

A year ago it lost money and the community held several money-raising events to pay the indebtedness. This summer, it made money, but interest has been declining.

If the board of directors votes to abandon it, the chamber of commerce will make a study to see what type of celebration, if any, the community should have in its place.

The Novato Horsemen's Association, whose annual parade and rodeo started the celebration, will still hold a rodeo, according to its officers.

Crews To Sniff Out Illegal Sewers With Smoke Bombs

San Rafael City Council last night approved the throwing of smoke bombs into sewer manholes to smoke out illegal connections into the lines.

Dominic J. Selmi, an engineer with Dan Coleman Associates of Greenbrae, who is conducting a survey of the sewer system for the city, sought permission for the smoke bombs.

Selmi explained the procedure would be to throw a smoke grenade in a manhole and "blow the smoke up the sewer."

If everything is normal the smoke will come out in vents, but if smoke comes out in homes, "we'll find illegal connections."

There might be roof drains, backyard drains or sump drains hooked up to the system, he said.

The intent is to reduce infiltration into the lines, Selmi said.

Old lines in the Bayview Street-Ross Street-Clark Street-Clorinda Avenue sector were checked by running a television camera in the lines, he said.

"We found they looked almost as good as the day they went in," Selmi said. This dispels the old theory that "water was coming in the joints, he contended.

In past rainy seasons San Rafael has been plagued by sewage popping out of manholes and catch basins onto streets, and it was attributed to storm waters getting into the lines.

Councilmen approved the use of smoke bombs on the condition that it is safe and residents in the area are given ample notice.

"It could scare a lot of people if they weren't notified," said Councilman Louis H. Barr.

Selmi said he planned to use the smoke bombs to check along Bayview Street from Marin to Clark streets, along Clark to Clorinda Avenue and "up Clorinda."

Mental Health Chief To Present Report

A report on the new Community Mental Health Center will be given by the director, Dr. Donald P. Wilson, to the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board at 8 p.m tomorrow at Marin General Hospital.

Also on the board's agenda is discussion of the county's 1969-70 mental health plan. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., president of the board of directors, and Daniel A. Meyerson, director of the Marin Institute will discuss the institute's relation to the county's drug abuse program.

Election Campaign Could Have Selected Husband For Jackie

WASHINGTON — Of all the events of 1968, none has had more of an effect on the American people than the marriage of Jackie Kennedy to Greek zillionaire Aristotle Onassis. People who had no opinion on the Vietnamese war, the crisis of the cities or the youth revolution all had something to say about Mrs. Kennedy's nuptials.

It seems to me that what Jackie Kennedy didn't realize was that she was the property of the American people and, therefore, that she had no right to choose a husband on her own. If Mrs. Kennedy wanted to get married again, she should have informed the American public of this, either on the Johnny Carson show or the Bell Telephone Hour, and let the American people choose a husband for her.

ONCE SHE MADE her intentions known, a special Republican and Democratic convention would have been called and candidates would have been nomiated for her to marry.

After the nominations, each candidate would have campaigned for Jackie's hand. They would have explained what they would do for Jackie as a husband, where they would live and how they would raise Jackie's children.

The candidates would have bought television time to let the public know where they stood, not only on the marriage, but also on the public issues of the day.

They also would have traveled across the nation so that Americans could see them in the flesh and decide for themselves which candidate would be the best mate for the former First Lady.

Not only would the public have listened to the platform of the men it thought were suitable for Jackie's hand, but people would also have decided the complicated questions of religion, age, and nationality of the husband-to-be.

SINCE THEY HAD so much a stake, the public would have taken far more interest in this campaign than they have in the presidential election.

The climax of the race for Jackie's husband would have been a nationally televised debate between the candidates, so the electorate could see for itself how each man would behave under pressure.

Finally, on election day, Americans from all walks of life would have gone to the polls and voted for the person they wanted to stand at Jackie's side.

In case neither candidate got a majority of the electoral votes, then the House of Representatives would have chosen the man privileged to be Jackie Kennedy's husband.

ONCE THE MAJORITY of the American people had made their decision, we all would have abided by it, with no one complaining that he didn't have a vote in Mrs. Kennedy's marital affairs.

This would have been the American way of doing things Perhaps Mr. Onassis might have won the election; perhaps he might not. But at least the election would have prevented the confusion and despair now rampant in the United States over the Kennedy-Onassis wedding.

Even those who are on Jackie's side admit that it wasn't whom she married, but the way she did it, that has caused so much concern in this country.

No woman of Mrs. Kennedy's stature has a right to decide affairs of the heart by herself. Her marriage was everybody's business, and the least she could have done was poll the American public before she made a decision that affects the lives and pocketbooks of us all.

Veterans Asked To Return Forms On Annual Income

Veterans or their dependents who are drawing Veterans Administration benefits will lose their pensions unless they fill out and return the annual income questionnaires mailed out this month, veterans service officer James V. Burdick announced today.

The questionnaires were mailed last Friday with this month's checks and should be in the hands of all veterans pension recipients, said Burdick.

"Due to recent changes in the law, it is vital that the report be accurate, because the amount of benefit paid will be computed in $100 increments," Burdick point out. "The questionnaires must be returned to the Veterans Administration by Jan. 15, 1969, or the payments will stop."

He urged all beneficiaries to come to his office for assistance prior to the Jan. 15 deadline. The Veterans Service Office is located in Room 422 of the Civic Center.

World production of woven cloth in 1963 amounted to around 90 billion square yards or 30 square yards per person.

The gentle nudger

I AM LOVED

Even the best of maidenly schemes can fall a little behind schedule.

If he's not chasing quite as fast as you're running, it could be he's a bit insecure. Perhaps all he needs is a gentle reminder that you are there...and care.

To get your romance back on the proper time table, give him an "I AM LOVED" button. It's a very proper gift. Not too expensive (free, as a matter of fact). And it packs quite a wallop!

When you come in to pick it up, have a look at the Wells "I AM LOVED" jewelry for men...all very personal gifts of real silver and gold ($5. to $25.) They say all that you need to say...and more. Top the gift wrap with the button, then hand it to him with a wink and your prettiest smile.

If you mention where you got it, he might just retort in kind with a companion "I AM LOVED" selection of Wells jewelry for girls. After that, the rest of the romance is up to you.

San Rafael To Purchase Fire Snorkel

San Rafael City Council last night appropriated $25,000 toward the purchase of a fire engine with an 85-foot snorkel estimated to cost $75,000.

Fire Chief Vance Trivett said that because of increasing commercial and industrial development in the Terra Linda area, such as Northgate Industrial park, the department needs an additional truck.

Running a ladder truck out of headquarters in downtown San Rafael to the Emporium store takes from 10 to 12 minutes, "and we can't reach some of the roofs," the chief contended.

Not only is the Northgate Industrial Park "rapidly filling up," but there are a number of apartments in the Terra Linda area, he noted.

Councilmen authorized the chief to prepare plans and specifications for the new snorkel truck, and agreed that $25,000 be taken from reserve funds for it and that payments should be $25,000 a year for a three-year period.

Councilmen also agreed that a dispute over a building design between the Northgate Industrial Park Architectural Review Committee and the builder, Ronald F. Antonioli, was beyond their jurisdiction.

The council sustained the planning commission's decision to grant Antonioli architectural approval of the planned office building at 25-35 Mitchell Boulevard, the entrance to Northgate Industrial Park.

The San Rafael City Council also:

BUILDING CODE — Adopted the 1967 edition of the building code and amended the municipal code to provide a stronger definition of dangerous buildings.

ABATEMENTS — Postponed three abatements: an unoccupied house at 33 Maywood Way, abandoned because of earth slippage, until Dec. 2 after reports that the house might be sold and lot stabilized; an unoccupied house at 544 D Street until No. 18, after a report that it is scheduled to be removed to make way for construction of a nursing home; and a carriage house to the rear of the main dwelling at 1623 Fifth Avenue until Nov. 18.

OFFICE MOVING — Gave William Watson, owner of two medical buildings at 600 Mission Avenue, permission to move them to 16 Marion Court.

PROPERTY SALE — Agreed to sell a 15-foot strip of city property along the north side of Fourth Street from Mary to Union streets, but retain easements.

PERSONNEL — Appointed John Riordan as acting police sergeant at a salary of $856 a month, on a temporary basis, effective Nov. 1, appointed William Herman Bertram and William Scott Boyle as police officers at $670 a month, and granted Frederick Bishop, maintenance man II, leave from Oct. 24 to Jan. 24, to recuperate from surgery.

DAMAGE CLAIM — Denied and referred to the city's insurance carrier a $41.74 claim from Mrs. Kathleen Donnelly of 211 Laurel Place for damage to the front door of her home allegedly caused by city firemen Aug. 9 while checking a report of smoke.

EXTENSION — Granted contractors Vukasin and Rigisich of Lafayette, Contra Costa County, a one-month extension, until Dec. 4, to complete relocation of sewers in the vicinity of Clyde Avenue, Clinton Street and Tamalpais Avenue.

NAME CHANGE — Approved changing the name of Meyer Service Road to Gary Place, effective 90 days from last night.

BICYCLE TRAILS —Referred to the parks and recreation commission a letter from the Lucas Valley Home and School Club requesting a bicycle pathway to Marin Civic Center.

JOINT SESSION — Announced that the council and the library board will have a joint meeting to review library building plans at 11 a.m. Nov. 16 at the library. The next regular council session will be at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 at City Hall.

Councilman John Miskimen, on a business trip, was absent.

Pleads Innocent

Reagan Praises Employee's Act

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has praised a state employee who gave the shirt off his back to a jobless youth who was looking for work.

Reagan said yesterday a staff member of the Youth Opportunity Center in Sacramento exchanged his own shirt and necktie for the youth's T-shirt so the youngster could make a more favorable impression during a job interview with a prospective employer.

In a letter to State Employment Director Peter Weinberger, Reagan said the employee, whom he did not identify, served "above and beyond the call of duty."

Santa Venetia Hospital Gets Informal Nod

A 180-bed convalescent hospital in Santa Venetia got the informal blessing of Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill yesterday, but formal approval must await a land division request by the owners.

The hospital will be located on North San Pedro Road just east of Rafael Convalescent Hospital.

Mrs. Rose Paul of San Rafael, one of three owners, said the LBM Investment Co. of Orinda is no longer connected with the proposed development. LBM had originally planned a regular hospital in addition to a convalescent home, but the hospital idea was dropped because of opposition from Marin County Health Facilities Planning Committee.

Mrs. Paul said the owners want to divide their 18-acre property, using just three acres for the convalescent hospital.

"As far as the convalescent hospital is concerned, I see no objection," said Cordill. He pointed out that the next step would be for the owners to apply for a land division to split the three acres from the 18-acre holding.

Owners of the property are Mrs. Paul, David Rosenberg, and attorney Sidney Rudy, all of San Rafael.

The zoning administrator also:

VARIANCE — Granted building contractor Robert Hune permission to continue using two homes on a one-acre parcel at 2019 Mill Road, Novato, for two years. Within two years, Hune said he would subdivide and develop his property. The property is zoned limited agricultural, which permits only one home per building site.

MOBILE HOME — Granted George R. Cherry of 76 Ranch Road, San Rafael, a one-year permit to maintain a mobile home as living quarters for the manager of the 101 Drive-In Theater. The property is located on the south side of Smith Ranch Road, about 1,200 feet east of Highway 101.

PET SUPPLIES — Granted P. R. Henerlau of 899 Eucalyptus Avenue, Novato, a use permit to continue an existing storage area for pet supplies.

Sausalitan Due In Canadian Court Tomorrow

VICTORIA (AP) — Dr. James Sutherland Watt, of Sausalito, was remanded until tomorrow when he appeared in court here yesterday charged with a customs act infraction.

Dr. Watt was represented before Magistrate J. A. Byers by lawyer Lloyd McKenzie. No plea has been entered and the appearance tomorrow is to elect a form of trial.

The charge read that on Oct. 24 he had unlawful possession of LSD and mescaline, imported illegally into Canada.

Police said Dr. Watt had given his home address as 431 Bridgeway Blvd., Sausalito, Calif.

The charge followed seizure of the 65-foot U.S. ketch Navita, which was reported en route from Vancouver Island to Mexico when it was disabled during a gale and forced to put into Victoria last month.

Horse Stables Use Permit Is Expected

Horse stables and a riding ring operated by Mrs. Roy Yates at 420 Bayview Drive, Homestead Valley, will be allowed to continue, but with conditions to keep dust and debris to a minimum, County Zoning Administrator Thomas E. Cordill decided yesterday.

Before granting a use permit, Cordill said he will confer with health officials and the Marin County Humane Society. Unless there is an adverse report from these agencies, Cordill said he will grant a permit on an annual renewal basis.

The zoning administrator said he is concerned with dust, erosion, and whether or not a permit should be issued for the 30 horses requested by Mrs. Yates.

The stables are on 19 acres of land on both sides of Bayview Drive near the intersection with Sequoia Valley Road. A permit allowing 16 horses was issued in 1955, but the permit has expired, and the stable ownership has changed hands four times, said Mrs. Yates.

Mrs. Yates said she now has 27 horses on the property and wants a use permit for a maximum of 30.

The zoning administrator announced he would issue a written decision sometime next week.

Another request for a use permit to keep horses was continued until the next zoning administrator hearing on Nov. 25 at the request of the applicant. Welton C. Rotz wants to keep two horses at 469 Corona Avenue, Lagnitas. The property has 8,500 square feet and is zoned for single family residential.

Protesting Solano Students Arrested

VALLEJO (AP) — Twenty-one Solano College students arrested yesterday for staging a classroom sit-in were free on $350 bail each today.

Eleven girls were among the 21 arrested by 13 Vallejo policemen after the president of the 2,100-student junior college, Dr. N. Dallas Evans, signed complaints charging loitering and disrupting the college.

The sit-in was staged by 50 students to back up a demand for electric typewriters to type club material for the Black Student Union, which has been demanding more Negro courses, teachers and counselors.

The arrests were made after three requests that the protesters leave voluntarily.

Belvedere To Share Costs Of Undergrounding Work

The Belvedere City Council last night agreed to underground utilities in an area that is scheduled for redevelopment near the southern entrance to the city.

Total cost of undergrounding the heavy concentration of wires on Beach Road from Bellevue Avenue to Cove Road, on Cove Road and on Cove Place was estimated by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. at $26,000, City Mgr. William L. Cavalli reported.

He said the utilities firm would pay $7,000 and the city $6,500, and the Belvedere Land Co. the rest.

The firm, which has built several apartments in Belvedere, owns the land at the corner of Beach and Cove roads where several old arks have been converted into houses, Cavalli said.

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. also estimated it would cost each resident from $100 to $300 to convert to underground utilities.

Residents would be responsible for digging a trench across their property from the street box to the meter and any electrical connection changes at their homes.

A PG&E spokesman said homeowners may dig their own trenches to save money.

No one opposed establishing the underground utilities district at a public hearing last night and the council was unanimous in its approval.

The Belvedere City Council also:

SEWAGE STUDY — Agreed to pay half the cost of a $1,250 study to divert sewage from the Belvedere Lagoon with property owners in the area to pay the other half.

APPOINTMENT — Named Michael C. Lasky of 338 San Rafael Avenue to the parks and recreation commission to replace Rev. Llewellyn A. White who resigned when he moved from the city recently.

TREE — Relaxed its insistence on planting a large tree in front of the San Francisco Yacht Club after Cavalli said the roots could break up on the street pavement.

CATV — Head a progress report on the installation of cable antenna television which said Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. planned to have poles ready by the end of the year. The cable firm would then take two to three months to string lines.

MINIBOARD — Appointed itself as a miniboard on human rights instead of naming a separate group after Mayor Thomas S. Price commented "a commission like that would really have no duty at this point."

FIRE MAINS — Learned that legal technicalities in the $55,627 fire main project are being worked out and it is expected installation will begin soon.

COMPENSATION — Referred a request from Cavalli to establish a deferred compensation plan and severance pay for the city manager post to the finance committee.

DUMP TRUCK — Accepted a bid of $4,039 from Campbell Bishop Chevrolet for a new dump truck.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS—Received a five-year capital improvement plan prepared by Cavalli and referred it to the parks and recreation and planning commissions for study. It calls for completing current projects, plus $185,000 worth of new streets, and $73,400 in other projects including a new fire truck, sewer work and an underground sprinkler system for the park, with the total plan taking an 11-cent increase in the tax rate for the five years.

LANE ABANDONMENT—Deferred until the Dec. 2 meeting a request from Donald Bekins to abandon a lane on Corinthian Island.

Attempts At Escape Mar Hospital Trip

A 26-year-old San Francisco man was taken to Napa State Hospital Saturday in a trip interrupted by two attempts at escape, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Bill Michael Orr, also known as Will Michael Rein, was booked into Marin County Jail at 3:20 a.m. Saturday on suspicion of being under the influence of a drug and refusing to identify himself.

Deputies saw Orr get into a car on Bridgeway in Sausalito early Saturday. Shortly after that, the owner of the car appeared and told him to get out. When deputies asked Orr for identification, he produced a white comb, they said.

He was taken to jail but at 7:45 a.m. Saturday, because of his unusual behavior, arrangements were made to take him to Napa.

At 9:23 a.m. Orr was reported to have escaped from the ambulance driver near the Villa Rafael Motel, 1606 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Deputies spotted him at 10 a.m. on North San Pedro Road near the Civic Center and attempted to pick him up. Deputies reported he tried to get away and they restrained him, bringing him back to the sheriff's office where he again tried to break and run.

He again was sent to the state hospital, deputies said.

Teens Raise $70 For Coffee House

Youth Power has raised $70 toward its share of funding a coffee house for Marin teens, members reported.

The teen organization must raise $375 to match a similar amount promised recently by the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Christopher Arend, president of Youth Power, said $15 was made at a bake sale Saturday and $10 was donated after he spoke on Youth Power at a humanities seminar in Orinda. The rest is from individual donations.

Youth Power will discuss ways to raise the rest of its share at a meeting Saturday.

to Nixon in the second person, mocking the fact that Nixon had refused to join him in a televised debate.

"We have to be willing to take some risks for peace, Mr. Nixon, just as we're willing to take risks on the battlefield. . . what you and I should be doing is asking the government of South Vietnam to attend that conference in Paris and backing our President, and not in any way spreading misinformation that would upset the American people," he said.

Tens of thousands jammed the streets of downtown Los Angeles to greet Humphrey and Muskie in an old-fashioned ticker-tape parade. It was one of their best receptions.

As the motorcade formed, the latest Harris poll showed Humphrey ahead of Nixon for the first time since the Democratic National Convention. The poll gave Humphrey 43 per cent, Nixon 40 and George C. Wallace 13, with 4 per cent undecided.

On the TV program, Humphrey praised President Johnson for what he called a courageous act in stopping the bombing of the North. One caller asked Humphrey "Why you were not against war earlier in your campaign?"

"I've never been for war," he replied, but as vice president he said he thought he should be 'helpful to our administration." He said he favored a negotiated rather than a military settlement.

NATION

A forecast of fair weather for most of the nation held the promise of a voter turnout exceeding the record 71 million of four years ago.

The poll gave Humphrey a 43 to 40 endge over Nixon. This was the first time he has led during the campaign in which he once trailed by eight points in the Harris poll and 15 in the Gallup poll. Gallup's final poll over the weekend had it 42 to 40 for Nixon.

Wallace, the phenomenon that threw pollsters and political experts far off their stride, was given between 12 and 13 per cent of the vote in the final polls.

Despite their last minute predictions, the major pollsters, mindful of Harry S Truman's 1948 upset of Thomas Dewey, said the election was too close to call.

As if to bear out the belief that this election defies prediction, the nation's first voters failed to follow the usual script.

In the little town of Dixville Notch, N. H., the 12 voters who cast their ballots after midnight split 8 votes for Humphrey, 4 for Nixon. Nixon got all the town's eight registered voters in the 1960 presidential election he lost to John F. Kennedy in a defeat that was supposed to bury him politically.

In Ellsworth, N. H., however, the 11 voters did follow tradition, casting straight Republican ballots.

Besides the three presidential candidates, voters across the country will elect 21 governors, 34 senators and all 435 representatives as well as hundreds of lesser statewide and local candidates.

Republicans were given a good chance of increasing their current margin of 26 governorships, a slight chance of capturing the House, but little chance of gaining more than two to four seats in the Senate, far short of control.

If no candidate gets the needed electoral votes in today's balloting, the Electoral College meeting would be the subject of intense trading efforts to deliver this final figure.

But if the electors fail to reach a verdict the choice would go to the new House in January, with each state delegation having one vote.

Window Damaged

Robert Herman Golyn of Marin County Furniture, 2158 Fourth Street, San Rafael, reported yesterday that a hole had been shot in a display window during the weekend, police said. Value of the window was about $300, Golyn told police.

Session Canceled

The Marin City Target Area board did not meet last night as scheduled. No one in the Marin City office or the Marin Economic Opportunity Council office in San Rafael today knew why the meeting was called off.

Teachers Back Mission Rebels

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Teacher's Union voted last night to approve the use of Mission Rebel street gang members as high school counselors.

The executive board of the union preciously protested a contract between the Rebels and the school superintendent's office which provided that gang members be called in to help quiet disturbances.

The Rebels "blatantly violated" the spirit of the program by encouraging rather than discouraging uneasiness at some schools, the executive board of the union said.

in which the test has been ordered is that of William Duncan Lindley.

He had pleaded guilty to two charges of attempted child molesting and was already on two years' probation as a juvenile for child molesting when he entered Atascadero State Hospital May 17, 1967, as a mentally disordered sex offender.

On Sept. 17 this year, the hospital staff returned Lindley to Marin Superior Court, saying he has received maximum hospital benefit, without showing any signs of improvement.

The staff reported Lindley has been having "increasingly very disturbing fantasies of torture and sex. . . . Because of his fantasies, staff regard him as a potential murderer."

Lindley has now been returned to Municipal Court, where Goldstein suspended criminal proceedings in 1967 and started Lindley on his way to Atascadero.

Those procedings have begun again and Judge Goldstein must either sentence Lindley on two misdemeanor charges or suspend proceedings again and send him to state prison as a mentally disordered sex offender.

When two local psychiatrists reported Lindley as sane, Judge Goldstein ordered the chromosome test. A hearing on the matter is scheduled for Nov. 14 in Judge Goldstein's court.

Von Feldt, who pleaded guilty yesterday to the battery charge, was told to return to court Dec. 6 for sentencing.

Man's Leg Cut In Fight Challenge

David Leroy Glasscock of 303 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, was treated for a severe cut on his left leg last night at Marin General Hospital following an incident at the Bermuda Palms, 737 Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael, police said.

Police said Glasscock and four companions said they were approached by three men and challenged to a fight. All but Glasscock left and later it was discovered that he was cut, reported police, who did not say whether Glasscock had fought.

New Fire Snorkel Due Discussion

The San Rafael Fire Commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at city hall to discuss the new piece of equipment for which the city council appropriated $25,000 last night.

The new equipment, a fire truck with an 85-foot snorkel, is estimated to cost a total of $75,000, with payments to be spread over a three-year period.

Teen-Age Motorist Hurt In Petaluma

A young Petaluma man was injured in an accident at 12:45 a.m. today on Bodega Avenue near Eastman Lane, Petaluma.

Charles R. Annis, 17, of 300 Prospect Street, was reported in good condition at Petaluma General Hospital with multiple cuts and bruises. California Highway Patrol said his car jumped a ditch and went into an embankment.

Innocent Plea

know what was going on. That's why I car deal with it."

From Los Angeles, Nixon goes to New York City today for what his aides said would be a "victory celebration" at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. He voted by absentee ballot last wek.

Just as Humphrey got a question about what Nixon said on the GOP telethon, the Republican nominee got one about a Humphrey telethon remark. The Democrat contended that a Nixon economic adviser had talked about a possible 1969 increase in unemployment because of the need to combat inflation.

When asked about this, Nixon contended that a Humphrey economist had made such a statement and added, referring to his Democratic rival, "Boy, he really is getting confused."

Questions asked of Nixon during his four-hour telethon over the NBC network were phoned from all parts of the nation to 100 telephone operators in the TV studio. After being screened, they were read to Nixon by former Oklahoma football coach Bud Wilkinson.

Vietnam figured repeatedly in questions relayed to Nixon.

Contending that prospective peace talks "came apart at the seams" a few days ago, Nixon said the bomb halt did not stop Communist shelling of cities in the South nor the flow of military supplies from the North. Asserting that President Johnson had relied, in preparing for the halt, on "a team of men who are tired," Nixon said:

"This pause would have been better prepared had we had a fresh team in there."

He said that if there's no peace before Inauguration Day, "I'll bring in a new diplomatic team and we will end this war."

their ballots when they received them, but found that the prepunched holes simply designated the number of their precinct.

At San Rafael's Sun Valley School, 120 of the 240 registered voters at that precinct had voted by late morning. Other San Rafael figures were 157 of 475 at City Hall and 132 of 500 at Terra Linda High School.

At Ross School, 185 of 575 registered voters had balloted by late morning.

The number of registered voters at each precinct includes voters who already have voted by absentee ballot, so the percentage voting is even higher than it appears.

In Fairfax, 176 of 650 had voted at the fire house, 145 of 600 at Deer Park School, and 124 of 526 at Fairfax Central School.

In Sausalito, the figures were 177 of 450 at Campbell Hall, 141 of 600 at City Hall, 136 of 450 at Sausalito Nursery School, 172 of 600 at Star of the Sea Catholic Church, and 160 of 550 at the I.D.E.S.S.T. Hall.

In Marin City, 140 of 700 registered at St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church had voted, and 138 of 600 at the Village Baptist Church.

On the Belvedere-Tiburon peninsula, approximately one half the registered voters had voted by 11:30 a.m. Belvedere school reported 150 voters out of 300 registered; Whittaker Hall at St. Steven's Church in Belvedere, 202 out of 438; and at the Belvedere Community Hall, 135 voters out of 419.

In Tiburon, of Reed School 200 out of 438 registered voters had cast their ballots; at Tiburon city Hall, 127 out of the 500 registered.

In the Mill Valley area voting was generally lighter, with 147 out of 503 voters turning out at Tamalpais Valley School; 140 out of 454 voters at Old Mill School; 150 out of 507 voters at Homestead School; and 177 out of 480 voters at the Tamalpais Valley Fire Station No. 1.

In Novato, 20 to 25 per cent of the voters had balloted before 11:30 a.m.

Southern Sonoma County precinct workers reported voting off to a slow start.

Judge Dismisses Marijuana Count

Judge Harold J. Haley of Marin Superior Court yesterday dismissed a felony charge of possessing marijuana lodged against Alfred Conrad Ulmer, 21, of San Anselmo.

The judge ruled that, at Ulmer's preliminary hearing, there was improper identification of he alleged contraband and of Ulmer as the man arrested Sept. 1 after his car overturned in Fairfax.

Teachers Agree To End Walkout

DALY CITY (AP) — Some Some 100 striking Daly City high school teachers returned to their classrooms today after agreeing to suspend temporarily their two-day walkout.

The striking teachers, members of the American Federation of Teachers, warned, however, that they would resume the strike Dec. 5 if there was not sufficient progress in talks with district Supt. Edward Morgan.

Six schools in the Jefferson Union High School District remained open during the strike, manned by some 300 of the 400 district teachers, primarily members of the rival Classroom Teachers Association.

Three Cars Hit; Driver Injured

The California Highway Patrol said cars driven by Schultz and Clarence W. Moniot, 53, of San Francisco, sideswiped and the Schultz car was then hit by one driven by Hans H. Kraemer, 32, of San Francisco.

The accident occurred shortly before 10 p.m. east of Ross Drive.

His case was continued until Nov. 25 to set a date for a jury trial.

MARY L. L. WILLIAMS

OBITUARIES

'Molo' Williams Dies At 73

Mary Lathrop Lowell Williams of Mill Valley, better known as "Molo" to Marin and San Francisco children over the past 30 years, died yesterday at a local convalescent hospital following a brief illness. She was 73.

A talented artist and sculptor, Mrs. Williams, who was also known as "Molly," directed a children's arts and crafts school in San Francisco for 25 years and for the past five years in Mill Valley.

In her Mill Valley shop, located at 10 Locust Avenue, she maintained what she said was the "second best collection" of antique toys in the United States.

A native of Buffalo, N.Y., Mrs. Williams attended the Chicago Art Institute, where she became a student of Charles Mulligan and Gutzon Borglum, designer and sculptor of Mount Rushmore. For Borglum she worked on wax models for the national monument in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

Shortly afterwards, she married Arthur Carter Lowell, a member of the famed James Russell Lowell family. She and her husband lived for several years in Auburn, where he was one of the youngest district attorneys in the state. While in Auburn, Mrs. Williams taught art in the public schools.

In 1938, following her husband's death, she established the Molo Crafts School at Lombard and Baker streets in San Francisco, well attended by children from San Francisco and Marin after regular school hours. The only requirement of attendance was that children finish whatever project they started.

During the summers, Molo took the children on five tours of Europe and on many other trips around the United States so that they could "see the things that are history and will make history."

Highlights of the tours included stops at the world's largest toy store in London and a camel ride in Egypt.

She spent summers and weekends in Tiburon for many years prior to moving to Mill Valley in 1963. Because of poor health, she taught fewer children in recent years but this summer was able to make a final European tour. She returned to her home above the Locust Avenue shop in October.

Last year, she married Alexander E. Williams, her partner in the Molo Crafts school since it was first founded.

She is survived by her husband; a daughter, Elizabeth McKegney of Tiburon; a son, A. C. Lowell of Newport Beach, and five grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Russell and Gooch in Mill Valley.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Grimm; his mother, Mrs. Jeanne Murphy of Petaluma; a daughter, Barbara Jean Beltrametti of Petaluma; three brothers, Kenneth Grimm and Edwin Murphy of Petaluma and Harold Murphy of Santa Rosa.

WILKES JOHNSON

Wilkes Walter Johnson, 60, of 1008 Third Street, Novato, died last night, apparently of a heart attack, while working at the Liquor Mart at 1403 Grant Avenue, according to Novato police.

Johnson, who had a history of heart trouble, was all right when his wife, Minette Louise, telephoned him at 9 p.m. She went to the store at 9:25 p.m. and found his body, according to police.

Johnson was born in Bemidji, Minn., and spent most of his in Madison, Wis. He was a painting contractor for many years until ill health forced him to leave that profession. He then became a real estate dealer in Madison. Johnson moved to Novato in 1962.

He was a member of the painter's union in Madison, and the Grace Lutheran Church in Novato.

Besides his wife, Johnson is survived by a son, Wilkes Louis Johnson of Novato, who is chairman of the Novato Parks and Recreation Commission; a daughter, Mrs. Ardis Suzanne Zimmerman of Santa Rosa, and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato.

She resided at 16 Saunders Avenue.

She had no known immediate survivors.

MILTON PETER RICHARDSON

Milton Peter Richardson, Mill Valley businessman, died yesterday of a heart attack at Marin General Hospital. He was 55.

A native of Wheatland, Sacramento County, Richardson moved to Marin County with his family when he was 5. He was a graduate of San Rafael High School.

He moved to Mill Valley in 1950 where he was employed as manager of Albert's department store (now Mayer's) until 1953 when he became a partner in Bennett's Variety Store at 19 Throckmorton Avenue. He was an active partner in the store's operations until his death.

He was a member of the Mill Valley Rotary Club and Court Marin 1950 of the Independent Order of Foresters. He was also an active member of the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley where he served as choir director.

He is survived by his wife, Ida D. Richardson of Mill Valley; a daughter, Sandra E. Richardson of Mill Valley; a son, Dean Richardson of Hayward; two sisters, Eunice Beeley of Lake Tahoe and Bernice Oliver of Camino, Placer County; a brother, Clair Richardson of San Rafael; and one grandchild.

Wagner summoned a neighbor, Robert Lebakos, and the two broke in the door. Schmidt was lying on the floor.

Wagner said he last saw Schmidt walking in his yard Sunday.

Living A Long, Strong Life

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Ninety-year-old, nearly blind Helen Ward Bloomfield, who lives with a dog and four cats in her Chinese style Sausalito home, is a woman who holds strong, unconventional opinions, and she lives according to her convictions.

With an earthy sense of humor expressed in a continuous stream of poems and witty, racy stories, more appropriate for a magazine like "Playboy" than a family newspaper, she told the story of her life recently.

"Life's little ills annoyed me
When life's little ills were few.
One fly in my pot of ointment put me in an awful stew.
But experience has taught me the infrequent good to prize:
Now I'm thankful for some ointment in my little pot of flies."

Yet Helen Bromfield is not as resigned and tolerant as this might imply, for life's little and not so little frustrations still annoy her, and she says, "If I couldn't cuss in Chinese, I'd explode!"

Some of the most important facts about Mrs. Bromfield are that she was the first white stenographer and the first public stenographer in Hong Kong, she says, and a reporter for many years, traveling all over the world. She had many exciting experiences that included covering the Paris Peace Treaty after World War I.

Attesting to these facts are a faded vanity case crammed with passports used on a number of trips around the world and a pile of old newspaper clippings and magazines. Yellowing, creased pictures show that she was once a Gibson girl-type beauty.

HELEN IS NOT sure whether she was born in Detroit, Mich. or Ohio and is not particularly interested where it was. Orphaned at an early age, she was brought up on a "Godforsaken Ohio farm" by an elderly grandmother. She attended a one-room country school and had little respect for the education offered. She reminisced. "We students used to chant this little ditty:

"O Lord of love, look down from above
Upon these simple scholars.
They hired a fool to teach the school
And paid him forty dollars."

"Later I graduated from the Mountain States Business College in Parkersburg, W. Va.," she went on, "where I learned stenography and typing, and after my grandmother died, I sold the farm for $200 and bought a ticket for Hong Kong, the farthest place from the farm I could think of.

"In Hong Kong I went to the best hotel and for $65 a month got room and four meals a day including afternoon tea — in those days $20 was worth about $100. I noticed after about a week that tourists were always coming in to write letters; so I asked the manager if there was a public stenographer. He said no, and when he agreed to let me try, I bought a second hand machine and was in business. I made lots of money!"

LATER HELEN worked as a stenographer for the American Tobacco Company for eight years in Hong Kong, then deciding she would like to try reporting, she returned to the United States and took courses in shorthand and typing, specializing in speed writing, at Eastman College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

At this point Helen interrupted her reminiscences to express her contempt for young people today who get their education too easily.

"Education isn't something you get as easy as putting cream in your coffee," she said. "You have to go out and scratch for it. In Ohio I used to pick wild blackberries and sell them to a saloon keeper to pay for mine."

Equipped to do reporting, Helen first got a little experience in Shanghai. On one of her many trips she met her husband, an insurance man and was married in Manila in 1911.

"I lived in Manila for a number of years—if you can call it that because I was never home much—and worked as a reporter for the 'Philippine Review'."

It was while she was working in this job that Helen covered the Paris Peace Treaty and had some of her most interesting experiences.

After a divorce she became engaged to Sir Edgar Sengier, manager of the Bank of Belgium.

"He took me to dinner at the home of French premier Georges Clemenceau," she recalled." and I remember telling him a joke he thought was funny.

"I'm a vegetarian, you know, and I asked him if he knew why cannibals had stopped eating missionaries. No, he said—so I recited this:

"I have eaten hostile tribes with the greatest of urbanity.
I have partaken of the yellow, black and brown,
But to eat a missionary is the acme of insanity;
You can't keep a good man down."

THIS ANECDOTE pointed up the strength of one of her convictions, for even at this dinner with the famous statesman she insisted on eating only vegetables. Being a vegetarian is related to her immense love of animals.

"Animals were around millions of years before souls were invented. I'm an atheist," she confessed. "They say God created man in his image, but the real truth is that man created his gods in his own image. What people need is not more religion but more compassion."

Religion was the cause of breaking her engagement to Sir Sengier. "He was a Catholic, and I was an atheist," she said; "So why should I marry him and ruin his life. He never did me any harm."

The Bromfields had one daughter, who, she said, was killed in an accident in 1942, and she doesn't care to talk about that.

The strong-willed old lady is an ardent believer in the cause of population control.

"I was a great friend of Margaret Sanger, a pioneer in birth control," she says. "When I was in the Orient and the Philippines I saw so much of breeding like flies and the resulting misery that I could never forget it."

Hippies are among the superfluous people in the world, she believes.

"If I had my way," she snorted, "I'd do with them the way they did in the French revolution—put them all on a huge barge full of holes and tow it out to sea."

After 1917 Helen Bromfield worked for the Food Administration under Herbert Hoover and in several other governmental departments in Washington, D. C., before settling in Sausalito. Her last job was as a stenographer at Fort Mason in San Francisco, where she worked until she was 77.

With her usual complete candor and lack of pretensions she commented, "All the other said they were secretaries, but I was just a stenographer."

A still better illustration of her complete lack of pretensions, especially cultural ones, was this remark, "I'm not like some people I know who pretend to be so musical because they go to operas. One time they played 'Little Brown Jug,' and I stood up because I thought it was the national anthem."

IN 1930 HELEN Bromfield had a Chinese architect design her present home with its Chinese architecture. The genuine jade green porcelain roof cost as much as all the rest of the house, she says. Many of the furnishings in it are Chinese.

Today she lives there with her pets, Tippie the dog, Mamie Eisenhower her 23-year-old cat and three white Persian cats and manages to get along quite well despite having been nearly blind since the removal of cataracts from both eyes in 1962.

She never gets lonely, she says. She has developed her sense of touch so that she can do some sewing, crocheting and typing of letters to friends all over the world, enclosing with the letters to friends who are cat owners, some of the catnip she grows for her own cats.

A CORNER OF the jade green porcelain roof of her home in Sausalito is seen in this picture of 90-year-old Mrs. Helen Bromfield, who occasionally manages a walk in her garden though she is nearly blind. The house was designed with many Chinese features by a Chinese architect and built in 1930.

THIS PICTURE was taken of Mrs. Helen Bromfield and an officer at Fort Mason in San Francisco on the day she retired at 77 years of age from the last job she held, that of a stenographer at the fort. She holds a goodbye message from co-workers showing her Chinese roof and some of the cats that have been her companions for years.

NEED HOME RELIEF

Swedes Open Battle For Women's Rights

By DAVID ROZENZWEIG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A new battle cry is being heard in the struggle for women's rights. Put simply, it's "emancipate the men!"

A Swedish government report to the United Nations on the status of women says any attempt to give women an equal place in the world without relieving their traditional burden of caring for home and children is doomed.

Thus, the Swedes reckon, husbands should be "emancipated" from their work so they can devote more time to cooking dinner, doing the wash, taking Johnny to the dentist and other housewifely chores.

Undoubtedly this would mean giving most men shorter working hours and educating and encouraging them to take a more active role in parenthood, the report says.

It even goes so far as to note a suggestion voiced in some Swedish quarters that fathers are entitled to leaves of absence from their jobs—with pay—so they can stay at home while their children are young.

"THE GOVERNMENT is well aware that this view appears revolutionary and unrealistic in the eyes of the representatives of many other countries," the Swedes admit. "A growing opinion in Sweden has, however, rallied to its support."

In a country where four out of every 10 workers are women and 70 per cent of its women hold jobs of some sort, the problem of working mothers in Sweden is a burning public issue.

This lively debate, the report says, has fostered a new approach involving a break from the traditional habit of regarding these problems strictly as "women's questions."

"The demand for 'male emancipation' in family life is supported by the results of recent psychological research which have proved that the identification of growing boys become uncertain in a one-sided, mother-dominated home environment," the report says, adding that this leads to "overcompensation expressed in exaggerated agressiveness and may be one explanation of the higher crime rate as compared to girls."

PUBLIC DEMAND has therefore spurred socialist Sweden to do more for families in which both parents work, a practice that is becoming almost normal, the report says. It lists a broad range of family services available to Sweden's population, from all-day nurseries to domestic help supplied by municipalities.

But does it follow that what's good for Sweden is good for the United States.

YES, SAYS MARGARET MEAD, eminent anthropologist, long-time observer of the role of women in American society and editor of a presidential commission report on equal rights for women in the United States.

"As long as we put women in the position of caring for two jobs, it isn't equality at all," she says.

Miss Mead endorses the Swedish approach to working mothers, but believes the problem can't be solved merely by giving husbands more time and responsibility around the house.

As she sees it, the problem is also deeply rooted in the "isolation of the contemporary American family."

Consider the plight of the average family in suburbia, she says. Getting the kids to nursery school or shopping for the family needs can easily entail driving 15 miles. When the kitchen sink springs a leak, it means waiting two weeks for the plumber to come and fearing to venture out for a few

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Only Tony Can Provide Answer To Question Of Former Fiancee

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a girl of 17 with a bad past. I've tried everything from glue to pot to pills, and I didn't stop at necking.

I thought my crowd was out of sight until I met Tony about 13 months ago. We had a long talk that was the changing point of my life. I told him all about myself and he said it didn't matter. I was really happy for the first time — until last week.

We were shopping for wedding rings when we met a fellow Tony hates. I don't know why he hates him so much but when he heard I went around with him, he reacted as never before and yelled, "It's all off!"

I never dated the guy but just rode behind him sometimes on his 'cycle.

I haven't seen Tony since and he hangs up when I call. Nobody will tell me what the feud is about.

Helen, if he forgave me for all the terrible things I did, why can't he understand about the one guy I didn't do anything terrible with? — P.H.

DEAR P.:

Only Tony can answer that question. If he won't, then perhaps he is afraid to. He may hate this fellow because he knows too much — about Tony, not you. (My IGAP — "I'm Guessing Again Perception" — isn't always right, remember.)

Try getting in touch by letter. Set down all the facts on the inside pages, but start with a "hook." Like: "Dear Tony: No matter what, I want you to know I'll understand and be on your side, just as you have always been on mine!"

That should keep him reading! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

My parents are divorced and I live with my mother and seven brothers and sisters. We have strict rules at home: No yelling, no criticizing, no back talk. We aren't supposed to lift our voices, me most of all, because I'm the oldest.

Three weeks ago one of my brothers was quietly aggravating me. They're good at that! I told him politely to stop, and when he didn't I got mad and raised my voice a little. He kept on, and finally I yelled at him and called him a few names. Like a flash, I had the liquid dish detergent squirted in my mouth. It burned and foamed and I sassed my mother back. Which made things a lot worse. I spent the evening in my room, smarting.

Ever since then my temper has been flaring off at everybody. I'm afraid I'll have no friends left if this keeps on, as I take it out on them because I'll really get it if I pop off at home. What has happened to me? — HELPLESS

DEAR HELPLESS:

Your mother's unrealistic rules built up so much pressure you exploded. You keep on boiling over because the pressure continues. And your friends get burned.

But I'll bet you are feeling better all the time! Soon you'll learn to regulate your steam valve — especially if you talk your problem over with a counselor or a few close friends. Perhaps you might even persuade your mother that rigid peace makes nervous, resentful kids. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm 18, and my mother still picks out my clothes. She must get them off the matron's rack as the skirts are below my knees. I can't shorten them! They make me the college odd ball. If you don't agree I should tell her, I'll buy my own with my own money. Please don't print this. — M.H.

DEAR M:

I printed it. Start buying! — H.

BACKSTAGE AT THE OPERA

A group of Sausalito Woman's Club members were invited by Mrs. Kurt Herbert Adler to make a morning tour backstage at the San Francisco Opera and yesterday they accepted the invitation of the wife of the opera company director. Here Mrs. Adler, center, shows Mrs. Frank Kelly, left, and Mrs. E. D. Bronson Jr. some of the tremendous number of wigs used in the current season's productions. Two club groups made the tour yesterday morning, personally escorted by Mrs. Adler.

Women's Rights Seen By Margaret Mead

hours because no one might be home when he arrives. Then it means another week's wait.

"WE HAVE TURNED the modern family into a power plant that is expected to operate entirely under its own steam," she says. "Present methods of organized living in the United States are probably the most wasteful in all of history."

Every 20 or so homes in the typical American suburb should have someone paid to wait around for the plumber or take care of the children when they're sick and both parents are working, she argues.

"Really," she adds, "a chief justice has better things to do that stay up all night with his grandchild or mow the lawn."

The Swedish government report also makes a number of other somewhat controversial points on the women's rights question.

SOME EXAMPLES:

—"The character of matrimony as an institution for the support of women according to the Occidental tradition has become an indirect obstacle to her emancipation in modern industrial society."

—If women are to have full equality, they must assume a greater share of what has traditionally been considered manly obligations, such as trade union and political activity and sharing in the responsibility of providing financial support for the children.

—Women should "not be able to acquire social status and privileges automatically by virture of their husbands' contribution to public life"

Use Large Scale Florals To Raise The Roof In Home

By VIVIAN BROWN

(AP) To create illusions of space take a tip from trendsetting artist-designer Jack Denst. Use large-scale wall decorations.

"The returning vacationist who has enjoyed spacious accommodations is conscious of the limits of his own home or apartment. It is especially true of travelers in Europe who become accustomed to 10 or 12-foot ceiling heights."

Denst suggests a single large scale floral or an important vertical stripe of florals to draw the eye to that single decoration and endow the rest of the room with an expansive air. A mural, tapestry or large painting, will also achieve this effect.

A designer of award-winning wall coverings, Denst says stripes can help lift the roof in a small room.

He advises travelers not to overload their home with foreign acquisitions, but to limit collections to three basic colors. Denst restricts his own collection of art pieces to subjects executed in black, white or actual wood, thus enabling him to vary use of objects from time to time while maintaining a decorative balance.

Store those "extra" vacation prizes in a "clutter closet," he suggests, until you can fit them into a room gracefully.

The use of area rugs will also permit a floor level change of scene with rugs alternating to freshen the appearance.

Furniture pieces of different scale, an occasional floor plant instead of a lamp to give an outdoor look to the area are other ideas suggested by Denst for gaining the illusion of more space.

Chewy Bars

Children may like peanut butter caramel bars. Heat 6 cups of puffed wheat in shallow baking pan in preheated 350-degree oven about 10 minutes. Pour into large greased bowl. Melt a 14-ounce package of caramels and ½ cup of water in top of double boiler over hot water; stir occasionally until smooth. Beat in ½ cup of chunk style peanut butter and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Pour over cereal; stir to coat evenly. Press into greased 11 bx 7 inch baking pan. Refrigerate until set; cut into bars. Makes 20 bars.

Giacomini-Wolfe Rite On Treasure Island

Tobias E. Giacomini Jr. wed Sheelah Ann Wolfe Oct. 26 at Our Lady of the Sea Catholic Chapel at Treasure Island.

Capt. (ret.) and Mrs. John P. Wolfe of San Rafael are the bride's parents, and the bridegroom is the son of the senior Tobias E. Giacominis of Point Reyes.

Kati Wolfe of San Francisco was her sister's maid of honor, and Joseph Giacomini was his brother's best man.

A reception at the Officers Club on Treasure Island followed the ceremony.

Sheelah is the sister of Mrs. George Ogden Jr. of Torrance and Kelly, Bridget and John Patrick Wolfe Jr. She is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School, attended Dominican College and is employed by Crocker-Citizens Bank in San Rafael.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of Marin Catholic High School. He is the brother of Mrs. Thomas Nunas of Santa Rosa and Joseph, Carol and Christian Giacomini of Point Reyes and the grandson of Mrs. Rose Poiani of Point Reyes.

Following a wedding trip to Las Vegas, the couple will make their home in Inverness.

Pre-Treat Spots

Stains even on permanent press garments respond to a new pre-treat aerosol laundry product. Apply it to stained or heavily soiled area just before laundering—no need for soaking or rubbing. The manufacturer says the product was developed at the request of the textile industry, plagued by the problem of stain retention of permanent press fabrics. The problem exists because the resins which make the garment hold press also cause it to retain grease or other stains. The new product makes the stains water soluble.

Dessert Dressup

Top off a backyard dinner with an easy-to-make fancy dessert—flaming strawberries. With a potato peeler, remove the skin from an orange, and cut it into small pieces. Cook the orange zest in a skillet or chafing dish blazer pan with 1 cup of orange juice and ½ cup of sugar for 5 minutes. Add 3 cups of fresh strawberries and heat about 1 minute. Remove from heat. In a small pan, heat ¼ cup plus 1 tablespoon of cognac slightly. When the alcohol fumes begin to rise, light with a long match and pour over strawberries. Spoon flaming sauce over berries with long-handled spoon or shake pan gently until flames die. As flames dwindle, pour sauce over a large mound of vanilla ice cream. If desired, peaches, pears or other fruit may replace berries.

Mrs. Burt W. Richardson To Head Children's Home Society Chapter

The Tom Thumb Chapter of the Children's Home Society is headed by Mrs. Burt Wilson Richardson, a two-year-member

Impulse Buying

Careful planning can reduce unnecessary trips to the food store and it can guard against impulse buying, both of which can add to the cost of your family's groceries. Shopping alone rather than with another member of the family helps keep down impulse buying, too.

Tonight, between 9 and midnight, election results will be brought to you on KTIM (1510 AM & 100.9 FM) by Strawberry Town & Country Village.

Wednesday Fashion Luncheons have returned to Inn Marin. Showtime is 12:30 and reservations are suggested.

Lots of ideas for lovely holiday table settings at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP. I especially like the fat Zarape candles in three sizes, all with subtle stripes of fall colors. And, of course, candle wreaths in autumn designs are very much in evidence. All the wreaths at FIESTA CANDLE SHOP are stunning but, my favorite includes small velvet fruit in a warm burnt orange (no pun intended) nestled on dark green velvet leaves. Pretty!

It's "that time" again, honey . . . and CAPRICORN BOOKS has stocked their usual fine collection of books of Christmas cards . . . cards that are sure to be noticed and appreciated. (Of course, they offer imprinting services but don't wait too long for this. Their cards are very popular and the waiting list tends to get crowded.) Lots of "special interest" books an sale now at CAPRICORN BOOKS . . . children's books, beautiful adult gift books, etc. Take advantage!

Chris Gartman, congenial owner of The HICK'RY PIT, tells me his popular Business Man's Lunch and Merchant's Lunch are now being served every week day. Both of these lunches are a darned good deal . . . a hearty meal at a remarkably low price. The Business Man's Lunch features choice of barbecued sandwich, homemade pie or cake and coffee or tea. And, offering a different hot entree every day, the Merchant's Lunch also includes a vegetable and beverage. Be sure to try The HICK'RY PIT homemade mince meat pie . . . not mince pie, but mince meat pie. There is a very tasty difference . . . ask Chris to tell you about it!

LUNCHEON SPECIALS EVERY WEEKDAY!

If visions of sugarplums are starting to run through your head, turn visions into striking holiday arrangements and decorations with the help of ALBERTA OF MARIN. There are free demonstrations each Tuesday that let you watch these fabulous creations being made, and classes for same each Thursday.

Great new towel by Springmaid at THE GOLDEN CHERUB. This is the "black eyed Susan" design and available in four colors. If you are color-coordinated-minded, this lovely little bath boutique is for you. Ferinstance, their collection of wicker bath accessories in three looked-for colors . . . waste baskets, stools, shelves, towel rings (see these!) and hampers. Mix and match to your heart's content (to say nothing of creating a unique decor all your own)!

Well, now, just take a peek at the new luncheon item on the menu at KUBLAI KHAN. This oh-so-attractive restaurant is offering a steak sandwich, shoestring potatoes, salad and garlic bread for $1.85. and I say "offering" advisedly! Said steak sandwich is your choice of petite filet mignon, New York cut, or Chateaubriand!

Lots of news over at INN MARIN. The popular Fashion Luncheons have reappeared each Wednesday at 12:30 (and I do mean popular! Reservations are suggested.) Besides a completely new menu, with very agreeable prices, INN MARIN offers dancing to the lilting tunes of The Eastman Trio starting at 9:30 Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. And, for a really wild scene, catch the breakfast show, with discotheque dancing, at 2:30 A.M. on Saturday and Sunday. Like I said, gang, "news" and all of it good!

A toast of The Bubbly (or a good cry in your beer) whatever the occasion may call for, VILLAGE LIQUORS is ready to help. This shop carries an extraordinary selection of fine domestic and imported wines and, should you be a bit unschooled in this department, just ask Dan . . . he'll be glad to give you expert advice. For the "crying towel crowd" try VILLAGE LIQUORS' tapper size keg of beer. It's enough for the whole group to commiserate and then start planning for the next election. Cheers!

Holiday season is in full swing at that charming Hallmark haven, ROJEAN'S CARD & PARTY SHOP. More attractive than ever, if that's possible, this year's Hallmark paper party things for Thanksgiving offer several designs. In paper plates (choice of sizes) napkins (likewise) coasters, cups, invitations and place cards I found traditional Pilgrim and turkey designs plus a new-comer. This is a mustardy gold color printed with autumn leaves and fruit. Lots of fold-out decorations, too, in centerpiece size or for individual place settings.

Stunning handbags at THE SANDAL. As you might expect, they are of the finest leathers and many in this season's favorite, hand polished waxhide. Awfully good looking leather jewelry here too in the form of watch bands, barettes, et al. And, natcherly, boots, boots, boots!

"Snoopy for President!"
signed: Love, from MUTTS OF MARIN!

Hey, gang, RANCHO RAVIRI features the complete Mission Pack line this year. No need to go into too much detail about these famous gift packs of fruits, cheeses, etc. except to say that if you haven't discovered these delectables, you are missing a treat (and so are many friends on your gift list). RANCHO RAVIRI will take care of all the shipping details for their Mission Packs and offer nicely varied prices ranging from $1.98 to $8.95.

Louis Reimer, Master Chef, and ruler of the range at L'ENTREE tells me there are a few choice dates open with his catering service for holiday parties. This complete, and realistically priced, service is very popular, so don't dawdle, dear. Also, in the think-ahead-department, I like to keep a number of L'ENTREE casserole dinners on hand in the freezer for those inevitably exhausted evenings after Christmas shopping days. These casseroles are really dinner entrees and go from L'ENTREE to the oven or the freezer in their original container. Handy and simply delicious!

Tam Board Sets Candidates' Night

The Tamalpais High School District board last night scheduled a candidates' night at 8 p.m. Nov. 12 so that not only the district's teachers but other interested people may hear views of those seeking a vacancy on the board.

On Monday, the Tamalpais District Teachers Association asked the board for representation at private interviews of candidates for appointment to fill out the two and one-half years remaining of the term of trustee John C. Siemens, who resigned.

Trustees Berton C. Jacobsen and William D. Lewis, who had earlier expressed opposition to the candidates' night which was proposed by board President Gloria W. Melbostad, agreed to the idea after Mrs. Melbostad assured them it wouldn't be "a carnival."

Mrs. Frances Compton, a League of Women voters member, agreed to act as moderator for the candidates night or find a substitute if she was not available.

Trustee Lewis said he did not feel the public meeting was a substitute for private interviews of the candidates by the board, and other trustees agreed with him. Nov. 13 was selected for a special meeting to interview candidates privately.

In answering the teachers' request, Mrs. Melbostad agreed with members of the audience who said that teachers should not be represented at private interviews and more than any other group should.

A fifth name was added to the list of those seeking the vacant trustee position as trustees learned that Rev. Willard Frederickson, pastor of the San Geronimo Community Church, had written asking that he be considered.

Other candidates are George C. Stone of Fairfax, Brice Pace of Fairfax, David D. Ring of Tiburon and Frank L. Miller of Greenbrae.

Deadline for filing for the position is 5 p.m. Thursday.

In other action last night the trustees accepted a project construction cost estimate for Tiburon High School of $5,278,000, upon which architects' fees will be charged.

The action came after Trustee Lewis found a $100,000 mistake in arithmetic in figures submitted by the administration. (The mistake was in favor of the district, not the architects.)

In August the board allocated a total of $6,272,888 for the school, which will be built if the district's bond issue in today's election passes.

The board last night also discussed briefly the planned evaluation of the district and superintendent by a management firm and set Nov. 18 as the date for reviewing names of such firms.

The Tamalpais High School Board Also:

GRANT — Approved a $1,000 grant for a research project in a class for educationally handicapped youngsters at Sir Francis Drake High School.

BUS — Learned of a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the district office of the transportation study group which is considering the problem of transporting students from Marin City to Tamalpais High School.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Joan Thompson, district clerk.

LEAVE — Granted a leave of absence for the rest of the school year to Jean Krutman, nurse at Tamalpais High School.

50 Pct. Return Transit Cards

More than 50 per cent of commuters who received questionnaires last Wednesday at the Golden Gate Bridge Toll Plaza returned the cards, Gen. Mgr. Seymour Kaskin of the Marin Transit District announced yesterday.

Questionnaires are designed to give the transit district information on where commuters live and their destination in San Francisco.

A total of 254 cards were distributed in a trial test. A full-scale distribution of 30,000 questionnaires is scheduled for Nov. 13 between 6 and 9 a.m.

Greyhound Posts Fare Schedules

Greyhound Bus Co. has posted new fare schedules in depots and on buses in preparation for the 4 per cent fare increase which takes effect Saturday. The increase was granted last month by the State Public Utilities Commission.

Typical increases for commuters to San Francisco will be from 55 to 60 cents one-way from Sausalito; from 85 to 90 cents one-way and $12 to $12.50 for a 20-ride book from San Rafael, Manor, Tiburon and Belvedere; from 70 to 75 cents and $11 to $11.45 from Mill Valley and Corte Madera.

The new hike follows a 6 to 8 per cent increase of Sept. 1 for commute fares.

Basque Festival Dancers To Perform

Dancers of the Olaeta Basque Festival of Bilbao will perform at 8 p.m. Nov. 14 in Angelico Hall at Dominican College of San Rafael.

The troupe of 20 also includes singers and instrumentalists who present folk culture of the Basque provinces of the Western Pyrenees.

At the age of 14, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States, was secretary of the American Legation in Russia.

Warm Springs Road Segment Is Completed

The first segment of road relocation at the Warm Springs Dam near Cloverdale has been completed, the Army Corps of Engineers reported to the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors yesterday.

Col. Frank C. Boerger, the corps' district engineer said $5 million has already been spent on the $74 million project, mostly in design studies. He said 2,274 acres of property has been acquired. "Restrictions on funds have delayed purchase of more lands this year, but we will have acquired 17,440 acres by the end of 1971," he said.

Colonel Boerger set late 1975 as the completion date. He said 27 miles of roads will be relocated including two bridges, six miles of access roads, power and telephone lines and several cemeteries.

The Sonoma County Board of Supervisors also:

SALARY SCHEDULES — Appointed a four-man committee representing the county administrator's office and civil service commission to conduct a survey of salary schedules of neighboring counties and businesses. They asked the surveys begin in the fall of each year and a salary schedule recommendation be presented to the board the first week in January for adoption by Jan. 31. The schedule will go into effect on July 31.

PROPERTY SALE — Approved the Dec. 7 sale of 1.5 acres of land on Lakeville Highway, Petaluma, near the site of a planned boat launching ramp.

Chamber Urges Petaluma Delay Library Action

Directors of the Petaluma Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to request city council to withhold action on merging the city library with the county library system.

Director Clyde A. Nelson asked delay until the directors can meet with the library trustees in a study session and form an opinion. City council was scheduled to consider adoption of the merger plan at last night's session.

The library board had requested the merger, saying it would improve services without raising costs.

The Petaluma Chamber directors also:

DIRECTOR — Appointed Milt Whitt, former chamber president, to the board of directors. Whitt, proprietor of the Harmony Music store, replaces James Williams, who resigned last month due to business pressures.

MEMBERSHIP — Appointed a three-man committee to organize a membership drive. Named were Jules Fisher, chairman; Owen Fredericks and Theodore Adkins.

CALENDAR — Appointed a committee to establish a calendar arrangement for the new-events sign that will be added to the welcome sign on the north and south boundaries of the city on Highway 101. Named to the committee were James McCaffrey, Chairman; Rolin Rea, Richard Schollenberger and Lloyd Burlingham.

New U.C. Alliance Sets Strike Call

BERKELEY (AP) — The controversy over lectures by Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver at a University of California course on racism has led to formation of a new coalition of white and minority student protest groups.

Announcing formation of the New World Alliance yesterday, Gene Goldenfeld said it grew out of the Cleaver dispute and its main concern is "racism and who controls the university."

The alliance announced plans to call for a student strike vote tomorrow.

In the new organization are organizations of white, Negro, Mexican American and American Indian students. A common aim is more minority group students and university employees and an expanded curriculum in minority areas.

CONCERT REVIEW

Maestro Unveils His Latest, As Farewell

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

First performance of Maestro Vincenzo Giannini's latest work in the faculty concert of San Domenico School in Sleepy Hollow yesterday afternoon also marked his farewell, for he is returning to his native Italy today.

Giannini, who has been director of the San Domenico singers four years, composed the musical settings of three D. H. Lawrence poems and one by Keats on commission from the school last summer and conducted the premiere himself.

The settings were very interesting compositions in eclectic contempory idiom with each of the instruments having individual commentary on the theme of each poem. But soprano Marian Marsh's superb singing of the extremely difficult vocal line covering very wide intervals throughout a wide register and requiring a variety of tonal colors was so outstanding that it gave her solo stature.

The other skilled performers were pianist Faith France, chairman of the music department; violinist Frances Shorr, violist Lucien Mitchell, cellist Jean Mitchell and flutist Frank Barbaria. Several hearings of the work would be needed to appreciate the contribution of each.

Another fascinating original work in contemporary style was pianist-composer Ronald McFarland's Suite No. 1 consisting of a chorale, burlesque and fugue. Though intricate, it had considerable youthful charm, especially the burlesque.

So far out has avant-garde music gone that Giannini's and McFarland's compositions, depite much dissonance, sounded almost conservative, especially to students of the now generation. San Domenico is to be commended for programming such works, since young people are more able to accept new sounds and will provide audiences for today's composers.

Discussion of their selections by performers before they were played has a good idea, making for clarity and better understanding.

In addition to being involved with original compositions, the San Domenico faculty musicians are busy performing musicians, which helps to avoid pedantry.

The remainder of the concert introduced the newest faculty members, two young pianists, Karen Glosserman and Carol Liebling. Miss Liebling, who specializes in professional accompanying, showed that she is gifted in that special art in performance of Schumann's Fantasy Piece No. 1 with Frank Barbaria playing the flute

Miss Glosserman played Brahms' Intermezzo in B Flat Major and Capriccio in C Sharp Minor, playing the former expressively and the latter with some brilliance.

Car Overturns, Injuring Two

Two persons were injured at 12:35 a.m. today when their car overturned on Highway 101 south of Sierra Avenue, Petaluma.

Vernon V. Vogle, 48, of 43 Burlington Drive, Petaluma, was reported in satisfactory condition at Petaluma General Hospital with facial lacerations. His passenger, Carol Ann Evans, 39 of Santa Rosa, was treated for injuries to the right elbow and left foot.

California Highway Patrol said the car ran off the roadway, struck a drain pipe and overturned throwing both from the car.

Harp Quintet Will Perform Thursday

The Lyra Harp Quintet, composed of Joel Andrews of Mill Valley, and four young women, will present a concert Thursday at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts at 8:30 p.m.

Andrews not only performs but composes and arranges for the harp. He has appeared in solo with harp and flute and with orchestras, with Mill Valley poet James Broughton in "The Bard and the Harpist," and with several dance groups. He teaches at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

The other four harpists are Melanie Clark, Terry Grassi, Rebecca Jewel and Alussa Hess. All have played the harp since childhood and have performed in concerts. Miss Clark and Miss Jewel appeared with Andrews in an ensemble program in the Cushing Memorial Amphitheater on Mount Tamalpais in 1965.

The program will include works by Bach, Ravel and Mendelssohn and will cover the full range of harp music, ending with "Popular Fantasy," a harp treatment of several popular airs by Andrews.

The concert is sponsored jointly by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts and the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Department.

Parking Limit On Larkspur's Council Agenda

Request by a dozen merchants that parking be limited to two hours on Magnolia Avenue in north Larkspur will be considered at the 8 p.m. meeting tomorrow of the Larkspur City Council.

City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst said the restriction would be from the north end of Hillview Gardens to Estelle Avenue —a distance of about half a mile — on both sides of Magnolia until the widening of Magnolia is completed in about two years.

At present there is not time limit for parking on either side.

The council also is scheduled to go into a closed session with the city attorney to discuss litigation on acquisition of a small parcel at College Park and Magnolia Avenue. The land is owned by Mrs. Betsy Michaelson and has been condemned by the city for widening the intersection.

Kentfield Firemen To Attend School

The Kentfield Fire District Board last night approved sending 18 fireman to Marin County's oil fire school in San Rafael Nov. 23-24.

The school is sponsored by the Marin County Fire Training Officers Association. The board also approved the purchasing for another year of bulk motor oil and supplies from Standard Oil Co. in Marin County.

Greenland occupies an area of 840,000 square miles.

TREES MAKE WAY FOR CARS

A barren vista meets the eye at the northern entrance to San Rafael, where stately trees have gone before the bulldozer in a widening project on Highway 101. Looking south toward the Mission Avenue off-ramp, nothing remains of the once proud stand of eucalyptus and other trees and the many buildings along the west side of the highway. Burning Ban Ends In Some Marin Areas

The summer ban on open burning ended today in unincorporated areas of the county and in 11 fire districts.

Open burning will be permitted from 7 a.m. to noon for residents of one and two-family dwellings without obtaining a permit in the county fire department jurisdiction, Chief Louis J. Bloom said. Open burning is banned elsewhere by air pollution regulations.

The only fires permitted after noon will be agricultural burning, Bloom said.

Following the same policies are Larkspur, Kentfield, Sausalito, Tamalpais Valley, Stinson Beach, Bolinas, Ross, Nicasio, Marinwood and Novato.

The same hours, 7 a. m. to noon, will be observed in Mill Valley, Alto, Tiburon, San Rafael and Terra Linda. However, a permit is required in each of those jurisdictions.

San Anselmo will allow open burning from 7 to 11 a.m. with a city permit. Corte Madera, where a permit is also required, will allow burning from 6 to 11 a.m.

In Belvedere, burning will be permitted from 7 to 11 a.m. daily except Sundays and holidays.

Fairfax was to announce its hours later.

Fairfax Board Supports Stone

The Fairfax School District board last night voted to support the candidacy of one of its trustees, Dr. George C. Stone, for the Tamalpais High School District board.

Dr. Stone, a clinical psychologist is one of five persons seeking the seat on the high school board which was vacated by Dr. John C. Siemens.

In other action the board agreed to resurvey the line between White Hill School and the property of Arthur Bell. Bell has asked the school district not to build a fence until the line is established.

The trustees learned that the district's enrollment has dropped from 1,140 to 1,122 since school started.

Jury Selection Starts For Novotny, Arceo

Jury selection began today in the murder trial of Dennis C. Novotny and John Arceo in Marin Superior Court before Judge Thomas F. Keating.

Novotny, 22, and Arceo, 31, are charged in the death of Wesley L. Marshall of San Rafael, who died Jan. 6, a month after he was beaten and robbed in his home.

A third accused, Claude (Frenchy) LeBas, has pleaded guilty to the murder charge and is now serving a life sentence.

Deputy Dist. Attorney Joshua W. Thomas indicated he would call approximately 25 witnesses, including LeBas, in the case. Defense attorneys said they would call four witnesses for Arceo, including his wife, and four for Novotny.

Judge Keating excused 16 persons from the 65-member panel before attorneys began questioning and selection. He indicated the jury might be chosen in time to start the prosecution case Friday.

Both defendants were calm and well-dressed at the opening session, Novotny dapper in green jacket and brown trousers. Arceo, who wore a gray suit, resembled a junior executive while Novotny looked like a young man ready for a Friday night date.

Friese Named Deputy In Marin Schools

Stanley H. Friese, present assistant superintendent for educational services for the Marin County Schools office, last night was named by the county board of education to the post of deputy superintendent.

He replaces Charles E. McCully, effective Jan. 1. McCully has been hired as superintendent of the newly formed Shoreline Unified School District.

The board also named Robert E. Spain, coordinator of the instructional materials center, to take Friese's present post. No salary change is involved in either appointment, Friese said. He said the coordinator's position will be filled in the near future.

Friese, 50, has been assistant superintendent for five years. He and his wife, Sue, reside at 3 Eagle Drive, Novato. They have one daughter.

The County Board of Education also:

COUNCIL — Established a nine-member negotiating council to be composed of eight members of the California Teachers Association and one member of the American Federation of Teachers.

CLASSES — Established two classes for educationally handicapped pupils of Southern Marin. The portable classrooms will be located at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School in the Larkspur School District.

CERTIFICATES — Approved the issuance of 20 temporary teaching certificates and 20 life teaching diplomas.

Later Sausalito Curfew Asked

The City-County Services Committee agreed last night to suggest to Sausalito that its 10 p.m. weekday curfew for youths be extended to 11 p.m.

Asst. County Administrator Thomas F. Campanella reported that Sausalito is the only city in the county which has a 10 p.m. curfew.

The Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission has recommended a uniform curfew law for the entire county, and relaxation of curfew on weekends.

The committee decided to ask the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen to consider curfew relaxation on weekends.

The committee also asked Asst. County Administrator John F. Barrows to get information on the costs of setting up a central crime laboratory for Marin. Barrows will report at the next meeting, scheduled for Dec. 2.

Many Seeking Library Post

Numerous applications have been received for the position of librarian, and an interview board will be set up later this month, the Sausalito Library Board decided last night according to Librarian Kay Bertau, who was unable to say how many have applied.

Mrs. Berteau will be leaving Friday. Janet Gartner, children's librarian, will be acting librarian and Margaret Georgetti will continue in charge of circulation.

The board accepted an etching by Max Pollak of Sausalito. The gift, presented by Pollak and Mrs. B. W. Ansell, was in memory of the late Dr. Fred M. Tetzlall.

Carpets Taken

The theft of two carpets valued at $175 from 948 Lea Drive, San Rafael, was reported yesterday by Mal Hann, project manager of the Meadows apartment development, police said. The theft occurred between Friday and yesterday, Hann told police.

San Marin High Set For Students

San Marin High School in Novato will be ready for students when Thanksgiving vacation ends on Dec. 2, Supt. James G. Bunker told the Novato Unified School District board last night.

Furniture is being moved into the administration building, library and the large classroom wing, Bunker said. Next week, the science wing will be ready, he said. The shops, which have been used for storage, and the gymnasium will take two or three more weeks to complete, he estimated.

Shops should be ready at mid-December and the gymnasium a week later, he said.

The board approved change orders for $1,575 for the high school.

The Novato Unified School District board also:

READING — Received a report that in the Stanford reading test given in the first grades last May, Novato ranked above the state average in all three grades.

SPEECH TESTING — Heard from speech therapists Barbara Hoadley and Penelope Wayte, that the testing of kindergarten children for speech defects for the past three years has shown these defects early and much progress has been made in correction. Results of these tests and testing methods will be made available to other schools in Marin County, partially paid for by the Babcock Foundation.

GIFTS — Accepted gifts of $1,560 made four years ago by the Marin County Insurance Agents Association for driver training, which will now be used for that, and of $500 from the Loma Verde Homeowners Association for playground equipment for Loma Verde School.

BALL — Gave permission for the Class of 1969 at Novato High School to hold its senior ball at the Hilton Hotel in San Francisco.

RESIGNATIONS — Received a report from Deputy Supt. Ralph Giovanniello that Novato had 12.6 per cent teacher turnover last year and 12.3 per cent the previous year. This is about average for the Bay Area, he said.

Zucker Asks Statement Retraction

County Planning Director Paul C. Zucker has demanded that the Independent-Journal retract statements made by supervisorial candidate Louis H. (Bud) Barr last week that Zucker is incompetent.

Baar made the statement in a campaign appearance on Radio Station KTIM's Sounding Board program Thursday. The broadcast was covered by the Independent-Journal and an account of it published in the Thursday evening paper.

Baar said he would definitely recommend a new planning director if elected as supervisor from the fourth district. He said, "Mr. Zucker is incompetent in his job."

Baar faulted Zucker as making additions to his staff "because he can't answer the questions."

Zucker called the statements "totally untrue as well as irresponsible."

Tools Taken

Pneumatic tools, valued at $263, were stolen from the Shell service station on Highway 101 and Olive Avenue Friday or Saturday, owner William D. Parker reported yesterday to Novato police.

Dry Spell Is Awaited For Novato Park Work

If there is a dry spell, remaining drainage can be installed in Pioneer Memorial Park in Novato before heavy winter rains set in, Edward W. Adams, parks and recreation director, last night reported to the Novato Parks and Recreation Advisory Commission.

A portion of the drainage has already been installed. The city has the pipe and if the ground dries up enough so that it can be trenched, then the remainder of the drainage will be installed, Adams said. If it does not, then the city will have to wait until spring to complete it, he said.

Parks, Recreation Advisory Commission Also:

REPORT — Heard a report fromA Adams that the recreation department had 13,995 in attendance at recreation functions in October, 4,728 more than the 9,267 in October last year.

MASTER PLAN — Studied the master plan for parks and agreed that it would take at least two more study sessions before any changes could be made. It set Nov. 17 to take an all-day tour of the park sites in the city.

LITTLE LEAGUE — Heard Adams report that Little League Inc. had offered to purchase, but not set a price, on 2.17 acres at the Rancho School site from the Novato Unified School District. The little league field is built on this parcel of land.

House Ransacked In San Anselmo

Burglars yesterday looted a San Anselmo home of several items including two typewriters, a camera, and shotgun, police reported today.

Mrs. Harry D. Ballard, 90 Spring Grove Avenue, said entry was by forcing a kitchen door. She said the intruders ransacked several rooms, also taking a small amount of jewelry and cash, two clock radios, and an electric adding machine.

A value estimate of the loss was not given.

Cotati Planners Set Hearing On Station

A public hearing on a proposed service station will be held by the Cotati Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Cotati Elementary School.

The design of the station at Gravenstein Highway at Santa Rosa Avenue will also be reviewed along with two office buildings at 8000 and 7885 Redwood Highway.

Welfare Leaflet Proposed

The Marin Welfare Rights Organization last night agreed to investigate the possibility of including a leaflet about the organization with welfare checks.

Members will discuss the leaflet's distribution with Betty Presley, director of the Marin County Department of Public Social Services, president Mary Brooks said.

The group also agreed to prepare a report of the organization to be sent to the board of supervisors in January along with the conclusions of the Welfare Task Force which is studying problems of people on welfare at the request of the county, Mrs. Brooks said.

A soul food dinner project the group is planning to raise funds was also discussed, Mrs. Brooks said. Dinner orders will be taken from 11 a.m. Nov. 15 and 16 on a pick-up or delivery basis from the Brooks home, 131 Drake Avenue, Marin City.

Mrs. Brooks reported four more persons joined last night. The next meeting will be at 8 p.m. next Monday at the Economic Opportunity Council office in Marin City.

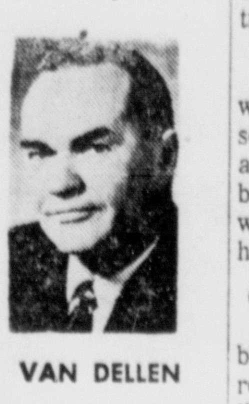
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Hardening Arteries Detected In Variety Of Ways Nowadays



VAN DELLEN

O.I.D. writes: "How does the physician determine when a person has hardening of the arteries?"

The retinal vessels are easily seen by looking into the eye with an ophthalmoscope. Arteriosclerotic vessels are rather tortuous with a corkscrew appearance. Wherever a hardened artery crosses a soft vein, the latter appears to be indented or nicked. A diagnosis of arteriosclerosis can be made in this situation, but absence of hardening of the retinal arteries does not mean that vessels elsewhere in the body are not thickened.

X-RAYS OF the chest, abdomen, or extremities offer reliable evidence. Thickened and tortuous vessels are demonstrated on the film, especially when there is calcium in the walls. The arterial tree also is visible via arteriography. A radiopaque dye is injected into the artery and continuous (movie) X-rays are taken. An arteriogram shows whether the vessel is normal, narrowed, or obstructed. Arterosclerotic changes usually are far more advanced than the X-ray indicates.

The physician assumes that arteriosclerosis exists in older people and most of us probably have a patch here or there. Traces have been found in postmortem examinations on infants and teen-agers. So long as the vessel remains open there is a good possibilty that blood will flow through a thickened artery for many decades without the slightest trouble.

MOST HEART ATTACKS stem from blockage of an arteriosclerotic coronary artery. This is true especially of persons suffering an attack of coronary thrombosis or angina pectoris.

These symptoms are indirect evidence that the condition exists. We also know that the coronary arteries are most susceptible to the hardening process. As a result, they may be involved long before those of the brain, eye, kidneys, or limbs.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

OLYMPIC SEX TESTS

W. writes: What are these sex tests given to female (or allegedly female) athletes who particiapte in the Olympics? Can't the judges tell by obvious signs?

REPLY

These are chromosome tests involving the secretions obtained from cells usually on the inside of the mouth. The external signs are not so obvious, especially when these persons have a genetic defect. Some are classified as pseudo or real hermaphrodites and are participating as females when they really are males.

CONGESTED TISSUES

A reader writes: What is congestive heart failure?

REPLY

This is another name for dropsy due to heart disease. The failing heart is unable to meet the demands of the body. In congestive failure, the tissues in the legs, liver, and lungs became waterlogged (congested). Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on generalized dropsy.

HEART ACTION RECORDS

A reader writes: After a coronary, how long does it take for changes to show up on the electrocardiogram?

REPLY

From minutes to days. This is why physicians recommend several electrocardiograms for an individual with chest pain before reaching a decision on whether coronary thrombosis has occurred.

GIVES UP 100 GALLSTONES

Mrs. I. T. writes: My gall bladder that was recently removed contained 100 stones. Is this a lot?

REPLY

Yes, but you have not broken any records.

Today's Health Hint — A cheerful attitude lightens cares.

'SLIGHTLY' DIABETIC

A reader writes: I have a slight case of sugar in the blood. Will anti-diabetic pills help?

REPLY

They may, but the expression "a slight case of" always baffles me. If you have mild diabetes, diet with or without these pills may bring the disease under control. There are tests to determine whether these tablets will help you.

FAINTING AND JITTERS

J. L. writes: My sister, who is a very nervous person, has fainting spells. There is nothing physically wrong with her. Could jitteriness be causing these spells?

REPLY

Yes. In the past, fainting among high-strung women was very stylish and considered a sign of femininity.

FLAVANOIDS USELESS

O. N. writes: Have any conclusions been made regarding the effect of flavanoids on the common cold?

REPLY

The exaggerated claims made about these products have not materialized.

A HANDSHAKE TO START—At the start of each day's class, pupils reply to Natalie Lenn's "Where's Kevin?" (or Paula or Robbie Jo) by answering "Here I am," then shaking hands with the teacher when she asks. Mrs. Lenn is showing Paula Tomko how the handshake works, while (from left) Kevin Little, Janice O'Donnell, Kimberly Mihan and Robbie Jo Rishel watch. (Independent-Journal Photos by Jim Kean)

ALL ABOUT CATS—Jerrald Lehmann is all burning attention as teacher's assistant Sally Reilly shows him a toy cat to go along with the pictures and cutouts of cats in front of him.

Cracking The Tots' Sound Barrier

By ALAN JONES

"Now let's brush our teeth," the teacher said, demonstrating with a toothbrush. The pair of 2-year-old boys obediently raised their brushes, but one of them preferred to brush his tongue instead of his teeth.

In the next room, three children followed another teacher's instructions as she told them to stand, hop, jump, run, and clap hands.

It looked like an ordinary nursery school class except for one thing — each of the children, not quite 3 years old, wore a hearing aid in one ear.

These are the children of the 1965 rubella epidemic which swept the West Coast, and each of the 12 has had seriously impaired hearing from birth.

They are enrolled in Marin County's pioneering early education program for children from 18 to 36 months old, intended to help them use whatever hearing they have, to teach them speech reading (lip reading) and other techniques so they can speak normally, "hear" better and prepare for a more normal life.

With the amazing adaptability and eagerness to learn which children have, the group seems perfectly normal now to the casual observer, except for signs like the hearing aids and their learned habit of watching the teachers' lips to help understanding.

The children have their special program, the first in the state in a public school system, because their parents fought for it.

A state law authorizing the early education program was passed in 1967, and the class started April 1 this year. But just 10 days later, the county's special education office was notified that the law had omitted any funding for the program, so no state money was available.

The 11 mothers (one has twin boys in the program), who formed a group called Parents of Early Education-Deaf Children, besieged State Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, and Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, for corrective legislation.

Meantime, the parents went to the Marin County Board of Education and asked for county funding if state money was withheld. The county board agreed in August to fund the program through June, 1969.

A few days later, McCarthy's bill to fund the program was signed into law, and the county was told it will be repaid for any extra costs that had gone into the program earlier.

Program costs for this fiscal year will be approximately $1,200 per child or $14,500, Rudolph S. Kupfer, county supervisor of special education, said. Most of the sum is in teaching salaries. Kupfer said state aid will pay the bulk of the cost, but a precise county-state cost breakdown is not available because the aid formula is computed for all physically handicapped classes together.

Similar programs are now planned in San Jose, Ceres, and Shasta County.

The parents' part of the program didn't end with their successful lobbying for state funds. Home visits and in-class observation by parents are major parts of the training.

During the three-hour morning classes, the mothers watch through portable one-way mirrors set up in doorways to the classrooms, which are the Sunday school rooms of Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

In the classrooms, two teachers and two teachers' assistants each take three children aside for intensive auditory training and speech and language development.

"It is remarkable that they can sit still and listen so long at a time," said Kupfer. Most young children cannot keep still for any length of time, but in these children the intense desire to learn overcomes their restlessness.

They must sit still to keep their eyes on the teacher, to watch her lips, see her gestures and objects she is handling.

The teachers help by making the training as active as possible. The children learn to understand and to speak the words "jump," "run," "hop," "fall down" and "sit" by acting them out, which helps syphon off their energy.

After the intense language training for the first 90 minutes, the children get a snack break and then go into a more physical part of the program, playing games, marching or walking to music, and drawing pictures. Teachers continue to stress language during the activity.

The class work, although intensive for children so young, is only part of the program. Equally important, Kupfer said, is training the children's parents.

"We can't possibly train the children in just a few hours a week in class," he said. So parents are taught to make every activity part of the speech learning process, 24 hours a day.

The two teachers, Mrs. Natalie Lenn and Mrs. Ann Nadel, pay a two-hour visit to each home once a week to observe the home routine and show parents how they can help the children learn.

"The parents must constantly talk to the child," Mrs. Nadel said, "so he can soak up the language before he starts giving it back." She said most such children must see and hear a word spoken a thousand times before "giving it back" as speech.

"We use a visual, tactile and auditory approach," Mrs. Lenn said. The children watch the lips, listen to the voice and place a hand on the teacher's face to get the voice vibrations.

As for hearing, all the children can hear to a degree. "There is no such thing as stone deaf," Kupfer said. "All persons have some degree of hearing ability."

The early education program was started because educators realize that reaching a deaf child at five is far too late. Children start learning language and speech from the time they are born, and a deaf child may be irremediably far behind by usual school age. Almost any deaf child can learn to speak if reached early enough, Kupfer said.

Early education for the deaf has been pioneered in California by two private organizations — the San Francisco Hearing and Speech Clinic and the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles. The Tracy clinic was started by the late film star Spencer Tracy and named for his son, who had impaired hearing.

The San Francisco clinic starts working with children as early as six months. But both organizations are privately funded, and cannot expand rapidly when something like the rubella epidemic brings on a rapid increase in the number of deaf children.

Mrs. Jean P. O'Donnell began taking her daughter Janice to the San Francisco clinic when she was 6 months old, but her training stopped when the O'Donnells moved to Marin. Mrs. O'Donnell was a leader in initiating the early education program here and in forming the parents group.

Although Janice is "profoundly deaf," Kupfer said, because of her early start in San Francisco she is doing better now than some children with less hearing loss.

To have 12 hearing handicapped children in one age group in Marin is unusual, but has happened before. An older group of such children, born after the 1963 rubella epidemic, is now attending both regular and special classes at Gallinas School.

There is hope it won't happen again. Some reports indicate a vaccine against rubella may be developed by 1970, and vaccination could prevent prenatal damage from the disease.

But the parents group has a mission beyond the training of their own children. They and the teachers are now pressing for hospitals and doctors to set up routine hearing tests for newborn babies so hearing impairment can be detected and training begun early.

ACTING OUT WORDS—Kevin Little, center, helps Kimberly Mihan act out "flying" under the attentive eyes of teacher Natalie Lenn and fellow pupil Janice O'Donnell. The hearing-impaired children often must be taught the concept underlying a word before learning to speak it back to the teacher.

WALKABOUT TIME — Janice O'Donnell and Kevin Little watch closely as Mrs. Natalie Lenn walks Kimberly Mihan about the classroom, explaining each action as she goes. In the background are teacher's assistant Marilyn Bishop and pupil Paula Tomko.

Safe Lift Devices Are Stolen

Two 200-pound devices used to lift safes were taken from the back yard of William G. Van Zee, 11 Glen Road, Manor, sometime last week, sheriff's deputies reported yesterday.

Mrs. Van Zee reported the theft Friday, but gave no estimate of the value of the lifting devices. She said her husband uses them for his lock and safe business in the East Bay.

The theft was one of eight reported yesterday by deputies.

Deputies said Bobby E. Graves of 1423 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, reported Friday that a ring valued at $1,000 was taken from his home between Oct. 24 and 29. A tape recorder-radio combination valued at $100 was also missing. There was no sign of forced entry, deputies said.

Jeicy Pawlow of 56 Bay Vista Drive, Strawberry, reported Thursday that $40 in silver was taken from his home sometime that day. Entry was apparently gained by removing a pane of glass, deputies said.

A tape recorder and a camera valued at a total of $177 were taken from a locked car owned by John R. Bonacorsi of San Jost between 7:30 and 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, Bonacorsi told deputies Thursday. He said the car was parked near Marin Joe's when the theft occurred, deputies reported.

Paul D. Doiron of 35 Bret Court, Novato, reported Friday a stereo tape player was taken from his locked car while it was parked at College of Marin that day, deputies said.

Another tape player was reported missing Thursday by Robert Russo of 245 Flamingo Road, Tamalpais Valley, deputies said. Russo said the player was taken from his home. There were no signs of forced entry.

Dara K. Ellis of Washington Park reported Friday that her gun was stolen from her gear at Mount Tamalpais State Park the night before, deputies said.

Barbara Scott of Lagunitas Country Store reported Saturday that a necklace worth $48 had been taken from the store that day, deputies said.

Murder Victim's Kidney Is Used

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The kidney of a murder victim, Lynn Marie Fernandez, 18, has been transplanted to an unidentified patient at the University of California Medical Center.

Miss Fernandez was found dying in her apartment early Sunday. She had been shot four times in the head.

Her mother, Mrs. Margaret Fernandez, said today she had agreed to the transplant.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

More Courageous To Play Hand Than To Surrender To The Foes

If you fear that the missing cards are in unfavorable position you can surrender and tell the opponents to take as many tricks as they like. But it's more courageous to play the hand on the assumption that the cards are favorably placed. Hope is precious, but usually costs nothing.

LEADS KING

West led the king of spades, and South won at once with dummy's ace. Declarer next led a heart from dummy, and East played low. South had to guess whether to play the king or the jack of hearts from his hand.

Sure that West had the ace of hearts for his vulnerable overcall, South tried a finesse with the jack of hearts. West took the queen of hearts and cashed two high spades. East eventually defeated the contract with the ace of trumps.

Since we can see all of the cards we know that South made the wrong guess in playing the jack of hearts. Was South wrong of just unlucky? Work out your answer before you read on.

SURRENDERED

South surrendered when he played the jack of hearts. This play would drive out the ace if West had the ace of hearts and East the queen. But then West would cash two high spades and lead a fourth spade. If East had the queen of hearts he would be able to overruff dummy on the fouth spade, and South would be down one anyway. In short, playing the jack of hearts could not enable declarer to make his contract no matter how the hearts were divided.

ONLY CHANCE

South's only chance is that East has the ace of hearts. South should therefore play the king of hearts and hold his breath. When the king happens to win, South should breathe out and lead another heart. He loses only one trump and two spades. making his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ K Q J 10 5
♥ Q 7
♦ Q J 9 5
♣ 9 4.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You have 11 points in high cards and 2 points for the doubletons, enough for an optional opening bid. In this case you prefer to pass since a hand with only one king and no aces at all simply isn't worth an opening bid. If you had two small hearts and A-J-9-5 of diamonds, your count would be the same, but you would then have a respectable opening bid of one spade.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 5, the 310th day of 1968 with 56 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1733 John Peter Zenger began printing the newspaper the New York Weekly Journal.

In 1911 Calbrith Rogers completed the first American trans-continental flight. It took him 49 days to fly from New York City to Pasadena, Calif.

In 1940 President Franklin D. Roosevelt was elected to a third term.

In 1955 Austria formally opened the reconstructed Vienna State Opera house and celebrated liberation from 17 years of foreign occupation.

A thought for the day: English writer, William McFee, said, "responsibility's like a string that we can only see the middle of. Both ends are out of sight."

Rams Will Stick To Squibs; 49ers To See Movies

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — From now on George Allen will follow that old adage about practice what you preach.

Allen, coach of the Los Angeles Rams, is a big man for squib kickoff, a technique he installed last year to stop the long runback threat of Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears.

With Bruce Gossett kicking low line drives, hoping for crazy bounces, the Rams have been most successful with the squibs this season. In one game against Atlanta, Gossett's kicks skittered among the Falcons. One bounced completely over the head of the would-be rec evier.

For some strange reason, Allen decided to go for the long ball Sunday against the Detroit Lions. Gossett was given orders to give the heavy foot to his opening kickoff. Lem Barney of the Lions ran it back 98 yards for a touchdown, and the Rams barely squeaked home 10-7.

"I'm kind of a squib man," Allen told reporters in Los Angeles. "But I felt it would be taken as a negative play after our loss to Baltimore last week which I didn't want. So I told Bruce to kick the hell out of the ball.

"After 98 yards, I'm back to being a squib man."

FLOYD LITTLE won the battle of Syracuse Sunday in Boston. Little, who failed to set the pro world afire last year, to put it mildly, cut loose with his second 100-plus-yard day in a row for the Denver Broncos. Little made 147 on 30 carries.

On the other side of the field, Jim Nance, the two-time rushing champion, who, like Little, is a Syracuse alumnus, gained only 51 yards on 21 attempts.

GALE SAYERS will be the star of the film show in the San Francisco locker room this week, as the 49ers get ready to invade Wrigley Field Sunday for a game with the Chicago Bears.

As if the 49ers needed any prompting to remember that Sayers tied the NFL record with six touchdowns against them in 1965 and also took them apart last year, they will get a long look at the movies of Gale's biggest day as a pro. Sayers ran for 205 yards against Green Bay Sunday, his best since 284 yards for Kansas against Oklahoma State when he was a sophomore.

"WE SHOULD come to Atlanta more often," was Coach Bill Austin's comment after his Steelers trounced the Falcons 41-21 Sunday.

The only other game between the two clubs was in 1966, Austin's first year as boss man. It was in Atlanta and the Steelers rolled it up 57-33.

WITH BILL KILMER out for four weeks with a hairline fracture of an ankle, the New Orleans Saints must go with Karl Sweeten as their quarterback. Karl was intercepted four times Sunday by Dallas after coming in cold to replace Kilmer.

The Saints moved up Ronnie South, a rookie from Arkansas, as a backup man for Sweetan, the ex-Detroit Lion.

It's Now Or Never For Willsey's Golden Bears

To Face Mighty Trojans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There is one advantage in playing the top-ranked team in the country in a football game that will determine your Rose Bowl hopes.

No one can accuse you of looking ahead to next week, says California Coach Ray Willsey.

"We can stop looking ahead to anything beyond this week," said Willsey at a meeting of the Northern California Football Writers yesterday. "Obviously this is the make-or-break week. It's this week or never as far as California is concerned."

Willsey, whose team suffered through a 7-7 tie with Washington last week, was asked if Cal would concede SC's star running back. O.J. Simpson, a certain amount of yardage during the game.

"We're going to try to shut him off with nothing," said Willsey. "Of course, he may get 450 yards."

Willsey said he thought Cal had a good chance to beat the Trojans. He was joined in the opinion by John Reid, publicity director for the University of Washington, which lost to USC 14-7 before tying Cal.

"I think Cal will beat USC," said Reid, in town prior to Washington's game Saturday with Stanford. "Off our performances against both teams, I'd say Cal has a real good shot at it. Cal has a good defense and I think USC lacks one."

The writers named Ed White, Cal lineman who helped stop the Washington attack, as lineman oft he week for major colleges and tabbed quarterback Mickey Ackley, instrumental in Pacific's 28-0 victory over San Jose, as back of the week.

For small colleges, Greg Huarte, St. Mary's quarterback, was named backfield star and John Becknall, Hayward State offensive guard, was picked as lineman.

It's Tam-San Rafael Alumni Game In Kezar

OLD GRADS—Saturday afternoon San Rafael and Tamalpais high schools renewed their ancient football rivalry that dates back to 1905. Tamalpais won Saturday's game 12 to 6.

Sunday afternoon there was a Tamalpais-San Rafael Alumni game at Kezar Stadium in San Francisco. San Rafael won.

I am NOT kidding. It was billed as the 49ers against the Cleveland Browns but I saw it as an alumni game because a San Rafael grad, Ron Snidow, played defensive end for the Browns and two Tam grads, guard Elmer Collett and linebacker Matt Hazeltine played for the Niners. The Browns—I mean San Rafael Bulldogs—won, 33-21.

Snidow played the entire game on defense and made a major contribution to Cleveland's victory. Acquired by the Browns in a trade with the Washington Redskins earlier this year, Snidow made a crunching tackle that caused Gary Lewis to fumble early in the game, leading to a Cleveland field goal. And his No. 88 was obvious on several other defensive plays that pretty well contained the 49er ground attack.

Had Their Confrontations

Collett and Snidow met more than once during the afternoon. On 49er sweeps around Snidow's left end position. Collett led the interference and his No. 66 jersey colliding with Ron's 88 was a joy to the old S. R. Bulldogs and Tam Indians in the stands. I'd say it was a standoff in the personal duel.

Meantime, Hazeltine being a defensive man, had no confrontation with Snidow, so he enjoyed the alumni game from the sidelines.

Snidow's return to the Bay Area recalled his great high school career at San Rafael in the late 1950s when he was All-Northern California in football, won the California Interscholastic Federation discus championship and helped San Rafael win a basketball title. Ron went on to football stardom at University of Oregon and is now in his sixth season in the National Football League. Now 26 years old, he stands 6-foot 3 and weighs 250.

Large Marin Delegation

There was an unusually large Marin County delegation at Kezar Sunday. Side-by-side in the pressbox, for example, were sportscaster and Mrs. Russ Hodges of Mill Valley's Enchanted Knolls, pro football Hall of Famer Ernie Nevers of Tiburon and barkeep (The Cellars) Lou Buecher of San Rafael.

Quite a contrast: The aforementioned Nevers, stands were the Drake Junior Pirates of San Anselmo, champions of the Marin County Pop Warner Football Conference who were decked out in their bright green jackets.

Quite a contrast: the aforementioned Nevers, greatest star for Glenn S. "Pop" Warner at Stanford, on one side of the stadium; the 1968 Marin Pop Warner champs on the other side.

Gauchos Were 49er Guests

Also in the stands Sunday, as guests of 49er management, were the University of California at Santa Barbara Gauchos, including Terra Linda High School grads Stan Pareto, Paul Lee and Doug Parker. The previous evening the Gauchos whupped the University of Santa Clara Broncos, 35-14.

SICK BAY—The aforementioned Hodges, voice of the San Francisco Giants, underwent major surgery this morning. His many fans can send their best wishes to him at Marin General Hospital.

BASKETBALL BALLOT—Spectators at tonight's Oakland Oaks-Dallas Chaparrals American Basketball Association game will be kept abreast of election results via the Oakland Coliseum's huge message board on the circular scoreboard. 'll bet Rick Barry outscores George Wallace.

Casper Heads Hawaiian Golf Field

HONOLULU (AP) — Billy Casper, on the brink of another money winning mark, heads the field for the $125,000 Hawaiian International Golf Tournament this week over a course where he has always played well.

Casper, fresh from victory in the Lucky Open in San Francisco, is less than $8,000 from the official and total winnings marks set by Jack Nicklaus last year.

A finish of third or better in the tournament on the Waialae course on the slopes of Hawaii's Diamond Head would put Casper over, and he has been second here the past two years.

Top prize in the Hawaiian is $25,000. It is the next to the last stop on the pro tour for the year. Play over the 6,800-yard course runs Thursday through Sunday. Par is 72.

Arnold Palmer is in the field for the second straight year. He came here from Australia where he and Nicklaus played two tournaments.

Nicklaus has gone home, to Columbus, Ohio, where his wife expects a child.

Many of the regular tourists are entered, including a number of double winners this year. Lee Trevino, National Open champ, will play, as will Dudley Wysong, who beat Capser here in a playoff last year.

Ted Makalena, the Hawaiian golfing star who was killed in a freak swimming accident at Waikiki two months ago, edged Casper in the 1966 tournament.

Casper has more than $182,000 in official money this year and six tournament victories, and better than $203,000 over-all. Nicklaus set the marks of $189,000 and $211,000 last year.

Besides Casper, Trevino and Palmer, three others in the field —George Archer, Miller Barber and Bob Lunn — have won over $100,000.

Daryle Says He'll Play

OAKLAND (AP)—Daryle Lamonica, the Oakland Raiders' star quarterback who was injured in Sunday's victory over the Kansas City Chiefs, predicted yesterday that he would be able to play next Sunday.

X rays taken Sunday night and yesterday at an Oakland hospital showed no cartilage or ligament damage and Lamonica was sent home. He'll be given ice-pack and whirlpool therapy for the next few days to reduce swelling.

"It's tender and swollen," said Lamonica, who was hit by Kansas City linebacker Jim Lynch and had to be helped off the field. "But it's not really painful. You can't count me out Sunday."

The FISHIN' FOOL

By RALPH STEVENS
I-J Fish and Game Writer

Rains Will Soon Be Followed By Those Salmon, Steelhead

STEVENS

The rains came, and so to those avid anglers who favor working the coast streams — the Russian River, the Gualala, Garcia, Noya, Big and Ten Mile rivers to the north of the Bay Area, as well as those streams to the south — it is now legal to take salmon or steelhead in those streams.

But, legal or otherwise, unless the mouths of the streams are not bar bound, and the steelies come in out of the deep, and start upstream to the spawning grounds, the fact is that few, if any, of the fish will be taken. Steelhead fishing is a time of waiting. Waiting for the streams to return to normal after a spell of raining, and AFTER the streams lower after a hard rain, and they become first cloudy and then gradually attain a "milky" appearance. Then steelhead fishing becomes productive.

EVERY YEAR at this period, hundreds of fishermen leave the Bay Area and head for their favorite stream. Many will find the stream strictly nonproductive, still too cloudy to be fished; or the stream has gone through the cycle and has become too clear to yield many fish, and the few that are in the streams seldom take roe, night crawlers, spoon or spinners, one to mention artificial flies.

Not a very pleasant picture, is it? But the waiting is worth while; just one steelhead caught in the tide-water rivers is an experience you will never forget.

SO — WHAT'S to do? The answer is to contact some resort owner or private citizen after a rain and learn the current water condition. Ask about the color of the water. Figure at least five rainless days for most coast tidewater streams to return to normal. Several days longer for some streams such as the Russian River. So call your contact, but not before we have had a long spell of rainless days.

Perhaps the Russian River — its full length — attracts more anglers from the Bay Area, than any other stream. A good and reliable contact is the King News and Tackle Shop at Guerneville. You can depend upon any report given. If you like driving you will get an honest report from the Tackle Shop at Garberville. The new owner is Bob Hoops.

A good contact to learn weather conditions is the weather bureau itself. It could be fair weather here in the bay region, and raining cats and dogs back from the coast. Don't shove off for any stream until you check.

Earl Monroe Remains Top NBA Scorer

NEW YORK (AP) — Baltimore's Earl Monroe remains the National Basketball Association's top point-producer, but Los Angeles' Elgin Baylor has replaced Dave Bing of Detroit as the top per-game shooter.

U.S. Soccer Owners Have Huge Losses

COMBINED AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The two-year operation of the North American Soccer League was a $1 million lesson for every owner, Toby Hilliard, co-owner of the Oakland Clippers, said yesterday.

That's the figure Hilliard said the league owners had to dole out in the NASL's two-year existence.

Speaking at a news conference, he said there definitely would be no Clippers' team this year and added, "It probably was a mistake to play games exclusively in Oakland.

"We should have moved around to San Francisco and San Jose."

A final decision on whether the NASL would sponsor an All-Star team which would play in league cities is expected to be made at an owner's meeting Nov. 15.

WHO'S THAT IN CAL BEAR BACKFIELD?

As he put his Bears through a two-hour drill yesterday in preparation for the Cal-USC weekend battle, Willsey decked out his squad in white — except for one man who had on a dark jersey with the number "32" on it.

"That stands for either O. J. Simpson or Jimmy Brown," Willsey said. "You can decide which one." Simpson, of course, is USC's great halfback.

Perhaps it was coincidence but Willsey had his "32" running with the offensive unit.

Oregon Stater Wins Honors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Billy Main, ball-carrying star of Oregon State's 29-7 victory over Stanford last Saturday, was named the Pacific-8 Conference Back of the Week today.

Main rushed for 126 yards in 18 carries against Stanford, caught two passes for 18 yards and scored twice on runs of 24 and 20 yards.

He now is the Pacific-8's No. 3 rusher behind O. J. Simpson of USC and Oregon State teammate Bill Enyart.

Main, who has run for 469 net yards in seven games, is a 5-foot-11, 195-pound junior from Lafayette.

Now Pitching: Conigliaro

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's pro debut as a pitcher was a qualified success, and the Boston Red Sox think their onetime slugging outfielder will be even better on the mound with a bit more practice.

Conigliaro pitched the first three innings for the Red Sox team in an Instructional League game against the Phillies yesterday and looked sharp although tagged with the 3-0 loss.

The comeback-bent 23-year-old right-hander retired the side in order in the first two innings, allowing only one ball to be hit to the outfield, before his own wildness and some mental miscues by his young supporting cast victimized him in the third.

Tony C. walked three batters in that inning and also got a bad break when a potential double play ball rolled into left field as the shortstop, trying to hold a runner at second base, didn't get over to cover his position.

That plus a bloop single to right added up to the three runs.

"I think I'm going to be all right," Conigliaro said. "Mace Brown, the coach, said I did fine.

"Mace said I wasn't swinging my left leg when I had men on. That'll come. But the fact the ball was moving was the big thing."

Conigliaro was a high school pitching ace, compiling an 18-2 record, but this was his first game action on the mound since Junior American Legion ball.

"Tony did better than I expected—or anyone reasonably could," Brown said. "He pitched very well—very well indeed."

Congiliaro, whose career as a hitter was sidetracked when he was hit by a pitch Aug. 18, 1967, indicated he still hasn't ruled out the hope of a comeback in his old spot.

"I hit the ball all right, lining it to the shortstop, and I walked," he said. "So we'll go on from there. I'm happy—but awful tired."

Conigliaro's showing raised speculation again about his status with the Red Sox, who did not protect him on the 40-man winter roster they announced last month.

Normally this would make a player available in the draft for $25,000, but a Red Sox spokesman said Conigliaro had been placed in a special category by Commissioner William Eckert.

According to the spokesman, Conigliaro is currently immune from the draft via his emergency disabled status.

He indicated it was possible that this immunity would be withdrawn, but if so, the Red Sox would be given the opportunity to put Tony on the 40-man roster in place of another player.

The tourney drew 56 Marin women and was sponsored by the Marin County Women's 600 Bowling Club. Miss Puccinelli, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Puccinelli of Fairfax, succeeds RoseMarie O'Neil of Corte Madera as the new "queen" of Marin bowling. Lu Sharp of San Anselmo had won the first two titles.

Miss Puccinelli, who has a 158 blue book average, went through the 10-game finals undefeated. Kay Beal was runner-up in this year's tourney and Jeanne Gaffney was third.

Simpson And Mates Picked By Seven Over Cal Bears

NEW YORK (UPI)—O.J. Simpson is expected to break loose against California Saturday and the oddsmakers back their belief by making top-ranked Southern California a seven-point favorite over the Bears.

Simpson was held to 67 yards rushing by Oregon last weekend as the Trojan backfield star stumbled momentarily in his race for Heisman Trophy honors. USC has a slate of six consecutive victories this season to five wins, a tie and a defeat for conference rival California.

Second-ranked Ohio State figures to extend Wisconsin's winless skein to 18 games as the Buckeyes, 6-0, take the field 20-point favorites.

No. 3 Kansas is rated seven points better than Oklahoma, fourth-ranked Penn State is 6 over Miami and fifth-ranked Tennessee, 3 over Auburn.

Rounding out the top 10 rated teams, Purdue is 13 over Minnesota, Michigan 21 over Illinois, Missouri 22 over Iowa State, Texas 19 over Baylor and Georgia 7 over Florida.

Cardinals Slug Five Home Runs In 9-7 Victory

TOYAMA, Japan (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals hammered five home runs but needed a ninth inning rally, climaxed by Orlando Cepeda's second homer of the game, to beat the Yomiuri Giants 9-7 today.

Bob Gibson, the National League's leading pitcher, held the Japanese champions scoreless for four innings and the Cardinals ran up a 5-0 lead. But the Giants tied the game with five runs in the fifth inning against Mel Nelson.

In the ninth, Lou Brock led off with a solo homer for Cardinals and John Edwards doubled before Cepeda's game-winning blast.

St. Louis now has a 6-3 record on its 18-game Japanese tour and a 4-1 record against Yomiuir. Two of St. Louis' losses have been to the Japan All-Stars —both shutouts.

Warriors Beat Suns; To Face Knicks Next

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The San Francisco Warriors, mastering the National Basketball Association expansion teams but unable to beat the older clubs, try to reverse that trend tomorrow night against the New York Knicks at Civic Auditorium.

Nate Thurmond and Rudy LaRusso scored 28 points apiece last night as the Warriors beat the new Phoenix Suns for the second time, 119-108 at Phoenix.

Jeff Mullins contributed to the three-pronged offensive attack with 26 points.

San Francisco held a six-point halftime lead but the Suns came back in the third quarter to tie at 72-72 before nine straight points put the Warriors out of reach.

Dick Van Arsdale and Gail Goodrich paced Phoenix with 29 and 27 points respectively.

Clyde Lee Hurting, So Are The Warriors

When the Warriors left on a five-game road trip last week they were leading the Western Division of the National Basketball Association. They returned home Monday night just a step out of the cellar.

It was a disastrous road trip beginning with the first game in Baltimore where they dropped a 112-110 overtime decision to the Bullets after dissipating a 19-point fourth quarter lead.

The next three defeats were equally frustrating. The Warriors dropped them in the last minute of each game.

If Clyde Lee's ailing arch had not kept the 6-9 forward on the bench, all of the initial four road losses might have been salvaged. A tendon in the arch of Lee's left foot is the source of his trouble.

LEE MOVED in Rick Barry's old forward position when Barry jumped to the Oakland Oaks in the American Basketball Association a year ago. Barry sat out his option with the Warriors. That course of action, or mare accurately inaction, prompted a whopping damage suit again Barry and the Oaks by Franklin Mieuli, owner of the Warriors, who said Barry should have played out his option. The suit still is in the courts.

If Nate Thurmond hadn't damaged a knee serevely last year, the Warriors might have made it to the NBA finals because Lee's performances at forward were superb. He was a perfect partner for Rudy LaRusso, a 10-year NBA veteran.

JUMPING JOE ELLIS, the former University of San Francisco star, has been filling in at forward. But Ellis naturally can't fill in at two positions simultaneously. He had been spelling LaRusso who, at 31, needs periodic rests from the racehorse pace the pros maintain for the full 48 minutes of their basketball games.

At the outset of the 1968-69 NBA season, George Lee, new coach of the Warriors, predicted a brilliant year for the team. His prediction was predicated on Thurmond's staying healthy. Nobody thought of Clyde Lee breaking down.

WHEN THEY had Barry, the Warriors also had depth. Loss of Barry to the Oaks and other players to NBA expansion teams depleted the depth of the Warriors. An injury to their superstar, Thurmond, would be fatal to team hopes.

But an injury to a supporting star now is almost as deadly. At least, the results of the first road trip without Lee would seem to indicate that.

HOWEVER, AN injury at this early stage of the basketball season leaves plenty of time for recuperation. It's not the same as an injury in the home stretch of a nip-and-tuck race.

The Warriors are in trouble with less than a dozen of the 82 games played in the 1968-69 schedule but it is nothing more than temporary trouble this early in the campaign.

Marin Hockey Players Win

Pat McPartlan pulled off a hat trick of three goals and four teammates scored a pair of goals as the Marin Junior Peewee Hockey team bombed Belmont of Burlingame, 12-0, at Raydine's Ice Rink in Corte Madera Sunday.

McPartlan joined teammate David Bonbright on the hat trick list. Bonbright pulled it off against San Francisco a week earlier.

John Rotar, Gene Presley, Mauray Jouneay and Mike Long scored a pair of goals in Sunday's win, while Mike Carmody added a single goal.

North Carolina End Shows He's Ready

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Ron Lowry, a former trackman from Chesapeake, Va., showed early that he was in shape for the football season at North Carolina.

The defensive end ran the fastest mile the first day of fall practice. He was timed in 5:14.

Novato Girls Win Swim Meet

Novato High School's girl swimmers won the final event of the meet, the 200-yard freestyle relay to nip Drake High School of San Anselmo, 56-55, in Marin County Athletic League girls swimming action last week.

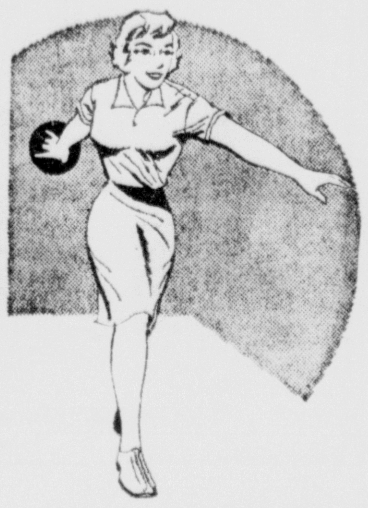
In other meets, Redwood of Larkspur topped Tamalpais of Mill Valley, 71-40, and San Rafael High School swamped Marin Catholic of Kentfield, 81-28.

In girl's volleyball action, Redwood downed Tamalpais and Drake defeated San Marin.

In tennis action, Tamalpais nicked Novato, 3-2 and Drake stopped Marin Catholic, 3-2.

BOWLING TIPS

By MARION LADEWIG



Those who keep the throwing arm close to the body at all times are doing much to improve and maintain accuracy. Such a consistent arm-pattern will result in the ball being thrown the same way every time. If the arm moves out from the body, the bowler is most likely to lose balance.

Stats Show Wild Season For The Tars

One look at the College of Marin Tars' football statistics, and you get an idea of the kind of wild and woolly season it's been for the men from Kentfield.

Nothing comes out quite right. The Tars have been out-first downed, 58-54, but have outgained their opponents in rushing, passing and total yardage. The mistakes that have plagued the Tars in a 5-2 won-lost season are heer too — 18 interceptions, 12 fumbles and a whopping 584 yards in penalties.

Halfback Tim Garvin is the top rusher and scorer on the squad with 489 yards in 75 carries and 7 touchdowns.

SPTS—230-2 Los Angeles Boxer

Hawkins belted Crawford through the ropes with 1:18 elapsed in the eighth round of their scheduled 12-rounder, the last of four bouts at the Forum. Referee George Latka stopped the contest when Crawford was unable to get back on his feet.

In the night's other featured attraction, Jose Napoles of Mexico City scored a fifth round knockout of Ireland's Des Rea.

Napoles, flailing away at Rea almost at will, dropped the Irishman for the mandatory nine count in the first round and bloodied his nose in the third. The fight was stopped in the fifth when Rea's nose continued to bleed.

The crowd of 10,857 also saw Richie Sue of Portland, Ore., open the card by kayoing Gil Noriega of Mexico City in the seventh round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

In the fourth bout, Arturo Lomeli of Guadalajara, Mexico, apparently earned himself a shot at world lightweight champion Carlos Cruz with a unanimous decision over Ruben Navarro of Los Angeles.

Lomeli had Navarro down three times for the mandatory nine count, but could not finish him off.

The judges, Larry Rozadilla and John Thomas, had it 7-5 and 7-6 respectively, while referee Joey Olmos scored it 9-5 for Lomeli.

Four Marin Men Racing In Mexico

Robert Winkelmann of Muir Beach and Al Maxey of Fairfax are driving a Ford Cortina in the Mexican 1,000, an off-road race event which started today at 6 a.m.

The Marin County pair will be competing in a two-wheel drive production class. Two other Marin County men, Monte Schaulis and Vern Harrington, are also in the race, in a division for dune buggies.

Winkelmann, 40, is owner of Robert Winkelmann Racing Shop in Sausalito, and Maxey, 28, is his chief mechanic.

About $2,000 has gone into the building of their car, No. 71, green with gold trim. They will not be using a follow vehicle, as do some of the other entrants. Instead, the car will be packed with spare parts, torches, spare tires and tools.

ROUGH TERRAIN

The car started out as a 1964 Cortina, but the interior has been changed around to provide more storage, and an extra gas tank has been added in the trunk. It has been raised from the ground to provide more clearance over the rough terrain which the race covers, approximately 1,000 miles from Ensenada to La Paz.

The bearded Winkelmann was born and reared in London and came to the United States in 1950. He has just recently moved his business from Mill Valley to Sausalito.

Ex-Red Sox Stephens Dies Of Heart Attack

LONG BEACH (AP) — Vern Stephens, the slugging Boston Red Sox shortstop who led the American League in runs batted in with 159 in 1949 and 144 in 1950, is head at the age of 48.

The 15-year major league veteran who also played with three other clubs and was in six All-Star Games, died of a heart attack last night.

HE WHO LAUGHS LAST . . .

Yes, he who laughs last laughs the longest, as the old saying goes, and Oakland Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica was hysterical with joy on this second quarter American Football League play against the Kansas City Chiefs Sunday at Oakland Coliseum. Lamonica completely fooled the Chiefs and scored untouched on a four-yard quarterback draw play. Oakland won a laughter, 38-21.

Rohnert Park Golf Links Will Be Completed Soon

Rohnert Park's Municipal Golf Course will be a full-fledged golf course in another two months when work on the back nine holes is completed.

According to Rohnert Park Superintendent of Public Works Bill Wiggins and Golf Course Superintendent Sam Singh, the holes have been regraded, leveled and replanted and a completely new irrigation system has been installed. They have been completed recently and only missing ingredient is grass that's growing right now.

The front nine holes have been open and in operation since Aug. 28.

Location is just off the Wilfred Avenue turnoff on U.S. Highway 101.

John McGraw, lengendary manager of the New York Giants, played third base for St. Bonaventure University.

Drapery Cleaning Specialist Switches To A Local Franchise

Drapery cleaning specialist Frank H. Michelfelder of San Rafael has given up his post as national sales manager for the rapidly expanding Coit Drapery Cleaners to settle down with a local franchise for the same company.

Michelfelder has supervised Coit branches and franchises for eight years and since the firm has been extending its coverage into new areas his job has been taking him farther afield than ever.

Through Marin realty brokers Herman Deitch and Jane Fairchild he has leased an entire building of over 2,500 square feet at 55 Belvedere Street, San Rafael. Here equipment is being installed for a full drapery cleaning plant. In the past a Coit pick-up and delivery station has been maintained at 1852 Fourth Street, San Rafael. This will be discontinued.

The organization is headquartered in Burlingame.

Michelfelder was the subject of a feature article in the I-J's Marin Magazine in March, 1965.

Michelfelder

McCone

JAMES F. McCONE of San Rafael has been appointed manager of container services for Pacific Far East Line, Inc. He has been with the steamship company for 17 years. Pacific Far East is inaugurating full containership service to Guam next month upon completion of two C-4 vessels now being converted in Alameda for this specialized cargo handling.

TWO NEW OCCUPANTS of the recently completed Greenbrae Medical Center who were omitted in our article of Oct. 29 are opthamologists Drs. William J. Filante and Darrell F. Smith, previously located in the 599 Sir Francis Drake Building north of Marin General Hospital. The Greenbrae Medical Center at 1300 South Eliseo Drive is reached from Bon Air Road near the Bon Air Bridge.

Jacob

Rowe

WILLIAM H. JACOB of Larkspur has joined Arnold and Palmer and Noble as account supervisor. Previously he was vice president and San Francisco manager for Goodrich and Snyder, Inc. With a background of 14 years in the communications field, he has also served as public relations consultant, advertising agency executive and communications manager for a national manufacturer.

TOBY ROWE, one-time resident of San Rafael, has joined Coot, Inc. of San Francisco, manufacturer of a new four-wheel drive, rough-terrain and amphibious vehicle. For the past three years he has been in Florida as national sales manager for Seabird Boat, Inc. He and his family plan on making their home again in Marin County.

A LUNCHEON SEMINAR on Nov. 14 sponsored by the Commodity Club of San Francisco will feature as a topic for discussion "How a Futures Market Works and Why.'' Speakers will be drawn from the Chicago Board of Trade where producers, consumers and speculators meet to buy and sell agricultural products. The seminar will be held in the Gold Room of the Fairmont Hotel, San Francisco. Tickets at $10 may be secured by writing the Commodity Club, 351 California Street, San Francisco.

SPEAKING OF SEMINARS, the Fire Officers Management Seminar sponsored by the Marin County Fire Chiefs Association last April has received favorable comment in several firemen's magazines, including the California Fireman, Western Fire Journal and Fire Engineering. The seminar was conducted by Dr. George Sugarman of Tiburon.

ROBO CAR WASH at 20 Bellam Boulevard, San Rafael, has been taken over from Douglas, Hobart and Wilson by a new group headed by Leonard Burnham of Walnut Creek.

Under the name of Robo-Bay Cities, Inc., the new owners now hold the Robo franchise for seven counties of the Bay Area. Car washes are maintained here and in San Pablo. Others are planned soon for Davis, Gilroy and San Jose. Eventually it is likely that one will be located in Novato.

In charge of the San Rafael operation is Lester Rosenberg of Novato.

INSURANCE. Richard L. Brown of Novato, property underwriter with Chubb and Sons, Inc., San Francisco, has been designated a Chartered Property Casualty Underwriter by the American Institute for Property and Liability Underwriters. . . . Bernard Anker of Novato has completed an intensive course in life insurance underwriting by Mutual of Omaha and United of Omaha agency in San Francisco.

THE SHAPE OF RESEARCH

This odd-looking configuration is a mechanism for analyzing food crystals in the process of discovering what gives fresh bread its aroma and what produces the strawberry's distinctive taste. PayLess Reports Record Earnings

OAKLAND (BW) — Skaggs PayLess Drug Stores with an outlet in Marin County, achieved record operating results for the nine months ended Sept. 30, with net sales up 26 per cent and earnings per share up 42 per cent.

Net sales for the nine months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $56,459,636, compared with $44,954,407 in 1967.

Net income was $1,336,696, equal to 64 cents a share on the 2,073,750 shares of common stock outstanding. In the previous nine-month period PayLess had a net income of $916,397, or 45 cents a share when there were 2,038,333 shares outstanding.

Net Earnings Climb 300 Pct.

LOS ANGELES (BW) — Trans-Coast Investment Co., a $92 million savings and loan holding company, has reported that consolidated net earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 had increased more than 300 per cent when compared with the similar period in 1967.

Thomas W. Clarke, president, said that net earnings for the first three quarters of 1968 amounted to $408,646, or 19 cents per share, compared with $130,020, or 6 cents per share for the same period in 1967.

For the third quarter of 1968 the company earned $159,318, or 8 cents per share, compared with $69,587, or 3 cents per share in 1967.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Switching To Mutual Funds Costly Move

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I own shares of General Electric, Radio Corp., Skaggs Drug Centers, Safeway Stores, Marathon Oil and Eastman Kodak which I have been advised to transfer to a mutual fund. What do you advise? — E. K.

A. Selling your holdings and buying a mutual fund could prove costly in commissions, sales fees and capital gains taxes. You have six excellent issues, all of which are well worth retaining.

A good increase in 1968 sales and earnings is predicted for Eastman Kodak, with the greatest gains coming from sales of "Instamatic" cameras, professional photography equipment, man-made fibers and plastics.

General Electric, despite a setback in 1968 earnings, should work higher over the next several years.

Marathon's outlook has been strengthened by an improved crude position, resulting from Alaskan production.

Radio Corp. has predicted another record year, with strength noted in color TV, computers (overseas), broadcasting and computer rental.

A high level of volume for Safeway Stores coupled with some widening of profit margins should lift 1968 results close to record 1966 earnings.

Skaggs Drug Centers, not to be confused with California-based Skaggs Pay Less Drugs — another attractive issue — operates a chair of retail drugstores in the Midwest. Earnings were up 55 per cent in the first 9 months, due in part to inventory and expense control programs.

Changes in your portfolio at this time appear unwarranted.

Q. I am a widow with $20,000 in savings, living on Social Security, a small pension and dividends. Would you suggest any changes in these holdings for extra income: Atlas Corp., Bulova Watch, Charter New York Corp., Cities Service, Crown Zellerbach, General Motors, Gulf & Western dustries. Home Insurance and Midland Ross? — M. C.

A. Sell Atlas Corp., which pays no dividend, and Bulova Watch, which has moved up sharply, thereby discounting near-term earnings prospects.

Interpace Dividend

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (BW) — The board of directors of Interpace Corp. has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock, payable Dec. 26 to share owners of record Dec. 6, and a regular dividend of $1.25 per share on the 5 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, payable Jan. 1 to share owners of record Dec. 6.

Air West Over 1 Million Mark

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Air West has carried its first million passengers since it began merged operations July 1.

The new regional airline said this week that its October passenger boardings totaled 250,856, the third month since July that they have exceeded the quarter-million count.

This raised the post-merger count to 1,076,000 passengers, up 108,560 passengers from the pro forma total a year ago.

Jean-Claude Killy talks shop... Chevrolet Sports Shop

(Freely translated from the French) . . . "I am a man who drives for sport . . . for fun, you know? This is why I am now telling you all about the brave new Chevrolet and its Sports Shop.

"Only in the Chevrolet Sports Shop do you find cars like the Camaro Z/28. Ah, yes, the Z/28. A Camaro with 302 V8, Holley 4-barrel carburetor, more muscular suspension and Hurst shifter. Is also one of two American cars which offer 4-wheel disc brakes. The other is also in the Chevrolet Sports Shop . . . Corvette, of course.

"Only the Chevrolet Sports Shop has sporting cars from two-seater all the way to five-seater. Beside the Z/28 and Corvette, there is Camaro SS, Chevelle SS 396, Nova SS and the big Impala SS 427.

"Will you come and see these cars very soon at your Chevrolet dealer?

"But of course."
